Republicans Demand Cut In Taxes on Business

17½% Maximum Corporate Levy Asked; Security Extension Rejected

By Cecil B. Dickson.
(Copyright, 1939, by International News Service)

A Republican proposal to repeal "New Deal business repressive taxes" was laid before Congress yesterday as the House Ways and Means Committee overwhelmingly rejected President Roosevelt's plan to blanket 6,000,000 additional workers under the social security system.

A graduated flat rate tax ranging from 13½ to a maximum of 17½ per cent on net corporate earnings was proposed in a bill by Representative Jenkins (Republican), of Ohio, as a substitute for the present undistributed profits, capital stock and excess profits levies. It also would modify the capital gains levies to permit corporations to take credit for losses in ventures.

This move, as the Administration put pressure on Congress for additional relief funds and made plans for tax revision looking to a graduated corporate tax up to 22 per cent, highlighted these developments:

Rejecting a New Deal move to close hearings today on the President's request for $150,000,000 additional WPA funds, the House Appropriations Deficiency subcommittee decided on a showdown vote on the issue by next Wednesday, meanwhile questioning Administrator F. C. Harrington on "waste" in show projects.

May Ask $2,000,000,000

Intimation from White House sources that President Roosevelt will ask for a $2,000,000,000 WPA appropriation for the coming fiscal year despite organization of a movement by Democrats and Republicans to make a sweeping investigation into the entire Federal relief setup.

Income tax collections for the first 15 days of March exceeded Treasury expectations when $132,709,201, was paid in, a 25 per cent reduction under the $178,926,148 collected in the same period last year, whereas a 33 per cent drop had been anticipated.

President Roosevelt said consideration of the corporate tax structure still was in the study stage, while the Treasury pressed its survey of tax returns in an effort to have its recommendations before Congress by April 15.

Democratic Congressional leaders conceded the probability Congress will refuse to continue Presidential authority to devalue

European civilization, menaced by forces of disorder, may find its refuge in Eire in a new Dark Ages, Mgr. David T. O'Dwyer, director of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, last night told 800 members and guests of the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

The dinner at the Mayflower Hotel was the largest gathering among dozens held in the Capital by Irish-Americans observing St. Patrick's Day.

Green corsages, boutonnieres, hair ribbons and shamrocks were liberally interspersed among festive diners at the Hibernian banquet. A musical program of popular Irish airs was brought to a close with the martial strains of the "Soldiers Song" of the Irish army.

Byrd Accuses Reserve Board Of Propaganda

Publicized Eccles' Spending Ideas, He Says In Merger Bill Fight

By Robert C. Albright.

A charge that the Federal Reserve Board "has lent itself as an agent to propagandize" the spending theories of Chairman Marriner S. Eccles yesterday touched off a Senate drive to write "economy" prominently into the Government reorganization bill.

The attack was led by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, long at odds with the Federal Reserve chairman on Administration spending and spearhead of a Senate effort to curtail Presidential powers in the House-approved reorganization measure.

A test on the Wheeler amendment making Presidential merger orders contingent on the affirmative vote of House and Senate, went over until next week. The outcome teetered in the balance as both Administration and Byrd forces canvassed "doubtful" Senators.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, meanwhile disclosed he will make a second strategic effort to modify White House powers if the Wheeler amendment fails. He said he would reoffer the Sumners amendment, vesting either House of

Servant Relates Desire to Halt Stinson Bridal

But Preacher Omitted Objection Clause, He Testifies

Joseph Whitlaw Stinson, 58-year-old lawyer-engineer-artist-author—who has been called a spendthrift every day this week in Mrs. Pepita Crounse Stinson's suit to annul their marriage—heard even his standing as an expert on old glass doubted by her witnesses before Justice Luhring yesterday.

"He was more positive than accurate," averred Miss Margaret Lathrop Law, a poet as is Mrs. Stinson, who has a summer home near Chester, N. S., where Mrs. Stinson, 54, claims the suave former State Department aide drugged her and married her for her money—$700,000 she inherited from her previous husband.

Stinson gave away his wife's dining room suite and replaced it with antique, he had collected, said Miss Law, adding that Mrs. Stinson paid for the collecting.

Frederick Collins, colored, who was Mrs. Stinson's chauffeur for 20 years, closed his testimony under cross-examination by Carroll L. Beedy who with George Horning, jr., is counsel for Stinson.

Collins said Mrs. Stinson had gone to the altar weeping and that if the preacher who performed the

Raw Meat Eating Slayer Of 2 Deputies Sought in Hills

By the Associated Press.

Powell, Wyo., March 17.—A raw meat eating mountain man, hair falling to his shoulders and capable of traveling 40 miles a day afoot, was sought tonight in Wyoming's greatest man hunt in two decades.

The husky fugitive was 28-year-old Earl Durand, who shot and killed two peace officers after he had escaped from the Cody, Wyo., Jail where he was serving a sentence for poaching.

More than 80 Wyoming and Montana officers joined the search in the snow-covered uplands toward Bear Tooth Mountains.

Durand, known for such feats as tossing a baseball in the air and sending four rifle bullets through it before it hit the ground, was believed fleeing toward mountain hideouts on the borders of Yellowstone Park. At the beginning of his flight last night he was carrying four rifles and a large supply of ammunition.

With three shots, Durand last night killed Undersheriff D. M. Baker and Marshal Charles E. Lewis as they drove up to the ranch where he had forced Deputy Sheriff Noah Riley to drive him after escaping from the jail. He had beaten the deputy into submission as Riley brought supper to his cell last night. He had been imprisoned for killing a bull elk out of season.

Army Ready To Expand Immediately

Red Tape Slashed To Start Drive As Soon as Funds Become Available

The half-billion dollar emergency defense program, America's answer to totalitarian aggression, is geared and "ready to shoot" the instant Congress gives the word, Army chiefs said yesterday.

Plans for immediate expansion of the air power by 565 planes are complete, it was said, with only money lacking to put them in motion. Funds for the planes are carried in the War Department supply bill being whipped into shape for presentation to the Senate next week.

While ordinarily most of the details of procurement are worked out after Congress provides funds, departmental procedure was stepped into high gear this year to get the new arms program under way as soon as possible. Routine and "red tape" were scrapped in many instances to speed the program along.

Unprecedented Speed

Officials predict that contracts for the first increment of planes will be let with unprecedented speed and that plans for strengthening seacoast defenses, procuring new ordnance material, and launching the pilot training program will keep pace.

Priorities in the procurement of new weapons and equipment under the $110,000,000 fund awaiting consideration in the House are not yet determined, but it is expected these will be worked out before the money is made available.

Final Congressional action on the Army expansion bill, authorizing a 6,000-plane strength for the Army, additional coast defenses and a program of "educational orders" for industry to equip itself for production of munitions, is expected some time next week.

Two supply bills providing the actual funds for the program also are due for consideration. Senate hearings on the regular Army appropriation bill were concluded yesterday, and the $499,000,000 measure should pass with little delay. The House plans to call up the second deficiency bill, carrying at least $116,500,000 in supplemental Army appropriations, Tuesday.

Early Action on Navy Bill

Early action on the naval air base measure is assured, under plans to provide aviation facilities at Guam in a separate rivers and harbors bill. President Roosevelt has agreed to take the controversial island development out of the $65,000,000 air base bill and submit it as a harbor project later. The bill is before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, having passed the House

War Fears Jolt Stocks Down $1-$5; Commodities Waver

New York, March 17 (AP).—Stock prices fell $1 to $5 a share today in one of the worst breaks of the year, as European war fears jarred world speculative markets.

A censure by British Prime Minister Chamberlain of German absorption of Czecho-Slovakia pushed prices still lower in the San Francisco Stock Exchange after the close of the New York market.

At New York, U. S. Steel closed at $57.25 a share, off $3; Bethlehem, $67.87, off $2.25; General Motors, $47, off $2.12; U. S. Rubber, $44.62, off $3.12; Douglas Aircraft, $67.37, off $2.37; American Telephone, $160, off $4.25; Westinghouse, $109, off $3; Union Carbide, $83, off $2, and Santa Fe, $34.12, off $2.50.

Bonds fell with stocks, and commodities were uneven. European currencies generally were a shade lower

By the Associated Press.

Birmingham, England, March 17.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tonight bitterly lashed Chancellor Hitler as a breaker of promises and warned him Britain would fight if he continued to seek domination of Europe by force.

He charged Hitler had taken "the law in his own hands" by occupation of Czecho-Slovakia, announced his own hopes of appeasement had been "wantonly shattered," and declared firmly:

"No greater mistake could be made than to suppose that because it believes war to be a cruel and senseless thing that this nation has so far lost its fiber that it will not take part, to the utmost of its power, in resisting such a challenge (to dominate the world by force) if it ever were made."

Appeasement Scrapped

Chamberlain spoke on the eve of his seventieth birthday before a political rally of his fellow townsmen. In the speech, his first fighting speech against dictators since he became prime minister, he threw his appeasement policy overboard.

"I am convinced," he said, "that after Munich the great majority of the British people shared my hope and ardently desired that that policy should be carried further.

"But today I share their disappointment and their indignation that these hopes have been so wantonly shattered."

Envoy Called Home

In another place he said: "There is nothing I would not sacrifice for peace, but there is one thing that I will except, and that is the liberties that we have enjoyed for hundreds of years and which we will never surrender."

Chamberlain was interrupted frequently by deafening cheers.

During the day his government had shown its disapproval of Germany's action by sum-

Oust Chamberlain For 'Misjudgment,' Newspapers Urge

London, Saturday, March 18 (U.P.).—The London News Chronicle, liberal newspaper, and the London Daily Herald, labor paper, joined today in demanding the removal of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain because of his "misjudgment of the character of Nazism and its leaders."

Other newspapers, including those of conservative politics, criticized the prime minister sharply. The Conservative Daily Mail, declaring that "the time for speeches is over" and "words don't count any more," said "much of Chamberlain's address was in the nature of regret and apologia for the recent past."

Alexandria, Egypt, March 17 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Phil Plant, wealthy New Yorkers, arrived here today from Juba, British East Africa, where the British flying boat Corsair on which they were passengers, was forced down Tuesday.

The couple, on an African honeymoon, said the incident caused no discomfort to the passengers and crew and that no one was injured. The cause of the forced landing was not disclosed.

New European Developments

PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN of Britain said Hitler wantonly shattered the hope of appeasement, predicted Germany would bitterly regret it, called home his Berlin Ambassador "to report."

SUMNER WELLES, Undersecretary of State, condemned Germany in American history's most scathing denunciation without an actual break, declared we will not recognize legitimacy of the seizure.

Daladier Asks Dictatorship to Match Hitler

Committee Backs Plea for Powers to Insure 'Quick Action'

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 17.—Premier Daladier tonight asked Parliament for almost unlimited dictatorial powers to enable France to act as rapidly as the dictator-ruled nations.

He not only asked for powers unprecedented in post-war French history, but flatly refused to tell Parliament what he was going to do with them in the face of Germany's swift expansion in central Europe.

He told the Chamber of Deputies "the measures I plan to take are military measures," but declined to give further hint of his plans and did not limit the scope of his request to any particular field as French premiers usually do in asking such powers.

"The totalitarian states are capable of taking important decisions rapidly and applying them rapidly," he said.

"It is impossible and absurd that France cannot act with the same rapidity."

The Chamber, already nervous after Hitler's absorption of all but the Carpatho-Ukrainian tail of Czecho-Slovakia, adjourned temporarily after Daladier's demands

"It's almost a dictatorship he asks," many said.

Deputies said the powers, which Daladier asked to have until November 30, would enable his government to suppress any party or newspaper and call any number of troops to arms without consulting Parliament.

They also stated the Premier had told them "only a part" of the plan he would put into action when given decree powers. It included:

Speeding up of production in war industries;

Purchase of war stocks;

An increase of working hours

Give Up Trade, Nazis' Reported Order to Carol

Rumanians Told to Be Farmers Only, London Hears

London (Saturday), March 18.—Germany has delivered a virtual economic ultimatum to Rumania, calling upon the Bucharest government to put an end to all activities to build up the nation's industrial power, the London Daily Telegraph asserted today.

The diplomatic correspondent of the London newspaper reported that British government circles have beeen informed that the German demand has been conveyed to the government of Premier Armand Calinescu through Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, representative of the great German economic organization headed by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Germany, according to this information, has demanded that certain Rumanian industries be closed immediately, and that others be dismantled progressively so that Rumania may revert to the status of a purely agricultural country.

It was understood, moreover, that Germany demanded that she be granted a complete monopoly of all Rumania's exportable products

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent said the Bucharest government, interpreting the proposals as an economic ultimatum, has refused to accept them.

The other brother, Vojta, formerly Czecho-Slovakian minister of education, also has been missing since the latest Hitler coup.

Hungary Pours Huge Army Into Ruthenia; Czechs Fleeing

By the Associated Press.

Chust, Carpatho-Ukraine, March 17.—The Hungarian army, skirmishing its way through Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) against Czech and Ukrainian defenders, was bringing up heavy artillery and tanks tonight.

The resistance offered the Hungarians was scattered. Only a few Czech soldiers continued real fighting, and Ukrainian irregulars were retreating into the hills before the Hungarian advance.

But railways leading into the newly annexed region were crowded with troop trains. Cavalry units were being assembled here in the capital.

Retreating Ukrainian guardsmen took Hungarian hostages with them, the Hungarian military command announced. The reports caused pursuit of a Ukrainian band which the Hungarian occupation army drove from Chust last night.

This afternoon the Hungarians advanced more than 10 miles east of Chust.

Trade Agreement Suspended for All Territory Taken Over by Reich

(See "The Reaction Begins"—an editorial—Page 8.)

By William V. Nessly.

The United States yesterday issued against the German government the most scathing denunciation ever directed by this country against another without an actual break in diplomatic relations, and served notice that this Government would not recognize the legitimacy of German seizure of Czecho-Slovakia.

It lifted the beneficial provisions of the reciprocal trade agreement with Czecho-Slovakia from the German-seized provinces of Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia, and placed products of those areas on the same status as those of Germany, which is on this country's trade "black-list."

Mail Is Stopped

It stopped all mail destined for Czecho-Slovakia and now in custody of the Postoffice Department—to give the senders an opportunity to request its return. The action was prompted by numerous requests from the mailers that such matter, already, posted, be returned.

A statement issued by Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, with full approval of President Roosevelt, accused the Nazi government of "wanton lawlessness" and of "arbitrary force" which it said were "threatening world peace and the very structure of modern civilization."

Capitol Hill Approves

On Capitol Hill an immediate chorus of approval of the action arose, Chairman Pittman, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declaring that "in the most serious situation that ever faced us, we must not delay in preparations for potential political and physical action."

Earlier in the day, Mr. Roosevelt had told his press conference that developments in Europe showed the need for a revision of the American neutrality act at this session of Congress.

Welles' statement was issued at a crowded press conference.

The acting Secretary read his formal declaration, which re-

$75,000,000 Cotton Export SubsidyStudied

Proposal Outlined To Move Huge Surplus Stores

A $75,000,000 export subsidy program to move the Government's huge surplus cotton stores last night was reported under AAA study after the President turned thumbs down on the Smith cotton bill to subsidize directly domestic cotton growers.

The President told reporters the Administration is trying to meet the acute surplus cotton situation without bankrupting the Treasury, and said the Treasury has opposed the Smith bill because it would cost too much money.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and a group of regional directors of the AAA meanwhile conferred at the White House on what the President called a serious situation presented by the large cotton carryover.

Will Be Sold

They are reported to have discussed a plan under which the Government would acquire title to its 11,000,000-bale stock of loan cotton and foster sales through licensed exporters and dealers abroad and at home.

Questioned on proposals for a subsidy, the President said discussions had not yet proceeded far enough to put a title on a plan. But he said the loan cotton would eventually be sold and not dumped or burned.

One plan reported under discussion would give the Government title to its loan cotton on payment of about $1.25 a bale to the cotton growers. Exporters of cotton would be licensed and would be paid 2 cents a pound by the Treasury on all loan cotton they sold abroad. The cotton would be sold here only at the prevailing market price.

Favor Smith Bill

Approximately 11,250,000 bales of cotton are now under Government loan.

Besides Wallace and AAA officials, present at the White House cotton conference was Oscar Johnson, of Scott, Miss., president of the National Cotton Council, but formerly with the AAA. Johnson and representatives of the cotton trade are reported to favor the bill offered by Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Estimates of cost of the Smith measure, opposed by the President yesterday, have ranged from $175,000,000 to $350,000,000. This bill would pay subsidies up to 5 cents a pound to farmers who marketed their cotton rather than seek Government loans. It further provides that growers may repossess their cotton now under loan upon payment of 3 cents a pound and promises to reduce their production by quantities returned to them.

Decline Cause Sought

By the United Press.

The Commodity Exchange Commission last night ordered New York cotton brokers to report all trades they made in cotton futures yesterday in an effort to discover the reason for a 57-point a bale decline.

The order, first of its kind ever made to trace cotton speculation, asked for air-mailed reports giving the names and addresses of persons or firms making trades, their amount and character (speculative, hedging, straddle or commission house), date and price.

Helpmates Who Attend Mrs. Butler's Class to Assist Husbands in Campaign Tours Win Their Diplomas

Wives of the legislators gathered at a luncheon-commencement at the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon and said sub rosa what they really thought of some of the amusing aspects of the national Government.

Mrs. Hugh Butler has been teaching them to speak.

"The Government is very fond of working women," one student informed the guests. "It is unnecessary for any of them, or of your visiting constituents, to pay any money for movies," she continued. "There is always certain to be a show at some Government department.

"I am also interested," she continued, "in the diligence with which the Government pulls women's stockings. They have a machine for doing it in the women's division of one of the departments. In the same department they teach you how to cook meats, and then to take their temperature to see whether they are well enough to be eaten."

Assist Husbands

"These ladies are not speaking for the public," Mrs. Butler told a reporter. "Some of them don't even want to be here. Their husbands insisted, in some cases, that they take the course so they would be able to talk before constituents with ease and charm. If they are trained to speak they can talk, besides, to some women's organizations and clubs that won't listen to their husbands—or, rather, that their husbands haven't time to address. But just now they are emphatically speaking just to themselves, and they wish that you would go away." The reporter went nursing the nuggets of accidentally gained Congressional-wifely wisdom.

Mrs. William W. Whittington, of Mississippi, was toastmistress, and honor guests included Prof. W. Hayes Yeager, of George Washington University, the only male guest; Mrs. Elwood Street, wife of the Director of Public Welfare; Mrs. Jed Johnson, of Oklahoma, prize-winner of last year's class; Mrs. Daniel A. Reed, of New York, past president of the Congressional Club; Mrs. Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, president of the Congressional Club. Mrs. John Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. John J. Sparkman, of Alabama, were in charge of luncheon arrangements.

Other Students and Guests

Others were Mrs. August H. Andresen, of Minnesota; Mrs. Fred Bradley, of Michigan; Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine; Mrs. J. P. Buchanan, sr., of Texas; Mrs. William T. Byrne, of New York; Mrs. Clarence Cannon, of Missouri; Mrs. Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts; Mrs. Cassius Dowell, of Iowa; Mrs. Herman P. McLaughlin, of Nebraska; Mrs. Emmet O'Neale, of Kentucky; Mrs. James M. Fitzpatrick, of New York; Mrs. Donald McLean, of New Jersey; Mrs. James G. Polk, of Ohio, and Mrs. A. H. Gasque, of South Carolina.

The first prize, for the student who had improved most, went to Mrs. John J. Sparkman, of Alabama, with Mrs. Nat Patton, of Texas, as runner-up.

The second prize, for the best speaker, was awarded to Mrs. William Whittington, of Mississippi, with Mrs. Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts, as runner-up. Mrs. Clason was the only Republican among the award winners.

The Wearing of the Green Prevails Even in White House

Irish

doors," Mgr. O'Dwyer suggested, "it may prove the destiny of the Irish in the twentieth century to do what they did in ancient days when the Roman Empire was crumbling."

Recalling how "the flame of learning wsa kept alight in Eire in another dark time," the cleric appealed to his audience to "treasure your inheritance of a great civilization."

In another Mayflower banquet hall nearly 300 Friendly Sons of St. Patrick held their annual celebration in honor of the auld sod's patron saint. Frank J. Hogan, president of the American Bar Association, was principal speaker.

Even the Mayflower pickets went Irish for the occasion. Huge Shamrocks were superimposed on placards carried by the strikers, many of whom had added conspicuous splashes of green to their attire.

Guests entering the hotel were given a handbill carrying the appeal: "Fellow1Countrymen—Don't Crash Our Picket Line. On this day, all men of Ireland must stick together."

More than 200 couples attended the United Irish Club's dance at the Carlton Hotel, featured by the "Irish Set," "Stack of Barley" and other traditional Celtic steps.

The Interior Department Recreation Association played host to 600 merrymakers at a dance held in the National Press Club.

At the American Legion Hall, Irish War Veterans joined with the United Veterans of American War to give a buffet supper and dance.

Through the day the Irish saint was honored at least with traditional green necktie, shamrock or green carnation. This was the rule, even though all but one of the correspondents who attended the White House press conference disobeyed it.

President Roosevelt, who added a green tweed suit to the required green tie and shamrock, carefully inspected the reporters, and after finding only one green tie asked if all the Irishmen were present. He said the one reporter who wore the tie was a man after his own heart.

Supreme Court Justice Butler celebrated his seventy-third birthday and joined the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in their banquet at the Mayflower. More than 200 persons were present. Frank Hogan, president of the American Bar Association, was the speaker.

At Garfield Hospital, a new follower of St. Patrick was born to Mr. and Mrs. Dan Patrick, of 2517 Fourteenth street northwest. Their baby, a daughter, was named Patricia Lee Patrick, all in honor of the saint. She has a 3-year-old brother, Dan, jr.

Formal ceremonies were held by the District of Columbia Post No. 17 of the Irish War Veterans who visited the Commodore Barry statue at Fourteenth and I streets northwest, and later placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery.

Senator O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, led his Irish colleagues in informal ceremonies in the sergeant-at-arms' office at the Capitol.

The Eire legation was closed as Ambassador Robert Brennan left to join in Irish celebrations in Chicago, and Garth Healy, first secretary, went to Pawtucket, Conn., for a meeting of the Social Club of Eire.

Farley Deplores Fascists, Communists

Providence, R. I., March 17 (AP).—Postmaster General Farley appealed to American of Irish ancestry tonight to "drive from America those who are trying to undermine and destroy the very foundation on which our Government is built."

In an address to the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, of Providence, and a Nation-wide audience, Farley deplored more recent immigrants from "tyranny" of the old world, who were "using their liberty to instill into their fellowmen a distrust for American institutions, to arouse religious nitolerance, race hatred, class conflict and even a denial of the God who created them."

Some seek to promote communism, and other fascism, Farley said, but "you could not drag any of these agitators with a team of horses to a boat embarking for any of those countries."

Sanitary Unit Files Report Of Expenses

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post, 9213 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone SHepherd 4200.

Construction projects totaling $795,707.71 were carried on by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission during the past year, the annual report of the commission, released yesterday, discloses. Total expenditures of the commission, serving the suburban areas of both Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, during the year were $2,287,188.34, compared with gross receipts of $2,016,464.39. Despite this overdraft the commission closed the year with a cash balanc of $489,540.05 due to the existence at the beginning of the year of a cash balance of $760,264.

The largest items of expenditure aside from construction were interest and expense on bonds amounting to $551,285.46 and purchase of bonds for sinking fund at an outlay of $420,191.13. Maintenance and operation of water and sewer systems, filter plants, equipment and service connections cost $339,756.68, and salaries, rent, office supplies and general administrative expenses totaled $41,352.89.

Front benefit assessments and penalties brought in $512,381.12 of which $293,657.37 was collected in Montgomery County. The suburban district tax return was $87,314.10, of which Montgomery County residents paid $53,482.44.

Other items of income included $179,616.58 for house connection charges, $365,424.59 for water service charges, $521,396.59 from sale of bonds, a $43,400 return on maturities, $43,822.34 in interest and discounts, and $224,790.38 from the Federal Government.

Hands-Off Policy

Chevy Chase—The Montgomery County Volunteer Firemen's Association voted to maintain a "hands-off" policy in a dispute between firemen of Silver Spring and Kensington over jurisdiction of the new suburban development at Four Corners at their quarterly meeting last night in the Chevy Chase fire house.

The association discharged a special committee that previously had been appointed to make an investigation after spirited discussion.

Last night's meeting also adopted a resolution presented by Capt. Irving W. Johnson, of Takoma Park indorsing the bill now pending in the Maryland State Legislature to require strict supervision of all fireworks exhibitions.

To Open Bids Today

Rockville—Bids for the purchase of seven new automobiles for use by the Montgomery County Police Department will be opened at 10 a. m. today in the office of the board of county commissioners in the Rockville courthouse.

Firemen Elect

Cabin John.—David S. Tuchey was elected president of the Cabin John Volunteer Fire Department last night. Other officers elected are Leonard Morrison, vice president; Charles E. Benson, treasurer; George F. Royal, secretary; Ralph Woodard, financial secretary; Hulbert Stream, chief, and Ralph Scott, James A. Taylor and Donall Chamberlain, directors.

G. O. P. Arranges Dance

Bethesda.—The Young Republican Club of Montgomery County will hold a dance starting at 10 p. m. today at the National Woman's Country Club near Bethesda.

Protest Deadline Set

Silver Spring.—Protests against the renewal of county beer dealers' licenses must be filed with the Montgomery County Liquor Control Board not later than March 31, Ralph H. Chase, chairman of the board, warned last night. All county beer licenses come up for renewal in May, he said.

Tribute Arranged

Potomac.—Miss Hermine Badenhoop, who recently retired as Montgomery County public health nurse after 15 years of service with the county health department, will be feted at a luncheon Wednesday by the Montgomery County Social Welfare Council.

Celebration Arranged

Takoma Park.—Plans for a golden jubilee celebration of the Takoma Park Citizens' Association, March 25 at 8 p. m. at the Takoma Branch of the D. C. Public Library, Fifth and Cedar streets, were announced yesterday by Dr. Guy Clinton, president.

Nominations Made

Garrett Park.—Citizens of the town of Garrett Park have made the following nominations for two vacancies on the town council: W. G. MacNulty, incumbent; James L. Thomas, Paul V. Johnson and R. B. Scott. The other incumbent, whose term expries in May, is W. Scott Magill. The town election will take place May 1.

Delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation elected at a meeting of the Garrett Park Citizens' Association preceding the town caucus are Richard H. Akers, W. Scott Magill and Roy P. Moore. Alternates are Rudolph Dieffenbach, president; Sheldon B. Akers and James L. Thomas.

Ask Taxing Area Change

Northwood Park. — Immediate enactment of legislation to place Northwood Park under the jurisdiction of the Silver Spring fire-taxing area is urged in a resolution adopted by the Northwood Park Citizens' Association. The area is now under the Kensington fire-taxing area but is served by the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department.

A drive to have the roads in the community improved is to be launched shortly by a special committee from the association.

End of Strike At Hyattsville Sought Today

Contractors Meet Union Agents in Labor Difficulties

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, 42 University rd., Calvert Hills, Md. Telephone GReenwood 3539.

Settlement of the strike which yesterday stopped work on the Prince Georges County Service Building at Hyattsville will be sought at a conference today between contractors and union representatives.

Fifteen carpenters, bricklayers and laborers walked off the job yesterday in sympathy with a strike called by Truck Drivers' Union in protest against delivery of material by non-union drivers. The project ordinarily employs 30 men, but only 15 were on duty when the strike was called.

H. B. Davis, superintendent of construction for the Carlstrand Engineering Co., of Baltimore, general contractors on the job, said he had refused to accept material delivered by non-union drivers. It was understood, however, that an agreement would have to be reached with the sub-contractors.

The building is being erected at a cost of $121,700, and is partly financed by a PWA grant.

Embezzlement Charged

Upper Marlboro—Police Court Judge George B. Merrick yesterday ordered Thomas H. Clifton, of Takoma Park, held for action of the grand jury next month on a charge of embezzling $87.53 from his employer, a pin-ball operator. Clifton was freed under $1,000 bond.

Launch Benefit Drive

Hyattsville—The Prince Georges County Police Boys Club has launched a benefit drive to collect $5,000 for purchase of equipment and other expenses.

The club was organized about eight months ago under direction of Supt. Arthur W. Hepburn. There are two units, one meeting at the Hyattsville High School and the other at the Maryland Park school. Total membership is more than 1,000.

Supt. Hepburn announced that contributions should be addressed to the Prince Georges County Police Boys Club, Metropolitan Building, Hyattsville.

David T. Brown Burial Tomorrow At Richmond

Funeral services for David Tucker Brown, 54, engineer in charge of work on the Inter-American highway in Central America, will be at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow in Hollywood Cemetery, Richmond.

Mr. Brown died March 12 in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, while on an inspection trip.

A native of Bedford County, Va., he was a graduate of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He lived for several years in Kensington, Md.

Surviving are his wife, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club of Washington, and two sons, David Tucker Brown, jr., who lives with his mother on Janney's lane, Alexandria, and Edward Trigg Brown, of Richmond; three brothers, Dr. H. P. Brown and J. Willcox Brown, of Lynchburg, Va., and John Thompson Brown, jr., of Old Hickory, Tenn.; and two sisters, Mrs. John T. Wingo, of Richmond, and Mrs. Fleming Saunders, of Evington, Va.

$250,000 WPA Exhibit Defended By Harrington

By International News Service.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins, when he was WPA administrator, authorized construction of the much-criticized exhibit building at the New York World's Fair, Col. F. C. Harrington, new WPA head, yesterday told the House Appropriations Deficiency sub-committee.

Defending that project as well as 15 to 30 theater projects in New York, 10 to 20 in Los Angeles and a dozen in Chicago, in arguing for $150,000,000 in additional funds, Harrington denied they were being used for WPA propaganda.

Committee members revealed they questioned Harrington and Miss Florence Kerr, assistant administrator in charge of "white collar" projects as to "high salaries paid" for administrative work on WPA show projects.

Roosevelt, Using Patronage, Seeks 1940 Convention Control, Senators Charge

By the Associated Press.

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, charged the Roosevelt administration yesterday with attempting to gain control of delegates to the 1940 Democratic convention through dispensation of Federal patronage.

"I know that is happening in Georgia," he said, and I understand that substantially the same thing is taking place in several other states."

SEN. GEORGE

Senator Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, expressed belief the administration was trying to exercise direct control of patronage in his state. Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, said that at one time an unsuccessful attempt was made to organize a New Deal patronage committee in Maryland.

Meanwhile, Senator Wheeler (Democratic), of Montana, announced he would be a candidate for re-election next year. Wheeler was the first of 32 Senators whose terms expire January 3, 1941, to make known his plans.

Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee decided yesterday to insist that the committee incorporate a strong criticism of Secretary Perkins in its report next week on disposition of impeachment charges against her.

Most of them agreed privately with Democrats that Miss Perkins' procedure in deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, C. I. O. West Coast maritime leader, was not illegal. But they said some steps in the case were "unusual" enough to merit censure.

Representative Peterson (Democrat), of Florida, told the House Rivers and Harbors Committee yesterday the Florida ship canal—based upon costs and benefits of the Panama Canal—would be worth only $37,0000,000.

Peterson said this figure was based upon the two waterways' comparative savings to shippers and upon construction costs. The Florida canal is estimated to cost $200,000,000.

Members of a House committee considering proposed expansion of the Panama Canal said a War Department representative showed them yesterday aerial photographs of a potential Japanese air field in Costa Rica, only 300 miles from the canal.

The pictures were exhibited to the House Merchant Marine Committee, they said, by Brig. Gen. George V. Strong, assistant chief of staff in charge of the canal's defense.

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, said any such facility in the vicinity of the Panama Canal was of vital interest to the Navy, but he volunteered, somewhat drily, that it would be difficult for any foreign power to land planes there or maintain them if they did reach the field.

Asserting that the present practice of Federal courts in assigning counsel to "indigent prisoners" is both "unjust to the defendant and unfair to members of the bar," Attorney General Frank Murphy today asked Congress to set up a system of "public defenders" in the United States number of States.

In letters to Senator Henry F. Ashurst, chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, and Speaker William B. Bankhead, of the House, Mr. Murphy vigorously advocated this reform, which has been adopted in a number of tSates.

AAA Predicts Drop in 1939 Grain Acreage

Sees Smallest Corn Crop in 40 Years and 18% Cut in Wheat

By the Associated Press.

Farm officials, faced with serious wheat and feed crop surplus problems, hailed a Federal crop reporting board's forecast yesterday that this year's corn acreage would be the smallest in 40 years and the area sown to wheat would be 18 per cent less than last year.

The board estimated the acreage to be planted to corn at 92,062,000. This compared with a goal of 96,000,000 established under AAA's crop control program.

The wheat acreage was placed at 65,650,000. While this exceeded the crop control program's goal of 55,000,000 acres, it was 15,000,000 acres less than was seeded for last year's large crop.

Further Cut Possible

The board said that if abandonment of winter wheat should be between 20 and 25 per cent—as was indicated by its December report—and 16,700,000 acres of spring wheat were harvested, the total wheat acreage for harvest would be about 52,700,000 acres.

This compares with 70,221,000 acres harvested last year, 64,422,000 in 1937 and an average of 55,325,000 for the 1927-36 period.

Meanwhile, the Interstate Commerce Commission denied for a second time a plea by primary grain markets of the Middle West for more favorable rail rates.

The primary markets wanted the commission to compel the railroads to permit "transit" on grain shipments, granting the privilege of stopping for milling or other purposes at such points.

"Dual Rate" Denounced

The milling interests contended that because of the absence of "transit" or through rates, the primary markets can "transit" only by use of a combination of rates, whereas competing interior points are permitted to "transit" on through rates.

The commission said in its 7 to 3 decision that to permit the requests for transit under through rates from the primary markets would re-establish the so-called dual system of rates, which it said it had condemned on five previous occasions.

Two Brothers Meet Here After 50 Years

Youngest, 61, Didn't Know Other Was Even Alive Now

Two brothers who had not seen each other for half a century and neither of whom had known whether the other was still alive, met in Washington yesterday.

A. L. ALLAN

For a time it looked as though the shock might be too much for them, as one has to watch his heart, and the other is suffering from an ailment that makes undue excitement dangerous. So having met, the could not see as much of each other as they would have liked.

R. L. Allan, 68, of 1728 North Barton street, Arlington, Va., left his ten brothers and sisters in Montreal in 1889 as a printer and lithographer and set out for Boston. He drifted into Washington, working first in the Government Printing Office, later in the Navy Department. A couple of years ago he retired.

Forgot Family Names

During the years he had completely lost track of his family, but two years ago in looking through the Montreal directory he found a name that was the same as his father's. He wrote to the man—who was no relative at all—and asked him to try to trace some of his brothers and sisters, but he was handicapped in that most of the names he remembered were nicknames.

The Montrealer, however, eventually located Miss Georgiana Allan, one of the sisters, and she told A. L. Allan, youngest son of the family, who is 61. The latter had tried to locate his brother in Washington four years ago, during the Shriners' convention, but had been unsuccessful. He had made other attempts in previous years.

R. L. ALLAN

Thursday, however, Allan, of Montreal, arrived in the Union Station with his wife, on his way home from Petersburg, Fla. There he was met by Allan, of Arlington, accompanied by Mrs. Henry H. Evans. They met in a mist of tears.

Family Well Scattered

Thursday night and most of yesterday morning the two brothers were together. Then they had to separate in order to rest. When the Montrealer left yesterday afternoon the Allans, of Montreal, were aboard. But A. L. Allan had the satisfaction of knowing the whereabouts of all his surviving brothers and sisters. Two are in Montreal, one in Whitby, Ontario, one in Vancouver, one in Barry, Vt., and one—the missing sheep of the flock—in Arlington, Va.

"We knew each other at once," Allan said proudly, before leaving. "There is such a strong family resemblance.

"I was lucky to get here," he added. "When the train was backington into the station at Tampa, a driving wheel flew off the engine. Suppose we had been going fast!"

Western High Students Film Movie in Rock Creek Park

Post Staff Photos.

A wooded section of Rock Creek Park looked like a Hollywood film location yesterday as Western High School students made their debut before movie cameras as final takes were made for "Hi Yo Silver!" a satire written by a graduate of the school. Starred in the student production are Gunnar Jagdman, hard "driving" hero, and Nancy Lee Tennyson, petite heroine, shown at left. At right—The cast listens while Student Director Bill McClure (holding mike) goes over script. Streamlined autos are employed in the picture instead of the lightning-fast steeds of Western thrillers

Lights, Camera, Action!—The hero is out! The heroine is in the hands of kidnapers! Unable to elude highwaymen, Nancy Lee Tennyson has been kidnaped, and her captors have put Gunnar Jadgmann out of the picture. (Well, almost. He is visible at lower right, slumped down in car)

Sulfanilamide Ends Md. Boy's 'Gas' Infection

Drug Cuts Number Of Mastoid Operations Also, Surgeons Told

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 17.—A new use for sulfanilamide was reported today as a boy who may have been the first sulfanilamide patient in this country appeared before the American College of Surgeons.

Dr. W. Raymond McKenzie's announcement that sulfanilamide had been found effective in treating mastoiditis was not made to the regional meeting of the college, but came in response to questions. The meeting of surgeons is closing today.

"It is true that the use of sulfanilamide has greatly reduced the numbers of operations necessary to cure mastoiditis," Dr. McKenzie said. "Whereas in a group of sufferers from mastoidities before the use of the chemical 100 operations were necessary, now it is necessary to operate in from 10 to 20 cases."

Baltimore Boy Cured

Sulfanilamide, a complex sulphus compound, was first used in this country only three years ago, but already it has been found effective against streptococcus, meningococcus, staphylococcus, gonococcus, the Welsh (or gas) bacillus, undulant fever and mastoiditis.

Walter Candy, 17, of Baltimore, appeared before a clinic of the surgeons' meeting, to show how well he had recovered from gas gangrene which threatened his life in January, 1937.

Dr. Harold R. Bohlman, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, who said Candy's case was the first he knew of in which sulfanilamide was used in this country against the gas bacillus, brought the boy to the clinic.

Given 12 Hours to Live

The bacillus caused the formation of gas after the boy's left leg was fractured, leaving the bone thrust through the skin. The swelling gas interfered with the circulation of blood and gangrene set in. Candy was given only 12 hours to live when he was given sulfanilamide.

Dr. Bohlman said the recovery was apparently due entirely to sulfanilamide.

Check Forger Poses as Illiterate To Dupe Victims

Abad check artist, who posed as an illiterate to confuse victims, was the object of a tri-State police search last night in connection with more than $500 worth of bad checks passed recently.

A fugitive from the Petersburg, Va., mental hospital, he has operated in Baltimore, Richmond and the District, police said, and writes checks on the R. F. & P. Railroad.

To cash the forgeries, the man says he cannot write and just places his mark as an indorsement.

Bruce, Mail Bandit Suspect, Caught

Chicago, March 17 (AP).—Floyd Bruce, indicted with his brother for slaying a mail messenger in a $25,000 robbery at Guthrie, Ky., was captured today in a rooming house in Normal, Ill., the Postoffice Department announced. With him was a woman who said she was Helen Bruce, 23.

In the room where they were captured, inspectors said, was at least one machine gun, several pistols and "plenty of ammunition."

Hotel Strike's End Foreseen In 48 Hours

Conciliators Report Progress In Negotiations

A "break" in the 9-day-old hotel strike "in 48 hours or less" was predicted by Labor Department officials after operators and union representatives yesterday concluded 12 hours of negotiations.

Dr. John R. Steelman, head of the Federal Conciliation Service, said much progress was made in negotiations, yesterday and Thursday.

"I am hopeful for a quick settlement now," Dr. Steelman said. "For the first time, both sides seem to want to settle."

It was understood an agreement was reached on number of hours to be worked.

Representatives were to report back to headquarters in what was hoped would be preliminaries to a final settlement today or tomorrow.

Labor factions want an increase in the wage scale, set in April, 1937, while operators would like to lower the scale, it was said.

Meanwhile it was learned that two former employes of the Raleigh, Stanley W. Shirley, 30, of 924 G place northwest, and Lawrence Brown, 27, of 463 N street northwest, were held by police, on warrants charging assault on nonstriking Raleigh employes.

Undismayed by the picketing outside, more than 300 "Greeters," "front-office employes, of Middle Atlantic States hotels, opened a three-day conference at the Raleigh.

Meanwhile, the League of Women Shoppers petitioned New Jersey members of Congress to move out of hotels whose employes are on strike or to tell the management they are "in sympathy" with the strike.

Judge Wonders If Wives Are Told Of Speeding Fines

Whether the average motorist who is fined the usual $10 for speeding tells his wife about the incident was a question raised by Traffic Court Judge McMahon yesterday.

Judge McMahon told more than a score of defendants:

"This court does not like to take your money but it's the law. Fines must effect the family budget and I wonder what explanation is given wives when there is a $10 shortage before the next pay day," the judge said.

Bailey, British Press Head, Dies

London (Saturday), March 18 (U.P.). Herbert R. Bailey, 45, managing editor of the British United Press since 1924, died today at his home in Brington.

He was born in London, and served as a special correspondent during the Russian revolution for the New York Times and the London Daily Express. Later he was a correspondent for the Daily Mail, the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the New YYork Sun.

Mr. Bailey's wife and a daughter survive.

150 to Participate In French Contest

More than 150 students from the secondary schools of the Capital will participate in the fifth annual French contest to be held this morning in Government Hall of George Washington University, 708 Twenty-first street northwest, it was announced yesterday.

Prizes, medals and books awarded by the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs will be presented to the winners next month by the French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint-Quentin.

Dinner to Honor Col. W. C. Clephane

Col. Walter C. Clephane will be honored at a Hotel Mayflower dinner tonight given by the George Washington Law Association and the Student Bar Association of G. W. U. law school.

Col. Clephane was a member of the faculty from 1897 to 1936. Principal speaker will be Representative McLean, of New Jersey, of the class of 1906. Other speakers will be Cloyd Heck Marvin, president; Dean William C. Van Vleck, and Justice James M. Proctor. Newell Ellison, president of the G. W. Law Association, will preside. Charles S. Baker is chairman of the dinner committee.

Hull and Aranha Trade Pledges Of Co-operation

By the Associated Press.

The State Department made public last night an exchange of messages in which Brazilian Foreign Minister Aranha expressed conviction of recent economic agreements would "mark a new era of closer collaboration between the countries of this hemisphere."

Aranha, in a radiogram from the liner Argentina, en route to Brazil, said the collaboration "cannot fail to result in the creation of a safer happier, and stronger continent."

Hull expressed "our steadfast desire to preserve and strengthen the relations between our two countries on the fullest basis of cooperation and friendship."

Philadelphian Wins Corcoran Art Medal

Franklin Watkins Also Receives W. A. Clark Prize

The W. A. Clark Prize of $2,000, accompanied by the Corcoran Gold Medal, has been awarded Franklin C. Watkins, of Philadelphia, for the best painting submitted to the sixteenth biennial exhibition of contemporary American oil paintings, it was announced yesterday.

The exhibition will open at the Corcoran Gallery, March 26 and continue through May 7.

Watkins' winning painting, a still life composition of flowers entitled "Summer Fragrance," was selected from nearly 3,000 works by artists all over the country.

Second Clark Prize of $1,500 and the Corcoran Silver Medal was awarded to Robert Phill Philipp, of New York, for his "Nude," a study of a young girl.

A Cape Cod landscape entitled "Lighthouse," the work of Morris Kantor, of New York City, won third prize of $1,000 and the Corcoran Bronze Medal. Fourth prize of $500 and the Corcoran Honorable Mention Certificate were bestowed on Ernest Fiene, of New York, for a landscape called "Spring Evening."

Three honorable mentions, carrying no money awards, were added to the usual prizes, the jury announced, because of the high quality of work submitted. Nicola Ziroli, of Chicago, was chosen for second honorable mention; Gladys Rockmore Davis, of New York, third, and Albert B. Serwazi, of Philadelphia, for fourth.

Nazi Regime Would Destroy U. S. Liberty, Says Dr. Walsh

Georgetown Vice Rector, in Lecture, Depicts Conditions Under Which Americans Would Live Under Bund Administration

There should be no surprise if the Nazi Bund in America should announce that it would take over an entire county in New York State, and would so, expelling the Jewish population, the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, and regent of the School of Foreign Cervice, said in Bemorial Continental Hall last night.

He was lecturing on the "Government and People of the United States."

"I have been deeply impressed these last few days," he said, "by the expressions of wonder, indignation and outraged alarm that accompanied Mr. Hitler's absorption of Czechoslovakia and the consequent enlargement both of German territory and the German domination of Central Europe.

"There is no reason for surprise or indignation. The hour for these amiable human reactions is long since past. No observant European or literate American should be surprised any more than the householder should be who receives printed notice from the Nazi bund in America that on a certain designated day its troopers would occupy Mr. Householder's residence, annex his garden, and incorporate his family into a regimented Nazidom—and then discover that the bund does exactly as it promised.

"There may be room for astonishment but not surprise. If, moreover, the bund shortly gave public notice that it would next proceed to confiscate the local ball field for its own exclusive use as drill field, and did so, there might be much discomfort and resentment in the town—there should be no surprise!"

Blaze Damages Home Of Bishop-elect Gravatt

Staunton, Va., March 17 (AP).—Fire today damaged the residence of the Rev. John J. Gravatt, jr., D.D., bishop-elect of the diocese of upper South Carolina.

The flames burned downward from the roof through the top story while the first story was damaged by water and smoke.

Vienna Hails Hitler After He Sees Conquests

City Also Celebrates First Anniversary of Austrian Anschluss

By the Associated Press.

Vienna, March 17.—Adolf Hitler rode triumphantly into swastika-bedecked Vienna from his new protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia today to the thunderous acclaim of Viennese throngs.

The Fuehrer came here from Bruenn, Moravia, aboard a special train after a two-day swing through his newly acquired territory.

From the railway station he rode to the Hotel Imperial through streets dense with crowds giving the stiff-armed Nazi salute and shouting "Sieg Heil"—hail victory.

After taking the salute of a guard of honor drawn up in front of the hotel, Hitler went immediately to his first-floor suite.

A few minutes later he appeared on the hotel balcony and gave the Nazi salute in response to an unending chant of "We want to see our Fuehrer!" from the crowd below.

All Vienna was decorated with red, white and black swastika banners. They had been displayed for two weeks in celebration of the first anniversary of the Austrian anschluss with Germany, which occurred a year ago last Monday.

Hours before Hitler reached his hotel, details of Nazi Storm Troopers and black-shirted S.S. Guards, Hitler youth groups and uniformed frauleins stood in formation awaiting his coming.

It was expected the conquering Fuehrer would visit the opera later in the evening to see a performance of the Italian composer Giacomo Puccini's "La Tosca."

Official and diplomatic circles believed he would return to Berlin tomorrow instead of visiting Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, which yesterday came under his protection.

Reports from Bratislava said Hlinka Guards (Slovak storm troops) everywhere were co-operating with the German army of occupation in Slovakia.

May Feed the Reich

Czech troops remaining in Slovakia, which seceded Tuesday from the now dead republic, were reported to have ceased resistance and most had surrendered their arms. They were reported waiting in barracks for instructions from Prague.

Nearly all Jewish shops in Bratislava were closed and a number had been confiscated by the authorities.

Jews avoided appearances in restaurants and other public places in the Slovak capital in anticipation that Germany's Nurnberg laws would be enforced.

The German mark was declared legal tender at the rate of 10 Czech crowns to one mark. Prague banks remained open.

In Vienna there were hopes that fertile Bohemia-Moravia, with a considerable agricultural surplus production, would become a granary for Germany and improve the Reich's food situation.

Experts estimated the new territory would reduce the present necessity for food imports by one-half.

The wealth of ore gained, they figured, would bring Germany to the point where it would be almost self-sufficient.

The belief prevailed that Premier Joseph Tiso, of Slovakia, and another member of the Slovak cabinet might come to Vienna to discuss details of he new regime for their country before Hitler leaves for Berlin.

Berlin Prepares Welcome

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, March 17.—With floodlights, flags, tanks and improvised bandstands, Berlin was preparing tonight a triumphal reception for Chancellor Hitler.

With his return to the German capital, Nazis will celebrate the addition to the Third Reich of Bohemia and Moravia.

Hitler's plans were officially a secret, but it was believed that he would return to his chancellery from Vienna before tomorrow night.

If precedent is followed, he will choose the peak of public excitement over his latest triumph to call the Reichstag to solemnize this week's significant changes in German policy.

backing to aid political refugees and Jews to get out of the country collapsed with the arrest of at least 47 of their leaders.

There were a number of Jewish suicides.

The newspaper Express reported 20 of them, including Eugen Zucker, retired director of the Anglo Bank; Rudolf Wahle, a retired judge, and Paul Donner, former director of the Czech radio system.

Hospitals reported 80 Jewish suicides had been brought in to them. A man and woman on a park bench behind the Bohemian Museum shot themselves. Another couple jumped from their apartment window.

Mrs. Frantiska Plaminkova, 60-year-old Czech senator, was reported by friends to be among the undisclosed number of persons rounded up by the secret police in their drive to clear Prague of "undesirable elements."

She is an internationally known leader in social matters and a member of the Social Democrat Party. She has visited in the United States and England.

The former military camp at Mikovice, 25 miles from Prague, was turned into a concentration camp.

Among the leaders of social welfare agencies who were arrested was Ada Smolkava, who had been working in close touch with American and British organizations.

A relief kitchen run by English women and Quakers for the penniless among German and Sudeten political refugees was closed.

Lists of refugees trying to leave the country were seized.

The newspaper A-Zet, which had a circulation of about 100,000 was suspended and the plant confiscated last night for publishing a picture of Adolf Hitler which the Nazis did not like. The photographic editor was arrested.

Hurban Defies Nazis, Stands Pat at Czech Legation Here

Harris & Ewing.

Col. Vladimir Hurban (left), Minister to the United States from the now dissolved Czecho-Slovakian government, and the Spanish Ambassador, Dr. Don Fernando de los Rios, are shown as they met yesterday at the State Department. Hurban refused to turn his legation over to Germany until he gets orders from Prague. Ambassador de los Rios is envoy for the tottering loyalist Spanish government, still recognized by the United States

German Officials Perplexed at Action Of Minister in Refusing to Leave Chancery; U. S. State Department Gives Approval

Adolf Hitler's Nazi annexations yesterday were brought to a dead stop on fashionable Massachusetts avenue by a tough soldier-diplomat who insists he still represents the sovereign state of Czecho-Slovakia.

Col. Vladamir Hurban, who asserted Thursday he would not surrender the Czech Legation here to the Reich's emissaries until receiving written instructions from his own government, yesterday firmly entrenched himself in the chancery with a defiant statement suggesting, in effect, that no such orders ever can come to him. He took his stand after a conference with State Department officials.

"According to the constitution of the Czecho-Slovak republic," Hurban said, "any territorial changes of the state must be approved by the Czecho-Slovak National Assembly by a two-thirds majority.

Agreement Invalid

"The president or the government is not empowered by the constitution to cede any part of Czecho-Slovak territory," the Minister continued. "The agreement signed in Berlin on March 15, therefore, is not valid."

"I took the oath to obey the laws of the Czecho-Slovak republic," Hurban stated simply. "No one has power to force me to act against the law."

Last night, in an NBC radio interview, the envoy without a country said he was holding the legation because "the Czech nation still stands, even if only as a symbol." He lauded denunciations of Hitler by British Prime Minister Chamberlain and United States Assistant Secretary of State Welles as "splendid manifestations of international righteousness and decency."

At the perplexed German Embassy, ordered Thursday to take over the Czech Legation immediately, an embarrassed silence prevailed.

Immediate occasion for Hurban's statements was the receipt of a radiogram which he said came to him over the signature of "the former minister of foreign affairs of the Czecho-Slovak republic, Dr. Chvalkovsky," instructing him to surrender the legation. His refusal to budge Thursday followed a verbal request delivered in person by a German Embassy aide.

"See Prague This Summer"

The message from Prague to Hurban was described at the German Embassy as coming from "his government." The Reich spokesmen said they did not know who signed the dispatch.

Reporters entering the handsome Czech Legation at 2349 Massachusetts avenue northwest saw no outward evidence of impending coordination within the greater Germany.

Portraits of Masaryk and Benes still held places of honor, while in the chancery reception hall the most conspicuous decoration was a pre-Munich map of Czecho-Slovakia. On a table below the map were travel pamphlets urging the tourist to "See Prague This Summer." One booklet described "Monuments to Jewish Culture in Czecho-Slovakia."

Daladier Demands Dictatorship in European Crisis

beyond the 40-hour week now in force;

Treasury loans for war industries; and

Purchase of necessary war materials and stocks abroad.

The Premier passed the first hurdle for the bill by winning approval from the finance committee, to which it had been referred, 26 to 17.

A poll of chamber leaders had indicated he would get a sufficient majority to obtain passage.

Daladier took extraordinary steps to insure passage of the bill which would make his acts subject to check by only the President of France.

He obtained advance agreement of Chamber leaders to bring the measure to a vote by Saturday night.

Special Senate Session

He persuaded Senate leaders to hold a special session Sunday to consider it.

He ordered cabinet members not to leave the capital "until further notice."

The bill itself carried its punch in a single paragraph:

"The government is authorized by decrees drawn up with the President to take measures necessary to consolidate and increase France's strength."

The policy of virtual acquiescence in Germany's domination of eastern Europe, followed by France since the September 29 Munich conference, which effected Czecho-Slovakia's first partition, seemed suddenly to have been abandoned.

Italy Tells U. S. Coup Aided Axis

Special Cable to The Post

Rome, March 17.—An American move to ascertain the Italian reaction today to the seizure of Czecho-Slovakia by Germany and Hungary, coincided with an Italian press campaign against alleged democratic plans of aggression and reiterations Italy also will expand as soon as the time is favorable.

William B. Phillips, the United States ambassador, called on Count Galeazzo Ciano this morning and it is understood he received the impression that Italy considers the Rome-Berlin axis to have been strengthened. A full report has been sent to Washington. The demarche was purely for information.

several weeks ago with the Guam project stricken.

Meanwhile, in the House, hearings on next year's naval appropriation bill were scheduled to begin the coming week. President Roosevelt has recommended funds for 23 ships next year, including two battleships, expected to be of 45,000 tons each.

With the House in recess and the Senate adjourning early, Congressional activity was limited mainly to committee meetings. Members of the House Naval Affairs Committee after hearing testimony on a proposed major supply base on San Francisco Bay, flew to Quonset Point, R. I., to inspect a site for a naval air base.

The Senate Military Affairs Committee gave approval to a bill designed to improve the morale of the "back-bone of the Army," the noncommissioned officers of long service. It would give the Secretary of War authority to adjust the number of men in each grade and create additional higher ranking billets required by a mechanized Army, it was explained.

Bids Opened for Bombers

At Wright Field, Ohio, Army Air Corps officials opened bids on new-type twin-engined light bombers, which will be produced in great quantities under the air expansion program. The craft will carry batteries of machine guns as well as heavy loads of bombs and attain speeds up to 6 miles a minute, officials said.

Three companies submitted bids ranging from $51,000 a plane, if as many as 2,000 were ordered, to $993,680 for a single plane. They were the Glenn L. Martin Corporation, North American Aviation Corporation, and the Stearman Aircraft Co. Delivery time was set at between 8 and 18 months.

Appeasement Is Scrapped by Chamberlain

Chamberlain

moning home the Ambassador to Berlin, Sir Nevile Henderson, "to report" on events in Czecho-Slovakia.

It was believed Sir Nevile would be kept in England for some time as a protest against the German moves. Britain also was considering acting with France in a joint protest to Berlin.

Predicts 'Regret'

In angry language such as a British prime minister has rarely, if ever, used in condemning another nation, Chamberlain said Germany's invasion of Czecho-Slovakia was in "complete disregard of principles laid down by the German government itself."

He said it had raised this question:

"Is this the end of an old adventure or is it the beginning of a new?"

Responding to a vote of thanks at the end of his speech, the prime minister predicted that Germany "in the end will bitterly regret what her government has done."

Reviewing the assurances he had received from Hitler that Germany did not want any Czechs and recalling that Hitler said last September that the Sudetenland "is the last territorial claim I have to make in Europe," Chamberlain asked bitterly:

"What reliance can we place upon any such assurances that come from the same quarter?

"What has become of those disclaimers of further territorial ambitions?

"If there were disorders (in Czecho-Slovakia recently), were they not fomented from without?

"Freedom Even More"

"Can anyone outside Germany take seriously that there could have been any danger to Germany?

"Is this the last attack upon a small state, or is it to be followed by others

"Is this in fact a step in the direction of any attempt to dominate the world by force?"

In stating Britain would resist any attempt to dominate the world by force, Chamberlain added he was confident he would have not only the support of the whole British Empire "but of all other nations who value peace indeed, but who value freedom even more."

Offers Consultation

After declaring in his speech that Germany's actions raised questions calling for grave consideration among Germany's neighbors and other countries, Chamberlain offered consultation with them.

It was believed he referred not only to Poland, Rumania and Yugoslavia, but also to Soviet Russia, whose favor he has shown signs of trying to court lately after a long period of cooled relations.

Most of the address was later rebroadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation in German, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese.

Conscription Demanded

Chamberlain's speech followed widespread demands in the press for national conscription and for a stronger government to meet new danger.

There have been reports, which have been denied in authoritative quarters, that Chamberlain might resign, turning over the premiership to Viscount Halifax, his foreign secretary, with former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and the veteran conservative Winston Churchill joining the government.

But Chamberlain gave no hint in his speech that because he considered his appeasement policy dead he intended to give up his office.

At the conclusion of his speech, when his audience, the Birmingham Unionist Association, expressed "unabated confidence in his leadership," Chamberlain replied by saying "the road of the peacemaker is often a rough one."

Reaction in Prague

Prague (Saturday), March 18 (U.P.). British Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech denouncing Germany was interpreted by German army officers here tonight to mean that Chamberlain had abandoned his "appeasement" program and that henceforth there would be an unbridled race between British rearmament and German "expansionism."

The Chamberlain speech and the recall of the British Ambassador to Berlin were seen as injecting the western democracies forcefully into the center of events in middle Europe.

U. S. Denounces Nazi Invasion of Czecho-Slovakia as 'Wanton' And Abrogates Trade Treaty for All of the Area Annexed

Statement Is Made By Welles After He Sees Roosevelt

State

ferred to frequent past declarations that only through international support of a program of "order based on law can world peace be assured."

"This Government," he continued, "founded upon and dedicated to the principle of human liberty and of democracy, cannot refrain from making known this country's condemnation of the acts which have resulted in the temporary extinguishment of the liberties of a free and independent people with whom, from the day when the Republic of Czecho-Slovakia attained its independence, the people of the United States have maintained specially close and friendly relations.

"The position of the Government of the United States has been made consistently clear. It has emphasized the need for respect for the sanctity of treaties and of the pledged word and for non-intervention by any nation in the domestic affairs of other nations; and it has on repeated occasions expressed its condemnation of a policy of military aggression.

"Wanton Lawlessness"

"It is manifest that acts of wanton lawlessness and of arbitrary force are threatening world peace and the very structure of modern civilization. The imperative need for the observance of the principles advocated by this Government has been clearly demonstrated by the developments which have taken place during the past three days."

Questioned immediately as to his use of the words "temporary extinguishment" Welles declined to elaborate saying the statement spoke for itself and the interpreting must be done by those present. Later, however, it was explained at the State Department that the phrase was intended to convey this Government's refusal to recognize either directly or indirectly the legitimacy of the acquisition of the Czechs' territory by Germany.

As if to emphasize that the United States was acting entirely independently in the matter, Welles said no communications on the subject had passed betwen this and any other government.

Trade Pact Restricted

Restriction of the reciprocal trade agreement with Czecho-Slovakia was announced a few hours later by the Treasury which said it had been notified that "in view of the recent military occupation of the Provinces of Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia, of Czecho-Slovakia, by German armed forces and the assumption of control over those areas by German authorities," the State Department "is constrained by force of the foregoing circumstances to regard the above-mentioned provinces as now being under the de facto administration of the German authorities . . ."

The State Department, in its notice, made plain however, that it was "not recognizing any legal basis for the assumption of so-called 'protection' over this territory . . ."

Territory German

The Treasury thereupon ordered that "products of areas mentioned exported from any country on or after March 18, 1939, shall be regarded as products of Germany for the purposes of the marking provisions of the tariff act of 1930 and for determining applicable rates of duty."

Welles' letter to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said "you will later be advised as to the Province of Carpatho-Ukraine or Ruthenia."

It was made clear by officials that the trade agreement itself was not scrapped; its tariff concessions by this country being lifted only from the exports of the areas under German control. W. R. Johnson, Customs Bureau attorney, said the agreement itself was not abrogated. Benefits accruing to other countries through the "most-favored nation" clause will remain in effect.

Hans Thomsen, Charge d'Affaires of the German Embassy, last night called on Welles and presented a formal notice from his government that Germany had absorbed Bohemia and Moravia. No mention was made of Slovakia, which at present is occupying a somewhat different position with relation to Germany than the two other provinces. However, it was considered likely that a later notice would cover the position of Slovakia.

No Formal Break

Despite all these tension-breeding activities, there still was no indication that a formal rupture of diplomatic relations was considered, but Germany's campaign of this week has made even more uncertain than it was previously the date on which resumption of normal relations may be looked for.

For months each country has had its Ambassador to the other at home for "consultation."

Pittman Statement

Senator Pittman's statement declared the views expressed by Welles constituted "a pronouncement of the policy and attitude of the President, our Government, and every informed, patriotic citizen of the United States."

He declared "Fuehrer Hitler by this last act has confirmed his deception of Mr. Chamberlain, has made clear his fanatical ambition and intention to dominate everywhere that conspiracy and military force can accomplish such purpose."

"It is evident," he said further, "that the three totalitarian powers are acting under a perfect understanding. Suggestions with regard to the danger of Latin-American republics may not now be derided.

"It is evident to me that, in acting for our own defense in the most serious situation that ever faced us, we must not delay in preparations for potential political and physical action."

"Uncivilized," Says King

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, spoke in the Senate along the same lines and was more emphatic in talking with reporters off the floor.

"We should have no dealings with a barbarous, cruel despot," he declared. "He has demonstrated he is outside the pale of civilized government."

Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Democratic leader, said:

"No part of the world can avoid being concerned. If we are unconcerned, it would be equivalent to saying we are uninterested in international law."

He heartily indorsed Welles' statement.

From the Republican side came this declaration from Senator Capper, of Kansas, regarding Welles' statement:

"We'll all agree on that. This country will all be behind him on it."

Hurban May Stay

One effect of the Welles statement, it was observed, probably would be retention for the time being of the Czecho-Slovakian Legation here by Minister Vladimir Hurban, who has held to the property in a dramatic stand against German representatives who have sought to take it over.

Hurban yesterday received a cable from former Foreign Minister Chvalkovsky directing him to surrender the legation and Czech consulates in this country to German Embassy officials, but he replied by denying constitutionality of the Czech President's submission to Hitler.

It was pointed out here that Harban's retention of the legation and his continued recognition as minister by this country probably would make it impossible for Germany to obtain the gold and credits of Czecho-Slovakia in this country, since the recognized minister's signature probably would be required for any transfer of the wealth.

President Roosevelt would not go into details on his belief that the neutrality act should be revised, but referred to his message to Congress on the state of the Nation, delivered January 4. In that message he said:

"We have learned that when we deliberately try to legislate neutrality, our neutrality laws may operate unevenly and unfairly—may actually give aid to an aggressor and deny it to the victim.

"The instinct of self-preservation should warn us that we ought not to let that happen any more."

Pittman Calls Meeting

In the same message he declared: "There are many methods short of war, but stronger and more effective than mere words, of bringing home to aggressor governments the aggregate sentiment of our own people."

Later yesterday Senator Pittman called a meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee for March 22 to consider the situation.

Acting Postmaster General Howes announced that mail still in this country and addressed to Czecho-Slovakia would be held at New York for four days, while that on ships would be taken to the American Embassy in Paris. Those desiring return of posted matter—chiefly, it is believed, businessmen desiring to recall contracts or other business papers—will be required to notify their local postmasters by March 21, and bear the cost of the matter's return.

Byrd Accuses Reserve Board Of Propaganda

Publicized Eccles' Spending Ideas, He Says In Merger Fight

Offices

Congress with power to block a reorganization plan. The Sumners method only narrowly missed House approval.

Senator Byrd assailed Eccles in the Senate for alleged "reckless waste and thriftlessness" theories as a prelude to a Senate vote on the Virginian's amendment to require the President to "be guided by motives of retrenchment and economy" in promulgating any reorganization plan.

The Byrd-Eccles duel, which has continued for weeks in sharp exchanges of correspondence and in radio addresses, reached its climax in yesterday's charge that Eccles is using Federal Reserve board publications to express "deficit spending" views.

"The March bulletin of the Federal Reserve board carries the statement that a 'lifetime growth in business activity' depends with other factors upon 'greater public expenditures for construction or other purposes,'" Byrd told the Senate.

Senator Is "Amazed"

"It is to me little short of amazing that the Federal Reserve system, established to protect the financial stability of our country, should, in the face of our colossal and increasing debt, use its great influence to encourage further government extravagances and greater Federal debts."

"Such use to "exploit the fallacious views of its chairman cannot fail to injure the capacity of this agency of the Government at this perilous time to perform the functions for which it was created," the Senator asserted.

He called upon Chairman Eccles "to state whether this recommendation for greater deficit spending was the decision of the members of the board or whether he is using the facilities of the Federal Reserve system as an agency of propaganda to promote his own fiscal views regarding which so much publicity has lately been given."

Linking the Congressional economy drive to the reorganization issue, Byrd pointed out that the pending bill gives the President power to reduce the number of Federal functions as well as agencies, and thus "offers the opportunity substantially to reduce Federal expenditures."

In granting the President this power, Byrd argued Congress "can very properly direct that retrenchment begin as an approach to a balanced budget." He contended retrenchment had "best come by executive leadership."

Efficiency vs. Economy

The Administration has placed emphasis on "efficiency" rather than economy objectives of reorganization and the President has said that substantial economies would not be possible under any reorganization plan. The compromise merger bill passed by the House placed emphasis on economy and Byrd now is seeking to make it the major goal. The Senate vote on his amendment next week may be tantamount to a roll call of economy strength in the Senate.

Predicting the Government will spend this fiscal year $9,500,000, Byrd pointed to the President's $7,000,000,000 annual budget goal of a year ago and said even the latter figure is twice as much as was spent in the prosperous post-war years between 1920 and 1930.

"I well know that our Nation can never return to the Federal expenditures of the pre-depression days, but we cannot operate for too long, without disaster, a government costing more than the ability of the people to pay," Byrd said. He said the Nation now has the largest debt, the highest expenditures and the second largest taxation in its peacetime history. He said it would take 56 years to reduce the debt to its 1931-32 figure if the budget were balanced now and $500,000,000 paid every year on the debt.

Senate division on the Wheeler amendment last night was so close that both sides assented to a recess for a canvass of strength. The outcome was said to hinge on four or five votes of Senators now "noncommittal."

Senator McCarran said he would offer amendments to exempt from reorganization the new Civil Aeronautics Commission and the Employes Compensation Commission. The Amreican Federation of Labor is behind the latter proposal.

Miss Helen Wilson, of Philadelphia, long a friend of Mrs. Stinson, supported this statement yesterday.

"She did not look natural," said Miss Wilson, adding that Mrs. Stinson seemed under the control of Jessica Shoemaker, her nurse who, she charged, plotted with Stinson to bring about the marriage.

Mrs. Stinson's attorneys, A. K. Shipe and Alvin K. Newmyer, said they thought her case would be through about next Wednesday. Stinson will present a week and a half of testimony supporting his theory of the marriage. He claims the wealthy widow ran after him and forced money on him.

Nazis Exceed U. S. in Air in South America

But Americans Are Planning to Regain Lead, Mason Says

G. Grant Mason, jr., of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, last night told the Society of Automotive Engineers, meeting in the Hotel Washington, that some of the most modern and efficient airplanes in the world soon will be used on United States airways between American republics.

"We have," he said, "accepted the challenge of European operators in Latin America."

A conference is to be held soon with representatives of the Canada Government to smooth out problems involved in Canadian-United States travel, "and we anticipate no obstacles," he added.

At an early date a hearing will be held on the application of Pan-American Airways for a license to start transatlantic flights with the huge "Yankee Clipper." The American Export Lines will start survey flights soon with a view to establishing a transatlantic route also, Mason stated.

Reasons for stepping-up American activity are dangers created by development of airplanes and lines by Germany and Italy, not only in a political and military way, but commercially, he pointed out.

"Last fall in Munich," Mason said with reference to the political use of airplanes, "we witnessed the astounding spectacle of a German nation with 'flying aces' in a 'full house' of airplanes taking the pot.

"Several weeks ago the authority completed detailed study of all international airline operations in Latin America. Italy intends inaugurating air services in the near future from Rome to South America to connect with existing Italian services there. And the Germans alone are operating somewhat over 12 per cent more route miles in South America than do our own carriers."

Mason reported also that exports of the totalitarian states have increased many fold to Latin American countries, whereas aviation exports of the United States to the same countries have increased only slightly. Also their pilots and technicians are unofficial but nonetheless effective representatives of their governments, he declared.

"Germany, in particular," he emphasized, "prides herself on the training in diplomacy, languages, and economic and social philosophy which she requires for persons going to Latin America to accept such positions . . ."

Roosevelts Mark Anniversary Apart

It was on St. Patrick's Day, 1905 in New York, that Franklin D Roosevelt married his distant cousin, Eleanor Roosevelt, who was given in wedlock by her uncle, President Theodore Roosevelt.

Yesterday the President and First Lady celebrated their thirty-fourth wedding anniversary apart.

They exchanged felicitations by telephone.

G. O. P. Drives To Modify Business Taxes

Taxes

the dollar, but predicted the $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund would be extended.

Jenkins, a ranking Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, introduced his tax bill after consulting G. O. P. leaders. He served notice he would offer his measure as a substitute for any Administration measure that would call for a higher maximum corporate tax.

"The 22 per cent maximum corporate tax suggested by Administration leaders as a substitute for the present New Deal business repressive taxes is too high," Jenkins said. "Businessmen have been punished too long to accept any sugar-coated promises at this time. If President Roosevelt would economize on expenditures, my tax proposal would bring in sufficient revenue."

17½ Per Cent Maximum

Jenkins proposed a 13½ per cent tax on corporations earning $5,000 or less; 15 per cent between $5,000 and $25,000, and 17½ per cent on those earning more than $25,000, as against the present 16½ to 19 per cent undistributed profits levy, the $1 a $1,000 capital stock, and excess profits taxes.

In rejecting the proposal to blanket under the social security act 3,000,000 farm workers, 2,200,000 domestics and 800,000 employes of nonprofit and charitable organizations, the Ways and Means Committee, dealt the Administration a rebuff. Incidentally, it speeded up consideration of the proposed social security amendments, but the committee has yet to pass on the Townsend old-age pension plan.

The committe received a blanket indictment of the social security reserve fund from John T. Flynn, a writer on economics. He charged:

"The theory is that in four years there will be $47,000,000,000 somewhere which will be a 'reserve' which can be used to pay pensions if it is needed. But this reserve is a fiction. It will not exist. It will be gone. It will have been spent by the Government."

Flynn charged the tax now is 400 per cent higher than necessary for benefits paid, asserted it will be six times higher next year, and by 1950 "will be extortionate."

"By 1980, the Government will have collected 111 billions, and will have paid out only 47 billions, making it compulsory to raise additional taxes to pay pensions and interest. Forty-three per cent will be used to "buy battleships, build roads and pay the general expenses of the Government," Flynn asserted.

He advocated a pay-as-you-go policy on old-age pensions.

New Building Dedication Set At Woodside

Petworth Methodists To Lay Cornerstone Of Educational Unit

Highlighting Methodist programs here tomorrow will be dedication of the new $60,000 Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, Silver Spring, with Bishop Edwin H. Hughes delivering the main address and conducting the service of dedication, to begin at 11 a. m.

Woodside also will rededicate the pipe organ and the new chimes at 4 p. m., Dr. G. Ellis Williams, superintendent of the Washington district, preaching.

The afternoon program will open with an organ recital by Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, organist, at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, and wife of the chaplain of the House of Representatives, Dr. James Shera Montgomery, who will offer devotions.

Situated at 8814 Georgia avenue, the new building is of American colonial architecture, and its spire rises 92 feet above the floor of the nave.

Dr. Ralph Dela Smith, assigned to the parish in 1922, is a graduate of Syracuse University, Drew Theological Seminary and holds the master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees from American University.

While Woodside is celebrating, the Petworth Methodists will be laying the cornerstone of their new $50,000 educational building at Grant Circle and New Hampshire avenue northwest.

Leaders of the church organizations and three charter members—Mrs. C. E. Reed, W. T. Bair and Thomas A. Towner—will join in the Petworth occasion, set to begin at 11 a. m. Dr. G. Ellis William will speak. Dr. Frank Steelman is pastor.

Later in the day, Bishop Hughes—doing "iron-man" duty—will again speak at Trinity Methodist Church, where, at 8 p. m., the Grand Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star will assemble for worship, with the Rev. John C. Palmer, D. D., grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge, F. A. A. M., presiding.

Hamline. "The America's Need of a Dictator—What Kind?" will be Dr. H. W. Burgan's theme at 11 a. m. Young people will conduct the evening service, Howard Stingle presiding.

Chevy Chase. The Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch will discuss "Blessed Are the Merciful" at 11 a. m.

Foundry. "The Alpha and the Omega" and "Friendly Foes" will be Dr. Frederick Brown Harris' morning and evening topics, respectively. Dr. Eddy L. Ford, director of religious education, will address the Foundry Forge at 6:30 p. m.

McKendree. The Rev. Samuel E. Rose will speak in the Masonic Hall at Rhode Island and Mills avenues northeast at 11 a. m. on "The Victor's Crown." An informal song-service is set for 8 p. m.

Wesley. "The Cross and Atonement" will be the Rev. J. Luther Neff's theme at the 11 a. m. service.

Metropolitan Memorial. The fourth of a series of sermons on "Discipleship," Dr. William Andrew Keese will discuss "The Sustaining Motive," at 11 a. m.

Eldbrooke. The Rev. Walter M. Michael will speak at 11 a. m. on "Moving Toward a Better Life." The Rev. John Grose will be guest preacher in the evening.

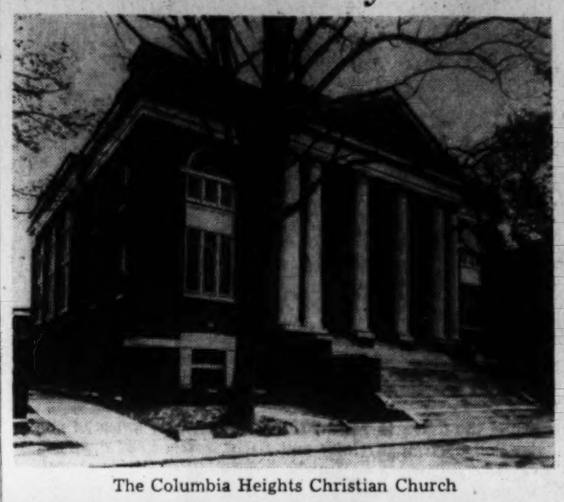
Columbia Heights to Remodel Classrooms of Sunday School



The Columbia Heights Christian Church

Project Will Enlarge Facilities Two-Thirds Although Using Same Space; Church Auditorium Also to Be Redecorated

Taking another progressive step in its short but busy life, Columbia Heights Christian Church last night announced plans for entirely revamping the Sunday School lower department classrooms to accommodate the growing membership. Dr. William L. Hill is director of religious education.

Expected to begin this summer, the project will provide, through better arrangement of present space facilities, at least two-thirds more room for the children from the Cradle Roll to the Junior High School age groups. To cost $1,500, the work will include redecorating the church auditorium.

Financing is to be done over a two-year period, according to the Rev. Arthur P. Wilson, pastor, who will oversee the project with the assistance of Roy L. Harlow, chairman of the finance committee, and Archibald Kenyon, chairman of the house committee.

Rev. Mr. Wilson (pastor)

The quarters also will furnish space for many new members being enrolled through the "Christ Centered-Crusade," now in progress, which closes May 28.

The drive is the Columbia Heights Christian Church's contribution to the Disciples of Christ denominational campaign for 100,000 new members through "personal evangelism," with individuals pledging to bring at least one new convert "into the fold."

Mrs. Collins (choir leader)

A feature of the "Crusade" will be the appearance on Easter night of Ardis Alling, of New York, religious dramatist, who formerly lived in the Holy Land. She will present sacred sketches.

The Columbia Heights congregation, whose church is on Park road, near Fourteenth street northwest, has many and energetic groups of workers, among them Boy Scout Troop 69, one of the two largest and most active units in the Washington area. Thomas King is scoutmaster.

Edmonston. Don Creech (youth leader)

There is also the choir, with Mrs. William Collins as leader and Mrs. Esther Barrett as organist; the Woman's Council, of which Mrs. Walter Metz is chairman; the Bagby Christian Endeavor Society, led by Donald G. Creech, an American University student, and the High-School-Age Endeavorers, led by Marjorie Preston.

Among other interesting people attending the church are Arthur Ridgway, chairman of the board of elders, and Maj. Walter Metz, head of the official board, and an employe of the Veterans' Administration.

Miss Preston (girls' leader)

Australian by birth, the Rev. Mr. Wilson held pastorates in Kentucky and Indiana prior to coming to Columbia Heights five years ago. A graduate of Adelaide College, South Australia, he has lived in America for 20 years.

Columbia Heights Christian Church was organized February 26, 1916, with 48 members. Ironically, its first pastor, the Rev. E. B. Bagby, died on the day the foundation of the present building was laid. It was dedicated April 16, 1922, during the pastorate of the Rev. B. H. Melton, who was succeeded by the Rev. Harvey Baker Smith.

Dr. R. Miller's Topic Is 'What Hinders Me?'

He Will Give Sermon At National City Christian Church

4 Cathedral Clerics Will Visit Churches

Bishop Freeman to Confirm Class at College Park

The staff of Washington Cathedral will furnish four guest speakers, headed by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, for morning services in Episcopal churches of Washington and vicinity tomorrow.

Bishop Freeman will be out at St. Andrew's Church, College Park, Md., to administer the rite of confirmation to a class of adults and children prepared by the Rev. R. L. Wolven, minister in charge, at 11 a. m.

At the same time the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Cathedral, will be preaching at St. Paul's Church, Rock Creek Parish, following a reception to be tendered him by 500 children of the church school at 9:30 a. m. He will address the school on the Lenten theme of "Missions."

Also at 11 a. m. the Rev. William Bradner, canon precentor of the Cathedral, will conduct services and preach at the Church of the Transfiguration, where the Rev. J. J. Queally is rector.

At the Chapel of the Redeemer, in Glen Echo, Md., at the 9:30 a. m. service the guest speaker will be the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, D. D., canon of the Cathedral.

St. John's. "Christ the Prophet" is to be the subject of the Rev. William Curtis White's sermon at 9:30 a. m. The Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton will preach at 11 o'clock.

There will be celebrations of the Holy Communion at 8 and 9:30 a. m. and the St. John's Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will hold its monthly Corporate Communion at the early celebration.

At 8 p. m. there will be a special service of "The Church Year in Hymns" under the direction of the Rev. Nathaniel C. Acton, who will give a brief explanation of the meaning of the season before the singing of each hymn.

What do Americans think about their churches?

Tying in with President Roosevelt's repeated references to the relationship between religion and democracy, the Gallup Poll made a Nation-wide survey to learn how much interest there is in churches and religion. The results will be published tomorrow. This Gallup Poll shows what could be done to increase interest in churches, whether or not people listen to radio sermons, whether interest in churches has been rising or falling—and other questions.

Ballou Bars School Hall to Miss Anderson

Action Follows Exchange Over Terms With Howard U.

School Superintendent Frank W. Ballou yesterday informed the Howard University School of Music that its "conditional acceptance" of the Marian Anderson decision was "in reality a refusal," and made Central High School auditorium "unavailable" for the colored contralto's Easter Sunday concert.

In a tersely phrased two-page letter, addressed to Charles C. Cohen, chairman of the university's concert series committee, Ballou declared "responsibility" for making the auditorium "unavailable . . . must be assumed by you and your associates at Howard University."

Ballou's action followed a letter sent the board by Cohen March 9, which "gratefully accepted" the use of the Central auditorium, but took exception to the statement of the board which asserted the decision was not to set a precedent of permanent departure from the District's dual school system.

At Wednesday's board meeting the matter was turned over to Ballou, as administrative officer.

Cohen's letter of acceptance stated that Howard University wished it "plainly understood that . . . it does not agree to the conditions or implications" of the board's decision.

The board March 3 rescinded its original action in denying the use of Central auditorium to Miss Anderson after its refusal and that of Constitution Hall by D. A. R. officials had raised a storm of protest.

Ballou's letter points out that the board's provision that the "unusual procedure" in granting Howard University the use of the auditorium not be construed as a precedent was in concurrence with suggestions of university authority.

His letter reads in part:

"Acquiescence in these conditions (that the decision not be construed as a precedent) was necessary in order to secure six votes of the board to suspend the rules and authorize the use of Central High School auditorium for the Marian Anderson concert.

"In view of these facts it is part of the action of the board in obvious that it was the expectation of the board that you would assent to these conditions which were agreed to and became an essential making it possible for you to use the Central High School Auditorium. It is obvious, therefore, that your 'acceptance' of the use of the Central High School Auditorium without agreement to the conditions was in reality not an acceptance but a refusal."

The President Can Help

In a democracy, vital issues can be properly decided only after full and free discussion. Therefore the supplementary report from the Citizens' Efficiency Committee is a welcome addition to the current debate on reorganization of the District government. It presents a viewpoint shared by many citizens. It is the product of a careful study by men and women who have the welfare of the community at heart.

The only unfortunate aspect of this revival of a report which the District Commissioners had shunted aside is the suggestion that it is to be used to discourage action on the Griffenhagen reorganization plan. When controversy over legislation arises within the community, Congress is often disposed to pigeon-hole it. Unanimous local support for any one plan would have greatly improved the chances of securing modernization of Washington's hodgepodge political system.

Since agreement has not been attained, however, the only reasonable alternative is to work out differences where possible and to compromise where necessary to get some feasible plan adopted. The gulf between the Griffenhagen and Prettyman plans is by no means unbridgeable. Indeed, the citizens' group reports that "in most of its general principles it (the Griffenhagen report) is identical with the report which we submitted December 13, 1937."

What is most needed is an attitude of patience along with active interest on the part of Congress. Fortunately Representative Kennedy, chairman of the reorganization subcommittee, seems willing to work the issue out in spite of present difficulties. In that effort he will have the support of a great majority of Washington residents and that of all members of Congress who do not like to be annoyed by minor community problems that should be settled at the District Building.

At this moment, when new impetus is especially needed to keep the reorganization movement progressing, a few words of support from President Roosevelt would be especially helpful. The President has announced that the vacancy in the Board of Commissioners will not be filled until the reorganization question is settled. That statement by itself might be taken to suggest an indifference which, there is good reason to believe, the President does not actually feel. A word from the White House at this juncture might easily mark the difference between success or failure in the present effort to improve the District's governmental system.

No Voice Of Washington

It is easy to sympathize with Representative Nichols' challenging attitude toward some of the delegations appearing before his subcommittee to testify on the local tax bill. When numerous organizations representing Washington citizens present their views on subjects of this sort, Congressmen find it very difficult to determine what the majority of local residents want. Even when they are fully disposed to follow local opinion, therefore, they are left with the dilemma of weighing one plea against another.

Some well intentioned civic leaders, moreover, probably take advantage of this situation to exaggerate the number of citizens for whom they speak. In cases of this sort Congressmen may reasonably ask what the membership of the organization is and what procedure has been used to obtain an expression of opinion from these members. No reasonable objection can be raised to sincere congressional efforts to learn how much backing is accorded any viewpoint on local issues.

On the other hand, Representative Nichols ought to realize that the denial of suffrage to the District creates a most serious problem for civic organizations attempting to fill the void resulting from this status. No agency is competent to speak for the District of Columbia. Certainly the Board of Commissioners appointed by the President cannot be trusted to express the wishes of local residents. That task devolves upon the citizens' associations, the Board of Trade and numerous special organizations, many of them set up for the particular purpose of influencing legislation which they believe to be in the public interest.

Actually the unsatisfactory situation of which Mr. Nichols complains traces back to the fact that Washington has no government of its own worthy of the name. Mr. Nichols ought to realize that District citizens are far more perturbed than he is over their inability to say plainly and conclusively what they, as a community, want. So long as the voice of Washington is never heard, it is of little avail to complain over the conflicting claims of citizen groups. The real problem is to create a local government that, in some measure at least, will represent those governed and will not have to split hairs before overworked congressional committees to obtain what other cities provide for themselves.

The Reaction Begins

Czecho-Slovakia has been swept away. But the manner of its destruction is unifying the hostility to Hitler, is welding the world-wide opposition to Nazi Germany, in a way which a lesser sacrifice would not have accomplished. In its death the republic of Masaryk and Benes may yet do even more for human liberties than was accomplished in its 20 years of independence.

The gathering force of outraged civilization was demonstrated yesterday by two notable events, on the two sides of the Atlantic. Here in Washington the Government of the United States issued a statement which in effect refuses to recognize the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia. And last night, in Birmingham, England, Prime Minister Chamberlain dramatically divorced himself from the policy of appeasement and called upon the self-governing dominions to rally behind Great Britain for the defense of those fundamental Anglo-Saxon traditions which are now so clearly menaced.

Officially, Germany is laughing, rather uneasily, at the recall of the British Ambassador from Berlin. Comparing it with the earlier recall of Ambassador Wilson to Washington the Nazi press observes that "not the slightest change in the situation is brought about thereby." That is the attitude to be expected from those who respect only force. But it will not be easy for Berlin to treat other developments yesterday so derisively.

One that will be hard to laugh off is the official announcement, voiced by the Acting Secretary of State, that the annexation of Czecho-Slovakia is viewed here as a "temporary extinguishment of the liberties of a free and independent people." In other words, the United States does not recognize this seizure, in contradistinction to that of Austria, as valid. Among other important consequences this action is tantamount to indorsing the courageous refusal of the Czecho-Slovak Minister, Mr. Vladimir Hurban, to turn his legation over to German control. The flag of Czecho-Slovakia is still entitled to fly in Washington, if not in Prague.

Also beyond the Nazi sense of humor, if it is allowed publication in Germany, will be the implications of the impressive speech in which Neville Chamberlain last night analyzed the deceitful record of the Fuehrer. In asking whether anyone can longer place confidence in any pledge of the present German government, the British Prime Minister himself answered the question in the negative. And it is no laughing matter when the responsible executive of the British Empire publicly denounces the ruler of Germany as a liar.

Neville Chamberlain last night made clear that if there is another governmental airplane flight to Munich soon, he will not be the passenger. And he further made clear that any planes making such a flight are likely to carry baggage less innocuous than umbrellas. The intimations of his speech were in no way hidden, and in no way weakened, because couched in the restrained language of a cultured English gentleman.

It could not have been an easy speech for Mr. Chamberlain to make. He had to admit that he has been tricked and deceived by Hitler; that he has made the mistake of regarding the Fuehrer as a man of honor. But his frank and honest assessment of the situation was the more telling because he faced the issue squarely. And his admission of mistake makes him a stronger, rather than a weaker leader. Chamberlain will have behind him now not merely those English who mistrusted Hitler from the beginning. He will also have the support of all who wanted to be friends with Nazi Germany and who know now that friendship with such people is impossible.

The domestic unity which may now be expected in England will doubtless be paralleled by a unity of action, with respect to opposing Nazi imperialism effectively, among all the democracies. It is, perhaps, still too early to consider an extension of that military co-ordination which the French and British are working out in detail. But it is not a minute too early, as President Roosevelt said yesterday, to proceed to a revision of the neutrality legislation which will remove the impression, strong in Germany, that the United States still makes no distinctions between an aggressor and his victim.

After the official statement yesterday, denouncing the current "acts of wanton lawlessness," it is absurd to leave the neutrality legislation in a form which seems to sanction precisely that. Indeed, until the neutrality law has been eliminated, or at least revised, it will remain inaccurate to say, as did the statement by Mr. Welles, that "the position of the Government of the United States (with respect to aggression) has been made consistently clear."

Symbol Of Permanency

The RFC's ingenious building project has been sharply criticized because it will bring large fees amounting to several hundred thousand dollars into the coffers of private construction firms with which two former PWA officials are connected. Moreover, these fortunate firms run no risk of loss because the same Federal agency which has provided most of the money for construction has agreed to occupy the building either as tenant or owner. It is indeed a happy arrangement for the private interests concerned. But that does not prevent its being a more convenient and probably a more economical arrangement for the RFC, now housed in scattered and inadequate quarters.

The RFC is supposed to be a temporary agency and was recently given a new provisional lease on life until 1941. Hence it might seem rash to expend several million dollars to house its employes. Mr. Jones has anticipated such criticism by explaining that when the RFC no longer needs the space, the building can easily be rented for an amount sufficient to pay interest and amortization on the RFC mortgage.

There are no present indications, however, that the RFC is headed for speedy oblivion, as appeared to be the case when President Roosevelt ordered it to stop lending in the fall of 1937. That order was soon rescinded, and in the 11 months following the RFC authorized nearly $1,000,000,000 in loans.

Recently Mr. Jones told the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency that he thought Government lending should be continued on a temporary basis. But he added immediately: "There may always be some loans that the Government can make that private money could not afford to go into." Urged to state the conditions that would, in his opinion, warrant liquidation of the RFC, Mr. Jones replied enigmatically that "it depends entirely on the adjustment of the entire social situation and the international situation."

So it is not surprising that Chairman Jones wishes to find new and commodious quarters where his RFC employes can transact business in peace and comfort for unnumbered years to come.

It Was Loaded

Joseph Tiso didn't know it was loaded.

All the Slovak premier and his colleagues wanted was protection from the big, bad Czechs who had shown a disposition to interfere with the plans of establishing an independent Slovakia by promptly kicking the conspirators out of office.

So Tiso went, hat in hand, to his great and good friend, Adolf Hitler. "In supreme confidence in you, the leader and Chancellor of the German Reich," the Slovak leaders informed the Fuehrer, "the Slovak state places itself under your protection."

Such child-like confidence is rare in a suspicious world. But the Slovaks are a romantic people. Lambs, they placed themselves in the mouth of the lion. Yes, said Hitler to them, I'll give you all the protection you want. Wait and see. So happy Premier Tiso and his colleagues returned to Bratislava to establish the independent Republic of Slovakia.

It lasted for two days. When Hitler said protection, he meant protection. The Slovaks are to be protected against themselves as well as against the Czechs, against any wish for either independence or autonomy and against any possibility that they might change their minds. Thus, in securing their independence, the Slovaks lost it.

Now Sano Mach, former propaganda minister in the Slovak cabinet, feels there must have been some mistake. Hitler, he says, obviously "misunderstood" Tiso's telegram. Maybe. Certainly there can be no doubt that Tiso misunderstood Hitler. Innocent child, he had been unwittingly playing with a loaded gun. Brandishing it had given him a sense of power. But he didn't know it was loaded, so when he pulled the trigger he blew his nation's head off.

Now he knows better. But it's too late for him. It's too late for Slovakia. And it is too late for Bohemia and Moravia as well.

"With every breath you take, the Government spends $1,000," declares a statistician. We sighed when we read that, and while we were sighing the Government spent $2,000.

A man on exhibition at a carnival can turn his head completely around. This may be the first case in evidence of nature's evolving a pedestrian fit for survival.

A Buffalo man has recently made five unsuccessful attempts to kill himself. It is understood he is very despondent over these failures.

"Via Petticoat Lane"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Not only the Republicans must gleefully chuckle over the faux pas made by the Administration, via Petticoat Lane, in the Doris Stevens-Mary Winslow fracas. The Latin Americans who must bow and scrape to the Great Colossus of the North because they need loans and what not are chortling secretly over the tempest stirred up in this peace-promoting country.

It's human nature to snicker when one sees a big bully tripped and falling into a pit in his own back yard. A smart bully will climb out quickly and avoid that spot in the future. But it's hard luck for him when his own family begins digging fresh pits in his yard.

Wouldn't you think that the Roberts pit and the Amlie pit, the Tydings and the George and the Cotton Smith pits would be enough warning? JANE HOLLIDAY.

The Extinction Of Czecho-Slovakia

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As I read the last heart-breaking accounts of the final dissolution of the gallant little republic of Czecho-Slovakia I cannot fail to recall those deep and moving lines of the poet Wordsworth "On the Extinction of the Venetian Republic"

"Men are we, and must grieve when even the shade
Of that which was great, is passed away."

For with the death of the Czech nation the spirit of something great has passed from among us. In a day of intolerance and bigotry, when other nations were reverting to the ethics of the jungle, it furnished a striking example of how even the most formidable problems can be solved by reason and good will. In a day when newer democracies were busily "burying the stinking corpse of freedom," and the older democracies were cynically abandoning themselves to a reign of the most disgusting hedonism, no nation in the world preserved in a purer form those great ideals of freedom and justice to all men which are the very bone and marrow of democracy.

Today the name of Czecho-Slovakia has vanished from the map of Europe. As to whether any concerted effort on the part of the western democracies would have saved it, men will never know. Certainly this Nation of all nations has no right to blame anyone. A country whose chief contributions to the settlement of world difficulties has consisted of nothing better than the Smoot-Hawley tariff, the Johnson act and the present neutrality law is by no means in any position to chide other powers for failing in upholding the responsibilities of world democracy.

The time for recrimination is past. Every hour the tide of Fascism rises higher, and every hour a timid and degenerate civilization sacrifices another portion of that priceless heritage for which brave men throughout the centuries have dreamed, and sometimes died.

But any race that has cherished freedom for as long as the Czechs, and has used the treasure so wisely for the short time it was theirs, cannot forever remain in subjection. "For though they digged up his body, burned his bones and drowned his ashes, yet the word of God, and the truth of his doctrine, with the fruit and success thereof, they could not burn."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Those of use who are gazing today with pop-eyed absorption at the spectacle in central Europe, are certainly witnessing something unexampled in world history since civilization had its birth pangs down in the Sumerian delta. The phenomenon that staggers us is that of "Conquest by Invitation." It is unique—it is fascinating.

Hitler, the undisputed master of Europe (and the isles appertaining thereto) is proceeding from colossal triumph to colossal triumph. But every new territorial swoop and lunge and grab is the result, we are assured, of a special, cordial invitation. Hitler was invited into Austria—he was invited into the Sudeten areas—he has now been invited into Bohemia and Moravia. And the Fuehrer—genial, gay, good-hearted and gregarious—just can't find it in his heart to decline these warm and pressing "invites." A great man for "partying," this Brown Shirt from Braunau—always graciously responding to these urgent, joyous "bids" for the pleasure of his presence.

And is he the life of the party! Boy, that Hitler knows how to "swing it!" Loads of excitement. A titillating round of novelties and specialties, to stir the blood of every jitterbug. A great mixer, Adolf. When he accepts these "invitations" he always knows how to "stroke people the right way." (Oh, sure he does—like John Steinbeck's "Lennie!" That he almost immediately proceeds to break their necks is just too bad, of course——rawther regrettable," as dear old Neville might say).

Of course, Adolf will go right on getting these invitations. Let's guess who will be the next to proffer him an invitation. My guess is:

1. Queen Wilhelmina, the last of the Oranges.

2. Marshal Smigly-Rydz, the first and last successor of the "New Poland's" founder.

3. The president of the Helvetic Confederation, the latest and last successor of William Tell.

Adolf will just love visiting these charming people—always, to be sure, upon explicit invitation, because Adolf is no gate-crasher, no vulgar cutter-inner. Oh no!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To the writer the moves of Germany are not a surprise; this expansion will continue until the Germany of the future will embrace the same territory of the Germanic Empire of the middle ages.

All authorities in history know that for several centuries there existed in Europe a league of nations known as The Holy Roman Empire, and that empire was largely Germanic. The Holy Roman Empire consisted of a league of seven nations, united with and dominated by the church. This union was finally broken up by Napoleon, who in his ambition to establish another world empire failed, but destroyed the Holy Roman Empire.

In the book of Revelations this combination is described and called "the beast," and the prophet John saw that one of the beast's heads was wounded "unto death," but "his deadly wound was healed, and all the world wondered after the beast . . . saying who is able to make war with him?" And this head that was 'wounded unto death" but recovered was and is Germany.

We must look forward to, in the near future, a league of nations, consisting only of the seven great nations of Europe, Germany dominating; a minor league consisting of ten lesser nations, all under the spiritual influence of the papacy, her rightful position. The United States never will, and never can, become a member of that league of nations.

The Public Utilities

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The debate in the House of Representatives before the vote on the committee report, by which it reversed itself on the TVA bill, reflected uncertainty as to how much the TVA would ultimately cost, how far the project is to extend, and as to the basic policy of the Government toward utilities. Questions relating to these points were raised, but were not answered by the sponsors of the bill, and the vote was taken without any decision of the real issues at stake.

Time and again in controversies over the TVA these fundamental questions have been ignored. The questions of the constitutionality of Government competition with private industry and of Government ownership of utilities have been evaded by the Supreme Court. Nor were they settled by the purchase of the utilities by the TVA, widely hailed as a successful termination of the controversy. Government competition with private industry has yet to be outlawed. What the Government can do in the Tennessee Valley, it can do elsewhere, nor has the subject of Government ownership been squarely met.

Do the supporters of the TVA expect to expand it on a Nation-wide scale? Do they contemplate the eventual socialization of all utilities, through a Government program to run the utility companies out of business and then take over their ownership?

These, rather than the purchase price or the appropriations for individual projects, are the fundamental issues.

The question of the utilities is part of the greater question of the relationship between Government and business which must be settled before we can hope to solve the problem of unemployment or achieve recovery. Kind words, assurances of good intentions and vague promises are not enough. Actions have always spoken louder.

A National Guard Armory

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The National Guard of the District, as far as I know, has given a very good account of itself whenever it has been called upon for active duty. When disorders get to a point where the very limited police force in the District finds itself unable to cope with the situation then the National Guard will, doubtless, be expected to take its part in the protection of property and the maintaining of the law. If the guard fails in this those who command it will be held responsible.

However, if the situation which has been assumed in the last paragraph occurs it would be the gravest injustice to hold those in command of the National Guard of the District responsible for any failure to function. Why? Because just a couple of incendiary bombs, or bombs of almost any kind, hurled into that disgraceful old rookery on Pennsylvania avenue where the National Guard has its armory would, in the space of 30 minutes to one hour, destroy all.

It is only one more case of the absurdities indulged in by the citizens of the United States.

During the past 18 months I have seen completed here in North Carolina so very many WPA edifices that the District of Columbia, still without a decent and respectable armory, impresses me with the fact that the reason for this must be because the citizens of the District have no vote, and consequently have no say-so in the affairs of this Nation.

The Post Impressionist

Unlike Unto Like

THE DISCUSSION, concerning social betterment, was very general and threatened to degenerate into a battle royal. The Irrepressible Tompkins and the old Jay-bird, Birdsong, bore their banners aloft and, having advanced serried columns of half-baked facts and problematical figures, appeared ready to come to grips with bayonet and butt. They were emotionally loyal to opposing camps and each believed he was waging the good fight for righteousness and truth. A very dangerous attitude for anyone to assume about anything.

At this point Maj. Nutt threw a little fat into the fire by saying: "Oh, both of you know well enough that poverty, Poverty with a capital P, is really a state of mind. It can never be cured until the minds are cured. Its physical effects may be ameliorated, but the disease itself is radical."

This bare statement brought Colonel Jones into the arena. To me, as the guilty by-stander, Colonel Jones seemed to enter the fray for the sole purpose of raising such a dust that the combatants could see nothing and would be obliged to withdraw, or else run the risk of battering down their own arguments. He said:

"Major, your generalization is one of those glittering half-truths that mislead the unwary and betray the overfaithful. It is not true that poverty is always a state of mind; it is sometimes a physical fact, and a most deplorable one. What is true in your assertion is that there are phases of poverty, there are certain large percentages of the poverty-stricken, in which the mind, the whole expression of the individual, is disordered and can be set straight only after a long time.

"Take the one aim of certain reformers, slum-clearance. Slum-clearance can effect only temporary improvement in the slum-minded. Unless the slum-addict can be taught better manners, the human pig will return to his wallow and his last state will be more degraded than the first. But there are people now compelled to live in slums who, if given the chance, can rise above squalor and filth and it is these who are worth saving by slum-clearance.

So that, granting that the vast majority of the poverty-stricken—and please observe there is a great gulf fixed between the poverty-stricken and the poor—can never be improved by giving them better quarters; it is worth while to get rid of slums for the sake of the small minority who can, and will, be helped by improving their physical surroundings.

"Those who are slum-minded will wreck a palace if put in one; and those who are merely poor will make a hovel as livable as a palace; and in a short while."

"Colonel, do I understand that you are opposed to slum-clearance, as a policy?" I asked.

"If you do, Wade, you are wrong as you frequently are. I am in favor of slum-clearance. But there are certain limitations I would put on the slum-clearers. To be specific: When slums are torn down they should not be replaced by makeshift, jerry-built houses or tenement-apartments. The new structures should be as simple in structure and arrangement as possible; and, within the limits of reasonable economy, should also be practically fireproof, vermin-proof, and vandal-proof. For fire and vermin are the great exterior hazards of the slum-dwellers, and vandalism is his major vice.

You cannot expect the slum-minded to emulate the virtues of the poor—caution, cleanliness, and conservation; for, by his nature, he is careless, filthy, and wasteful. And this leopard cannot change his spots, they must be changed for him. For these reasons I would make his dwelling place noncombustible, easily cleaned, and with as few detachable accessories as may be. I would go further, I would make his tenancy dependent on the regular, weekly inspection of the municipality with respect to plumbing, sanitation, and proper use—and this for the safeguarding of the health and comfort of the slum-dweller as well as of other citizens.

"If you tear down one set of ramshackle, filthy buildings and merely replace them by a set that can develop the same conditions in a short while you have made a change, but it is not for the better."

"Colonel," said Maj. Nutt, "your grandiose scheme for replacing our present disreputable slums with fireproof, vermin-proof, vandal-proof structures would cost too much; we'll have to get along the best we can with less desirable buildings—and reserve them for the poor but honest, if that be possible. And always we must bear in mind that there are, even by the colonel's admission, poverty-stricken, slum-minded individuals in human form who will convert any shelter into a pigpen."

"I am willing to admit," said the colonel, "that my scheme does look forward a little too far; but you must remember first cost is not final cost and my proposal would be cheapest in the end."

"Gentlemen," I broke in, "you are getting into economics, and there I can't follow you. For, like 97 per cent of the race, economics is way over my head. Let me see if I can't get something out of all this: To my mind the most valuable suggestion made by anyone was that the tenancy of any building be made subject to inspection by the municipality as to plumbing, gas and lighting fixtures and the reasonable maintenance of the building.

Perhaps that might as well be extended to cover all dwellings and office structures as well as the houses and tenements of the poor. Certainly such supervision would tend to promote the health and well-being of the community; and, perhaps, it might work out as a device for breaking up vicious gangs."

"Well," chimed in the Irrepressible One, "you have convinced me, and I hope the Jay-bird, too, that the whole matter is individual and peculiar. Why, I know wealthy people who live like hogs in expensive apartments, and I know others who are only saved from squalor by living in hotels where the rooms must be tidied up at least once a day. Gentlemen, we'll have to call it a draw."

Counterclaims

RECENT ADVICES inform your correspondent—some of them with more than a trace of anger—that Gen. Phil Sheridan was an Irishman and that his services to this country, therefore, must be regarded as a contribution by the Emerald Isle. Gen. Lee Bullard and Gen. Hugh Drum are similarly claimed in the upper register of a long list of distinguished individuals which includes John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, James J. Corbett and Gabby Hartnett. The names and careers of the persons cited sum up to a very impressive total in the life of this country, and their subtraction from the score of American achievement and honor would leave the United States much the poorer and Ireland much the gainer.

Recorded information has it, however, that Gen. Sheridan was born in Albany, N. Y., and that Gens. Bullard and Drum are natives, Gen. Drum being, indeed, the son of an American officer who was killed in action in the American war against Spain. Sullivan, Tunney, Corbett and Hartnett also were born and raised in this land, and the feats for which they were famous, barring a few strictly social victories by Mr. Sullivan in London were performed in the Nation of their birth and allegiance.

Claim Called One Of Great Delicacy

THE CLAIM advanced by Irish correspondents, also by an Irish newspaper published in New York, is one of great delicacy, as your correspondent learned last year when he awarded to Italy full credit for the lives and works of a long roll of famous, if not exactly honored, individuals who rose to eminence in the criminal branch of American endeavor.

The Italian Duce's press at the time was berating the United States as a gangster Nation, but, rather oddly, when the deeds of these missionaries were credited to Italy—a generous gesture, one would have thought—there was much indignation against the aspersion on Italian blood and culture. They were, it appeared, Americans, and victims of the corrupt environment of a barbarian country, including even those who joined us in full maturity and hewed, in more than a figurative sense, a place in American hearts.

Now with regard to Gen. Sheridan and the others cited by Irishmen as Irish contributors to the greatness of the United States, the contention is reversed. They were or are, as the case may be, one is heatedly informed, Irishmen, though born here, and their careers belong among the treasures of that great nation.

Pegler Mentions A Few Other Names

SO BE IT, then, but if it be so the list of noted Irish among us must be opened to others who are plainly eligible on the same ground, starting, at random, with the late Boss Dick Croker, of New York. Mr. Croker's career was, in its pecular way, highly successful, but his contribution to the political morals and public welfare of the United States is one which Ireland may not be alert to claim.

Frank Hague, the Mayor of Jersey City, a millionaire by dint of saving on a modest salary, and his precocious son, lately appointed to the highest court in New Jersey, though not long out of law school, are two more who belong to Erin's honor roll by this argument.

To Ireland almost must go credit for the contributions to good government and public morals which have honored the names of the O'Connell brothers, of Albany, and to Ireland also such glory as she may find in the lives and works of James M. Curley, of Boston; Maurice B. Connolly, of Queens; Big Tim Sullivan, Commendatore Tomasso Pendergast, of Kansas City; Tin Box Tom Farley, Charles F. Murphy, James J. Walker, Jimmy Hines, John McCooey and those twin guardians of honor, decency and civic purity in the old First Ward of Chicago, Hinky-Dink Kenna and Bathhouse John Coughlin—the latter no known kin, however, to still another distinguished contributor to the peace and democratic tolerance of this Nation, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit.

Must Take Bad With The Good

All these and many others belong to Ireland by the same rule of contention that claims Gen. Sheridan, born in Albany, and other honored natives of the U. S. A. And anyone who claims individuals for Ireland has no right to break the package and choose only a select few. If Ireland claims Gen. Sheridan she must take Dick Croker, and Frank Hague is Irish if Hugh Drum is.

A simpler and more honest and sporting way would be to yield to this Nation all the achievements of one kind or another of all her citizens. The United States should receive the credit along with the punishment.

Today And Tomorrow

The Eastern Push

Pasadena, Calif., March 17.

FINDING MYSELF on the Pacific coast, the information available is insufficient to make any adequate estimate of the immediate course of events in central Europe. It is, of course a question whether sufficient information exists anywhere about Hitler's immediate plans and his present objectives.

For it has been his method, hitherto, to strike suddenly and to push on, feeling out the resistance in his way, and to pause at the point where there is sufficient resistance to bring him face to face with the risk of war. It has been demonstrated again and again that Hitler's actions are not limited either by his pledges to other governments or by his own principles, as for example the racial principle that he does not want alien Slavs in the German Reich. The one rule which he has followed consistently is to subjugate without pity those who cannot or will not resist him, but always to make his conquests without becoming involved in war. He attacks the weak and the irresolute. The strong and the brave he does not attack. It may be presumed, therefore, that even now he has not decided how far he will go, that he will keep going until he meets somewhere a serious resistance.

Primary Resistance From Russia Only

IT IS FAIRLY clear, it seems to me, that the limits of the present campaign will not be fixed in London and Paris, but in Moscow, Bucharest, Belgrade, Budapest and Warsaw. For Great Britain and France do not possess the military power to intervene in central and eastern Europe. Their power to intervene was fatally impaired when they assented to the militarization of the Rhineland in 1936, when they failed to keep pace with German armaments from 1935 to 1938, and finally when they surrendered Czecho-Slovakia at Munich.

The primary resistance now can come, one may suppose, only from some of the small central European nations and ultimately from Russia. Whether there is among these peoples any capacity or will to resist remains to be seen. But Russia is an unknown quantity. But it is probably safest to assume that Russia's strength, such as it is, can begin to be effective only if Russia is actually invaded. One might expect, therefore, that the eastern frontiers of Hitler's new empire will be established in this season at the point where Russia is capable of fighting. That point might be in central Europe; it may be somewhere inside the Russian territory. Until that point of resistance is reached, it is unlikely that the western powers can or will intervene in the development of events.

Another Victory For Radical Nazis

THERE ARE indications, it seems to me, that this campaign marks another victory of the radical Nazis over the more conservative and cautious Nazis. It is known that there has existed all winter a conflict in the Nazi Party between those who wished to consolidate the results of Munich by more or less peaceable measures, and those who insisted that outright military conquest of the pan-German empire was the only solution. Hitler, who is himself a radical Nazi, has, it is evident, chosen the violent military solution of Germany's problem.

And from the Nazi point of view he is probably right. He is probably right, that is to say, in thinking that Naziism is incapable of making progress by peaceable means. It is too greatly feared in all countries, too greatly hated everywhere, to accomplish anything except by intimidation and overpowering force. The exploitation of eastern Europe is not possible by normal commercial methods. If this region is to furnish the supplies that Germany needs, they must under this regime be taken by military requisition, by outright plunder and looting. A regime which is incapable of winning friends must conquer what it wants.

Appeasement Policy Would Undermine Him

HITLER is probably right, also, in thinking that a policy of appeasement would undermine him, that if ever he agreed to let Germans negotiate amicably with their neighbors, there would be set in motion without Germany forces that would eventually displace the real Nazis.

It is difficult to imagine how Hitler's choice of military conquest leaves open any choice to the British as to whether they will devote themselves with a single-minded purpose to the developing of their maximum military power. Unless they take measures which expand their own power in proportion to Hitler's expanding power, they will surely encourage, in fact invite, the formation of an aggressive alliance between Germany, Italy and Japan against the vital centers of the British Empire.

Weakness, irresolution, division and the complacent illusion that since Hitler is moving to the east, it is safe for the western nations to relax and feel secure—these are the things which would most surely transform the present crisis into a general catastrophe.

The Once Over

An Old-Time Addict Hears About the World's Fair

Mr. Whalen—This is going to be the greatest World's Fair in history. It will be colossal. It will defy the eye and stagger the imagination. In the center will be the trylon and stethoscope—beg pardon—the trylon and perisphere, from which the exhibits will spread out like a fan . . .

Old-Timer—That's what I wanna know about—the fan dancer!

Mr. Whalen—You misunderstand me. I say the fair will spread out like a great fan. It will cover 1,216 acres, represent an investment of $150,000,000, nearly double . . .

Old-Timer—Bubble! Fine. I like that kind of a dance . . .

Mr. Whalen (ignoring him)—double the original estimate. There will be 17 miles of streets, 34 miles of sidewalks . . .

Old-Timer—Will there be any streets of Cairo?

Mr. Whalen—Don't interrupt. There will be more than 10,000 beautiful trees, their beautiful limbs . . .

Old-Timer—Now we're getting somewhere.

Mr Whalen—Sixty nations will take part in this exposition of the ages. Every State will be represented. Science will bare its secrets to . . .

Old-Timer—Who bares what?

Mr. Whalen—Science will bare her secrets to the world in an exhibition that will outstrip them all . . .

Old-Timer—I knew it all along. You can't run a fair without a midway.

Mr. Whalen—Education, medicine, art, health and music will all be represented in vast arenas. The history of transportation will be recorded in minute detail from the day of the stage coach . . .

Old-Timer—That's the idea. Where is it?

Mr Whalen—Where is what?

Old-Timer—The stage coach.

Mr. Whalen—Silence, moron; There will be a wonderful lagoon of nations.

Old-Timer—That's dead long ago.

Mr. Whalen—What's dead long ago?

Old-Timer—The Lagoon of Nations It only made things in Europe worse.

Mr. Whalen—There will be fountains and waterfalls, cascades and leaping brooks. There will be gigantic edifices dedicated solely . . .

Old-Timer—Did you say Sally?

Mr. Whalen—I said "solely." Dedicated salely to the glorification of the arts and sciences. There will be great arteries twisting and squirming . . .

Old-Timer—Attaboy! You've gotta have it to draw the crowds.

Mr. Whalen—Twisting and squirming through the broad acres This fair will be dedicated to the World of Tomorrow.

Old-Timer—I've seen her. She's pretty good.

Mr. Whalen—Who?

Old-Timer—Tamura.

Friction Taxes

By Mark Sullivan

Intra-Party Tension

TO THE COMMOTION about taxes, there are three parties. The principal parties are President Roosevelt and, on the other hand, the conservative Democrats in the Senate headed by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Committee on Finance, which has charge of tax measures. Between these two there is tension, though each would deny it, and nobody could point to overt action to prove it. In their relations they scrupulously preserve urbanity—but the fact that scrupulousness is practiced suggests the urbanity is not deep. There is in their relations that mutual manner of wariness which is sometimes described as "giving each other the dog eye."

The issue between the two, so far as it is about taxation, is not serious. It has to do with taxes on corporations. Senator Harrison wishes to repeal certain forms of taxation on corporations. He does not want to reduce the total amount of taxes paid by corporations. But there are certain forms of taxation on corporations called "friction taxes," which operate upon business somewhat as a too-tight brake operates on an automobile. Businessmen say that if the taxes were removed, the business machine would run so much faster that it would produce a larger volume of revenue from the ordinary corporation tax.

One friction tax is the tax on undistributed profits, which compels corporations to pay out so large a proportion of their profits each year as to leave them not enough for expansion the ensuing year, nor to meet the hard times or other emergencies that may arise in any future year. Senator Harrison and the conservative Democrats would repeal this and other friction taxes, but at the same time would raise the rate of ordinary taxation so as to bring in as large an amount of revenue as before.

Irritated By Cut In His Pet Tax

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT does not in words oppose this program. In press conferences and elsewhere, he defines his position as merely wanting that the total amount of revenue received from corporations shall not be diminished. He has not, in recent discussions, so far as I know, said that he opposes repeal of the undistributed profits tax. But everybody knows he has a reason of pride for not wishing to see the undistributed profits tax repealed. It was invented during his Administration, in 1936; it is a darling of the New Deal.

When, last year Congress reduced the rate of excess profits tax to a very low figure, 2½ per cent, Mr. Roosevelt was irritated. Though Congress preserved the principle, preservation of the principle was not enough to appease Mr. Roosevelt. When the bill—which was a general tax bill containing many features—went before Mr. Roosevelt for signature, Mr. Roosevelt would not sign it. He took what was for him an unprecedented step. He permitted the bill to become law without his signature, and at the same time made a speech criticizing the reduction of the excess profits tax.

That action of Mr. Roosevelt in turn irritated Senator Harrison and the conservative Democrats who were responsible for the cut. Memory of what Mr. Roosevelt did about the action of Congress last year in reducing the excess profits tax, figures silently in the relations between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Harrison today.

Morgenthau, Hanes Are The Go-Betweens

THIRD PARTY to the situation is Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and his Undersecretary Mr. John W. Hanes. They stand between the two principals. More accurately, they run between the two. In their role they seem rather nervous, like men who feel a house may fall upon them at any moment. They want most zealously to preserve good relations with their chief, the President. They know what has happened to several men in the Treasury who had had the misfortune not to see eye to eye with the President.

At the same time, Messrs. Morgenthau and Hanes genuinely want to bring about business recovery, and believe that recovery would be helped by removal of the friction taxes. They have compiled a large number of friction taxes and regulations which they are willing to remove or lubricate.

It is possible the undistributed profits tax, as well as some other friction taxes, may be removed, if it can be accomplished in such a way as not to seem too glaring a reversal of the President's past attitude. Yet Mr. Roosevelt is not one to make concessions for the sake of amity.

Just One Battle In Major War

BESIDES, this strain about taxation is merely one battle in a larger war. It is apparent Mr. Roosevelt regards himself as engaged in a kind of silent controversy with the leaders of his party in the Senate, a continuation of the spirit of his attempted purge. Part of Mr. Roosevelt's strategy is to put the conservative Senate Democrats on the spot, and keep them there. When Congress cut $150,000,000 from an appropriation asked by the President for WPA, Mr. Roosevelt accepted the reduced amount—but promptly sent to Congress a new request for $150,000,000. Apparently $150,000,000 is exactly the amount WPA needs—$149,000,000 would not be enough. A hundred and fifty millions is the President's figure, and he is going to stick to it.

Chamberlain Turns a Page

By Barnet Nover

Warning Comes Late

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN'S Birmingham speech assailing the rape of Czecho-Slovakia in unmeasured terms was the most devastating indictment made in many years by the head of one great power of the head of another state. And it comes with particular force from the lips of the apostle of appeasement.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech will not bring the dead to life. It will not bring together the dismembered fragments of the Czecho-Slovakia that was. Nor will it allay the fears which the Poles and Rumanians and Danes and Swiss and other nations and peoples rightly have that their fate may sooner or later be the fate of the Czechs and Slovaks.

In his present hour of triumph and mastery, it may not even make an impression on the man who today bestrides Europe like a colossus. Hitler has reason to remember that there have been other indictments of his policies and practices, other verbal assaults of his treaty-smashing course. But this verbal barrage has never prevented him from carrying out the program he outlined in "Mein Kampf" for all the world to see. And he is outwardly stronger today than ever before in his meteoric career.

IT IS POSSIBLE, if somewhat beside the point at the moment, to assume that had Chamberlain spoken months ago in the vein he did on Friday, Munich and its evil aftermath might have been averted.

The British prime minister's speech constitutes an admission that during all these months he has refused to believe the evidence of his own senses, that despite a long succession of acts of bad faith he continues to believe that Hitler was at bottom a reasonable man. He assumed that when Germany's elementary wants had been satisfied, the Third Reich would stay put. He harbored the dream of a co-operative system of four powers achieving peace through direct consultation among the leaders.

Even now Chamberlain refuses to admit that his policy was wrong or unwise or based on any miscalculations. And he pleads in extenuation that it has preserved the peace of Europe. But he openly confesses that his hopes of appeasement have been shattered.

British Indignation Now Is Unanimous

NOW, AT LAST, the veil has been torn from before his eyes. What he refused to see clearly before he sees only too clearly now. And in accusing Hitler of double-dealing and treachery he undoubtedly voices the sentiments of all classes and sections of the British people, even as Acting Secretary Sumner Welles, in his parallel indictment of the rape of Czecho-Slovakia, voices the overwhelming sentiments of the American people.

This fact is of tremendous importance. Hitherto British sentiment has been divided regarding the success or failure of the Chamberlain policy. A large element—Mr. Chamberlain himself insists it was a great majority—applauded Munich and the policy of appeasement. A considerable minority—at the very least, including a powerful section of the Conservative Party—deemed it a ghastly mistake again and again to retreat in the face of threats by the dictators.

The only point of agreement hitherto has been with regard to rearmament. Thus Laborites and Liberals, Anthony Eden and Winston Churchill and Duff Cooper, all supported rearmament with as great enthusiasm as did the government itself.

Now there is equal agreement regarding basic policy. Further German domination of Europe is to be resisted. That is the plain implication of Mr. Chamberlain's forthright speech. And while he did not choose to state specifically how this policy is to be implemented, the warning was there.

FROM THE VERY beginning of international anarchy, the democratic powers have held the upper hand. They have the financial and economic power, the industrial resources. A strong stand by them would have at all times have summoned to their banners all the harassed nations and peoples that value their independence and liberty. It can still do so.

Until now, however, the democratic powers have retreated from the implications of their own strength even while totalitarian nations have moved from weakness. The overwhelming balance of power enjoyed by the democracies has thus steadily been reduced. Germany today is infinitely more powerful than it was before she added the resources of Czecho-Slovakia and Austria to her own and she has a clear path to further pillage. There is little to stop her in the East, particularly if the western democracies continue the policy of retreat.

But if the democracies reverse their course, if, under the pressure of realties which can no longer be ignored and which not even Mr. Chamberlain is willing to ignore, the democracies turn about and stand their ground, the spreading plague of international anarchy may yet be checked. But there is not much time left.

Mine Negotiators Recess at Odds

New York, March 17 (AP).—The joint wage parley of theAppalachian bituminous coal industry wound up the week today in disagreement over adjournment and with the miners' charging that the operators wanted a "lockout"—an accusation the latter denied.

Unable to reconcile widely divergent views on a new contract, the 32 negotiatoors adjourned until Monday over protests of the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America.

The End Of Appeasement

Partial Text of Chamberlain's Speech

By the Associated Press.

Birmingham, England, March 17. Following is a partial text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's address at Birmingham tonight:

I had intended tonight to talk to you upon a variety of subjects, upon trade and employment, upon social service and upon finance.

But tremendous events which have been taking place this week in Europe have thrown everything else into the background.

One thing is certain. Public opinion in the world has received a sharper shock than has ever yet been administered to it, even by the present regime in Germany.

Last Wednesday we had debate upon it in the House of Commons. That was the day on which German troops entered Czecho-Slovakia and all of us, particularly the government, were at a disadvantage because information that we had was only partial.

And so it necessarily followed that I, speaking in behalf of the government with all that responsibility that attaches to the position, was obliged to confine myself to a very restrained and cautious exposition on which at the time I felt I could make but little comment.

And perhaps naturally that somewhat cool and objective statement gave rise to misapprehension, and some people thought that because I spoke quietly, because I gave little expression to feeling, that therefore my colleagues and I didn't feel strongly on the subject. I hope to correct that statement tonight.

It has been suggested that this occupation of Czecho-Slovakia was a direct consequence of the visit which I paid Germany last autumn and that since the result of these events has been to tear up the settlement that was arrived at at Munich, that proves that the whole circumstances of those visits were wrong.

And it is said that as this was the personal policy of the Prime Minister, the blame for the fate of Czecho-Slovakia must rest upon his shoulders.

'If I Were Right Then, I Am Right Now'

That is an entirely unwarrantable conclusion. The facts as they are today cannot change the facts as they were last September.

If I were right then, I am still right now.

Let me examine that. When I decided to go to Germany I never expected I was going to escape criticism.

Indeed, I did not go there to get popularity. I went there first and foremost because, in what appeared to be almost a desperate situation, that seemed to me to offer the only chance of averting a European war.

I might remind you that when it was first announced I was going, not a voice was raised in criticism. Everyone applauded that effort and it was only later—when it appeared the results of the final settlement fell short of the expectations of some who didn't fully appreciate the facts—it was only then that the attack began and even then it wasn't the visit, it was the terms of settlement that were disapproved.

Well, I have never denied that the terms which I was able to secure at Munich were not those I myself would have desired, but as I explained then, I had to deal with no new problem.

This was something that had existed ever since the Treaty of Versailles—a problem that ought to have been solved long ago if only the statesmen of the last twenty years had taken broader and more enlightened views of their duty.

'It Had Become Like a Disease'

It had become like a disease which had been long neglected and a surgical operation was necessary to save the life of the patient.

After all, the first and most immediate object of my visit was achieved. The peace of Europe was saved, and, if it hadn't been for those visits, hundreds of thousands of families would today have been in mourning for the flower of Europe's best manhood.

Even if we had subsequently gone to war to punish Germany for her actions and if, after the frightful losses which would have been inflicted upon all partakers in the war we had been victorious in the end, never could we have reconstructed Czecho-Slovakia as she was framed by the Treaty of Versailles.

But I had another purpose too in going to Munich—that was to further the policy which I have been pursuing ever since I have been in my present position—a policy which is sometinmes called European appeasement although I don't think myself that that is a very happy term or one which accurately describes its purpose.

If that policy were to succeed it was essential that no power should seek to obtain general domination of Europe; but that each one should be contented to obtain reasonable facilities for developing its own resources, securing its own share of international trade and improving the conditions of its own people.

And I felt that although that might well mean a clash of interests between different states, nevertheless by the exercise of mutual goodwill and understanding of what were the limits of the desires of others, it should be possible to resolve all differences by discussion and without armed conflict.

I had hoped in going to Munich to find out by personal contact what was in Herr Hitler's mind and whether it was likely that he would be willing to co-operate in a program of that kind.

Well, the atmosphere in which our discussions were conducted was not a very favorable one because we were in the midst of an acute crisis.

When I came back after my second visit I told the House of Commons of the conversation I had had with Herr Hitler, of which I said that speaking with great earnestness, he repeated what he had already said at Berchtesgaden—namely that this was the last of his territorial ambitions in Europe and that he had no wish to include in the Reich people o. other races than Germans.

Herr Hitler himself confirmed this account of the conversation in a speech which he made at the Sportspalast in Berlin when he said: "This is the last territorial claim which I have to make in Europe."

And a little later in the same speech he said: "I have assured Mr. Chamberlain and I emphasize it now that when this problem is solved, Germany has no more territorial problems in Europe." And he added: "I shall not be interested in the Czech state any more and I can guarantee it. We don't want any Czechs any more."

But notwithstanding, at the same time I was not prepared to relax precautions until I was satisfied that policy had been established and had been accepted by others, and therefore after Munich our defense program was actually accelerated and it was expanded so as to remedy certain weaknesses which had become apparent during the crisis.

'I Share Their Disappointment'

I am convinced that after Munich the great majority of the British people shared my hope and ardently desired that that policy should be carried further, but today I share their disappointment, their indignation, that those hopes have been so wantonly shattered.

Well, ladies and gentlemen, how can these events which happened this week be reconciled with those assurances which I have read out to you? Surely, as a joint signatory of the Munich agreement I was entitled, if Herr Hitler thought it ought to be done, to have the consultation which is provided for in the Munich declaration. Instead of that he has taken the law into his own hands.

Before even the Czech President was received and was confronted with demands which he had no power to resist, the German troops were on the move, and within a few hours they were in the Czech's capital.

According to a proclamation which was read out in Prague today, Bohemia and Moravia have been annexed to the German Reich. Now German inhabitants, which include of course Czechs, are placed under a German protectorate.

And perhaps, we hear again of the appearance of the Gestapo, the secret police, followed by the usual tale of wholesale arrests of prominent individuals with consequences with which we are all familiar.

Every man and woman in this country remembers the fate of the Jews and the political prisoners in Austria must be filled today with distress and foreboding. Who can fail to feel his heart go out in sympathy to proud and brave people who have so suddenly been subjected to this invasion, whose liberties have been curtailed, whose national independence has gone? What has become of this declaration of "no further territorial ambition?"

What has become of the assurance "we don't want Czechs in the Reich?"

What regard has been paid here to that principle of self-determination on which Herr Hitler argued so vehemently with me at Berchtesgaden when he was asking for the severance of the Sudetenland from Czecho-Slovakia and its inclusion in the German Reich?

Now we are told that this seizure of territory has been necessitated by disturbances in Czecho-Slovakia. We are told that the proclamation of this new German protectorate against the will of its inhabitants has been rendered inevitable by disorders which threatened the peace and security of her mighty neighbor.

If there were disorders, were they not fomented from without?

And can anybody outside Germany take seriously the idea that they could be a danger to that great country, that they could provide any justification for what has happened?

Doesn't the question inevitably remain in our minds, if it is so easy to discover good reasons for ignoring assurances so solemnly and so repeatedly given, what reliance can be placed upon any other assurances that come from the same source?

There is another set of questions which almost inevitably must occur to our minds and to the minds of others, perhaps even in Germany herself. Germany under her present regime has sprung a series of unpleasant surprises upon the world: The Rhineland, the Austrian anschluss, the severance of Sudetenland—all these things shocked and affronted public opinion throughout the world.

'Is It to Be Followed by Others?'

Is this the last attack upon a small state, or is it to be followed by others? Is this in fact a step in the direction of an attempt to dominate the world by force? Ladies and gentlemen, those are grave and serious questions.

I am not going to answer them tonight but I am sure they will require grave and serious consideration, not only of Germany's neighbors but of others perhaps even beyond the confines of Europe.

Already there are indications that the process has begun and it is obvious that it is likely now to be speeded up.

We ourselves will naturally turn first to our partners in the British commonwealth of nations and to France, to whom we are so closely bound, and I have no doubt that others, too, knowing that we are not disinterested in what goes on in southeastern Europe, will wish to have our counsel and advice.

In our own country we must all review the position with that sense of responsibility which its gravity demands. Nothing must be excluded from that review which bears upon the national safety. Every aspect of our national life must be looked at again from that angle.

The government as always must bear the main responsibility, but I know that every individual will wish to review their own position, too, and to consider again if they have done all they can to offer their service to the state.

I do not believe there is anyone who will question my sincerity when I say there is hardly anything I wouldn't sacrifice for peace. But there is one thing that I must except and that is the liberty that we have enjoyed for hundreds of years and which we will never surrender.

That I, of all men, should feel called upon to make such a declaration—that is the measure of the extent to which these events have shattered the confidence which was just beginning to show its head and which, if it had been allowed to grow, might have made this year memorable for the return of all Europe to sanity and stability.

It was only six weeks ago that I was speaking in this city and that I alluded to rumors and suspicions which I said ought to be swept away. I pointed out that any demand to dominate the world by force was one which democracies must resist, and I added that I couldn't believe such a challenge was intended, because no government with the interests of its own people at heart could expose them for such claim to horrors of a world war.

'Value Freedom Even More'

And indeed, with the lessons of history for all to read, it seems incredible that we should see such a challenge, and I feel bound to repeat that while I am not prepared to engage this country by new and unspecified commitments operating under conditions which cannot now be foreseen, yet no greater mistake could be made than to suppose that because it believes war to be a senseless and cruel thing, this nation has so lost its fiber that it will not take part to the utmost of its power in resisting such a challenge if it ever were made.

And for that declaration I am convinced that I have not merely the support, sympathy, the confidence of my fellow countrymen and countrywomen, but I shall have also the approval of the whole British Empire and of all the other nations who value peace indeed, but who value freedom more.

Your Figure, Madame!

—By Ida Jean Kain

Exercise Abdomen To Keep the Figure Young and Lissome

AT 16 WE think of 35 as ancient, but as we approach 35 we are inclined to look upon 45 as still quite young!

This sleight of mind is no trick at all if you do noth feel your age, for then, in all probability, you do not look it, either. Feeling young is largely a matter of sufficient bodily activity and it's exercise that prevents the most mercilessly aging thing that can happen to you—the middle-aged spread.

But it is the exceptional woman who does not look and feel settled as she grows older. As we begin to lead more sedate lives the tendency is to give up all the sports and games that were popular in youth. You don't have a slim, lithe figure because you are young; you have it because you use your nice strong muscles, especially those of the midsection.

When we give up tennis and badminton and skating and congregate to sit and play bridge, or to knit, or to hear people make speeches, our figures settle, and all the cleverness of the corsetiers can't disguise the fact that there is a difference in well being.

Abdominal Girdle

Once you realize that all this settling can be done by a few minutes of daily exercise—as little as 15 minutes—you won't need any coaxing. You may not be aware of it, but there are thick, wide muscles running up and down and crosswise to form a marvelous abdominal girdle. No matter how soft and padded with fat this girdle is, it may be put into condition and made firm and hard. Begin your reconditioning program with the following simple exercises.

Sit on the floor on the feet, legs tucked under and feet under the hips, so that the body forms a perfect right angle at the juncture of hips and trunk. Just sit there and pull up with all your trunk muscles, beginning with those of the lower abdomen. At first you will only be able to maintain this upward pull for a few seconds at a time, but with daily exercise there is a rapid increase in the power of these muscles. After a few weeks you will want to pull up all the time!

The next exercise is more strenuous and should be performed only once during the first few days. Lie on the back on the floor, arms stretched straight out at the sides shoulder level, and bring the legs straight up in the air. Hold the legs together and try not to bend the knees as you circle the feet over to one side, around and over to the other side, and back, completing a circle.

Now for the muscles at the sides of the waist. Lie flat on the back on the floor with the arms stretched on the floor overhead and feet straight down. Keep the shoulders on the floor as you twist at the waist and turn the hips so that the right leg is resting on the left. Slowly return to position and twist to the other side.

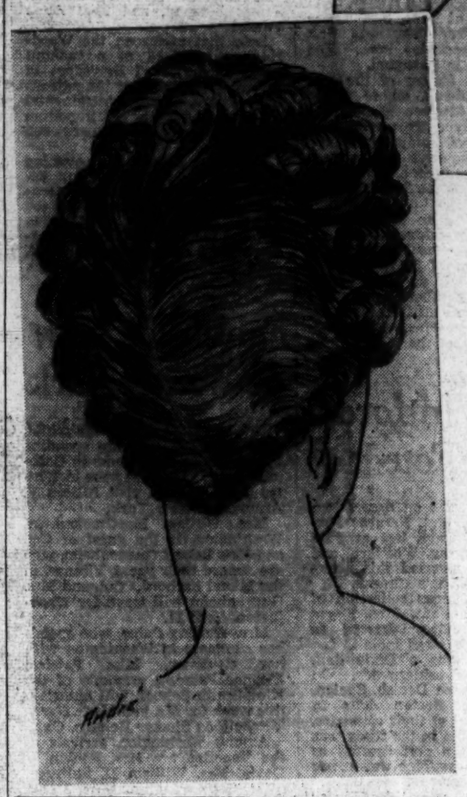
New Coiffures Nestle Close to Head

Sculptured purity of hair line will be noticed on the smartest heads this spring, according to Andre, of Paris, now in Washington at a local salon. His emphatic insistance is that the era of hirsute birds nest and brioches, perching precariously atop every head, is done for. His formula for spring chic is a hair line that is neat, trim and well-cared for. He advises definitely brushed-up-from-the-back hair, which is never extreme or bizarre, but always ladylike and soignee



What is indirect water waving? Andre, the Parisian hair stylist, deftly penciled two of his water-waved coiffures to demonstrate. They prove his contention that hair will be short for spring—but never hard and masculine looking like the one-time boyish bobs. He defines his process as sculpting the hair close to the head, then permanent waving it into deep, natural waves, which can later be wet and brushed out by even the busiest working girl. The lower ringlet version is good for evening, the upper for the mature woman of distinction

The Gentler Sex

The Book Lovers

Sister—Say, what are all these books doing out here in the hall?

Mrs. Gink—Well, I was cleaning out those old bookcases in the back bedroom upstairs and there were so many books there we never use and I thought——

Mr. Gink—You aren't going to give them away, are you?

Mrs. Gink—We-ell, yes. I thought I'd send them to Aunt Nannie for that little school library down in the country——

Mr. Gink—Say, wait a minute! I want to look over these. Why, here's "Thaddeus of Warsaw!" Why that's a wonderful book! I had to read that in school. I don't want that given away.

Sister—Mother! You don't mean you're going to give away the Little Colonel series! Oh and there's the Motor Boy series! Why Ted would have a fit if he came home from college and found them gone!

Mrs. Gink—Well nobody's looked at one of those books in ten years.

Mr. Gink—Just the same you can never tell when you won't need them. Now here's "Braddock's Campaigns." There's a lot of valuable information in that book.

Sister—Say, this "Mr. Bert and Betty" is MY book! It's just like Mother to give away all your things when your back is turned.

Mr. Gink—Here's "Tom Brown' School Days!" I'd like to read that again. And B...'s Essays. Why that's a classic!

Mrs. Gink—We've got two other copies.

Mr Gink—Well, but you don't want to give away a classic!

Sister—Say, this "Burke's Speech on Conciliation" has got Ted's name on it.

Mr. Gink—Yes, I studied that too! I don't want that given away. Wait—what's th... tunate Marriage," by E. P. Roe. I don't quite remember th... I'd like to look it over before you give it away.

Sister—Why here's my "Silas Marner!"

Mrs. Gink—We've got three other copies.

Sister—Well, I want to keep my own. Are you going to give away that set of Dickens?

Mrs. Gink—Why not? It's all in agate type.

Gink—I wouldn't give away a set of anything. Wait a minute, "The Laws of Nature"——

Mrs. Gink—That was published in 1886.

Mr. Gink—Well, I'd like to look over it. What's this? "Walks and Talks in the Geological Field." Why, there's a lot of good information in that book!

Sister—"Mrs. Hemans' Poems."

Mr. Gink—I don't think you ought to give away any poetry.

Sister—"The Man on the Box!" Say, I've never read that. Oh, and here's "The Winning of Barbara Worth." I'm going to take these upstairs.

Mr. Gink—"Merrill's Speller!" You Would give away a speller when nobody in the house can spell "cat."

Sister—What a funny old book! "Keri's Grammar."

Mrs. Gink—Now nobody would want that.

Mr. Gink—I don't know. It might be a first edition or something. Yes, and here's "'Abbe Constantine"—I always meant to read that. Say, here's another I never got around to, "Carlyle's History of the French Revolution."

Sister—"From Vesuvius to Switzerland."

Mr. Gink—Say, keep that! We might be going abroad some day. Wait—what's this? "Geographical and Industrial Studies of South America!" Now, if that isn't just like you to give away a book like that at a time like this!

Mrs. Gink—Well, what are we going to do with all these books? There's no room in the bookcases.

Mr. Gink—I'm going to take mine to my room and read 'em—when I get around to it.

Sister—So am I. And I'll take Ted's too.

Mrs. Gink—Well, there's nothing left for the school library.

Mr. Gink—Oh well, give 'em that copy of "Graustark"—no, maybe we better keep that. Well, maybe that "Murders in the Rue Morgue"—no, that's a good detective story.

Sisters—Give 'em those old school histories.

Mr. Gink—No, when there's so much turmoil in the world we don't want to give away any histories. Well, I tell you—you can give 'em those old algebras if you want to . . . and maybe those Christmas gift books, they've got beautiful bindings . . . and oh yes, that "Daily Moral Talks for Young People," there's a lot of good advice in that, and then as far as I'm concerned you can give 'em that "Fauna and Flora of the Paleolithic Age."

Man Blocks Woman's Wish to Be Free of Unhappy Common Law Marriage; She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: The letter in Thursday's column concerning a bigamous union gives me courage to write to you about a problem that has been worrying me for some time. Several years ago I entered into a common law marriage. It was to have been a trial marriage, to be legalized if we felt it was going to work. My husband kept begging me to go down and "put it on record," but I was skeptical about him and kept putting it off, waiting to see whether he would improve.

Although he was physically attractive, charming and seemingly idealistic, before we joined forces, I learned on living with him that he was careless about himself, uncouth in his manner and brutal in his anger. He expected me to do absolutely all the housework unaided. He refused to help with the furnace and resented my employing help on rare occasions when I was too tired—from earning a living—to do all the work myself. Nevertheless, he insists that I share all household expenses and raises a rumpus when I spend any money on myself, twice a year for clothes, or once a month at the beauty parlor.

Somehow, I kept thinking that perhaps it was all my fault, and I kept hoping that if I would be patient he would change. He has matured a little in the time I have given him, but not enough to warrant my putting any faith in him. He is of a nervous, quarrelsome and nagging temperament, which I fear will never change. His treatment has killed whatever love I ever felt for him.

I have told him I am going to leave, but he won't believe it. He insists our marriage is legal. We have told no one otherwise and have furnished a house together. He says that I would have to get a divorce in order to be free, and that he won't give me one. I am in a quandary and haven't enough money to pay a lawyer. Have you any suggestions? READER.

Case for Attorney

DEAR READER: Since I am not an attorney, I am not qualified to tell you how to dissolve this union. And even if I were an attorney, I would have to know far more than is told here before I could offer constructive suggestions. You are in a position where you must have competent legal counsel, if your rights are to be safeguarded and your situation clarified. Since you cannot afford the services of a lawyer, the thing to do is to take your problem to the Legal Aid Bureau, 1409 L street northwest, NAtional 9674.

This social agency was established for the purpose of providing legal aid to persons in need of, but unable to pay the prevailing price for, such services. Moreover, this bureau has a reference list of attorneys who handle cases for very small fees—in order to see that justice is done those persons who are not indigent, who feel a self-respecting reluctance to be classified as such, and who can, and would prefer, to pay something for sorely needed legal counsel and representation.

The following information with regard to your case has been given to me by a reliable source: The code of the District of Columbia recognizes the legality of common-law marriage contracts. That is to say, when a man and a woman have said to each other, 'I, so-and-so, take thee, so-and-so, to be my wife (or husband),' (and this is not necessarily in the presence of witnesses), and when, thereafter, the man has "held the woman out before the public as his wife," by introducing her as "Mrs." Blank, then the contract has a legally binding status. It can only be dissolved by legal means.

In your case it remains to be proven, of course, whether your relationship with this man is actually a common-law marriage; or whether it is simply an illicit liaison. After reviewing the case history in detail, an attorney should be able to say, rather definitely, just what your status is—whether that of wife or mistress. If the latter, you are, I suppose, free to leave at any time; but in that case, owing to the man's allegedly dog-in-the-manger attitude, you might have difficulty in claiming your rightful share of the household possessions. Your demands would be immeasurably strengthened, and the man would probably yield more readily, if you were represented by legal counsel.

Supposing the contract is valid in the eyes of the law, and the man seems determined to hold you to that contract, you have a choice of filing immediately for divorce on grounds of cruelty (that is to say, physical abuse; providing such grounds exist; and you have said that he is "brutal in his anger"); or of living apart from him for five years, which in itself constitutes grounds for divorce. Here, again, you have need to act in accordance with an attorney's advice. If it seems essential to your own social well-being to move out of the home, you will be showing precautionary foresight in establishing evidence that you were not so much deserting the man in taking such a step, as you were driven by the necessity for self-preservation.

So, my layman's recommendations to you are these: Don't be intimidated by the man's dictatorial bluffing; don't let the situation drift indefinitely through sheer ignorance of your own status and rights in the matter; and DO take your problem to the Legal Aid Bureau aforementioned. There is no reason under the sun why you shouldn't be free, if you wish to be free, of this obviously wretched and mistaken alliance.

Contrasting Gloves

Paris (AP).—Gloves shown with day dress usually contrast in color—cyclamen taffeta gloves with navy prints; honey suckle yellow with black and white. Evening gloves on the contrary, are smartest when made of the dress material. Maggy Rouff compromises in the case of a powder blue crepe frock, by making one long glove in powder blue, the other one in blotting-paper pink.

A Woman's New York

—By Alice Hughes

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: I get a great kick out of the society column hullabaloo which arises every time the dowager Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt pokes her aristocratic nose into the evening air. The professional gaspers seem to regard such an event as a super-revelation—so just imagine how they behaved a few nights ago when Mrs. V. actually turned up at the new night club called the Monte Carlo. She was surrounded by most of the surviving members of our night life crowd, and professional viewers-with-alarm dare predict that the old lady is deserting, "the Old Guard" for the newer and more boisterous "cafe society." With apologies to Cholly Knickerbocker, of course, for the use of the phrase.

I hear that Martha Raye, once publicized for her colossal oral cavity and later for her personal glamour, is headed toward our town to appear in a Broadway show. Well, we can go for that, because Martha is some baby from any angle.

And from the same Broadway sector comes the report that Diana Blythe, debutante daughter of the immortal John Barrymore, will begin her projected stage career next fall—that is, if any of us survive the big show out in the Flushing Meadows.

One of the jolliest of the recent night club openings was the occasion when Hildegrade, Pride of Milwaukee, made her bow in the cafe of the Savoy Plaza Hotel. Dozens of the alleged swanky set forgot that it was Lent, and those of us who remember when one chinchilla wrap made an evening were practically blinded by seeing no less than three at Hildy's debut.

The hotel just mentioned and the Sherry Netherland, are favored roosting-places for movie actors. No sooner had the lurking hundreds dispersed after finally catching a glimpse of that glorious matinee idol, Mickey Rooney, than Mae West moved in—and back again came the crowds.

I had a look the other day at the winner of a clothes-designing contest for little girls. The first prize of 500 shiny new pennies was won by a 10-year-old named Mollie McIver for what she called her "Rainbow Dress." Very ducky, too.

D. C. Society Partakes Of Green Delicacies

Among St. Patrick's Day Hosts Are the Francis B. Sayres And Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicios

Though there was no celebration at the Irish Legation yesterday to mark St. Patrick's Day, the minister, Robert Brennan, having gone to Chicago to attend one in that city, Washington hostesses observed the traditional decorations at two parties given yesterday. One was the tea which the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre entertained for students at the Foreign Service School of the State Department, and the other was the cocktail party which Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Exnicios gave at their home on Tracy Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Sayre entertained at their home in Spring Valley. The tea table was centered with a bowl of shamrock, and the little cakes served were frosted in green.

With only a few exceptions, the guests at Mrs. Sayre's were connected with the StSate Department. Pouring coffee was Mrs. J. Klahr Huddle, whose husband is head of the school, and at the punch bowl was Miss Cornelia B. Bassel, who is also associated in work with the students.

Several Debutantes Assist Hostesses

Miss Mary Dora Thompson and Miss Julia Worthington, debutantes of the season, assisted Mrs. Sayre. The former's sister, Miss Beth Thompson, who wore a black crepe frock trimmed with pink, and a pink ribbon in her hair, was also in the group which helped to see that guests enjoyed themselves.

A fire burned in the drawing room, and on the mantel were vases of pink and white roses, arranged by Mrs. Cayre, who has an unusual talent in this direction. The hostess wore a street length black velvet frock with a corsage of pink and white roses.

There are 17 members of the Foreign Service School, and all were present yesterday. The course, to which members are recalled after their first tour of duty, will end in about six weeks, after which the officers will be sent to other posts.

Several members of the school are married and were accompanied by their wives. Mrs. William Cole, wife of one of the students, wore a smart beige wool frock and a large, pirate effect hat of scarlet felt with a feather. Mrs. John Melby was another present among the "wives." Also guests were Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler William Livingston. The latter, before her recent marriage, was Miss Mary McCandlish, and is a niece of R. Walton Moore, counselor of the State Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Sayre will be joined on Monday by the former's daughter, Miss Eleanor Sayre, who is doing museum work at Harvard this year, and who will spend a week with them.

Many Present At Exnicios Party

The homeof Mr. and Mrs. Exncios was jammed with people yesterday between 5 and 7. The tea table was centered with daffodils, and the hostess served green sandwiches.

Pretty Mrs. Exnicios wore a beige crepe frock with a brown sash. Most of the guests congregated in the dining room, but others gathered on the sun porch, with its smart furniture of white iron and glass.

The Counselor of the Chilean Embassy, Sergio Huneeus, said he would be sailing April 22 to return to the foreign office. He also confirmed the report that the former Ambassador Manuel Trucco, will not return to the Capital.

Among the many present were the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, the Marquis of Saint'-Orsola; the Commercial Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Mme. Molekamp; Miss Florence Harris, in a smart cross fox cape over her black frock; Donald Downs, and Mrs. Sims Snow, back from New York for the week-end. She is taking a short story course at Columbia University this winter.

Wearing tweeds and checks were Miss Carolyn Chantry and Mrs. Tyner Dugdale—the latter topped off her costume with a becoming Scotch bonnet. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. William Stork, of Holland, who is here for a visit.

John Pauling Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Lacy, the Naval Attache of the German Embassy and Frau Witthoed, with the latter's sister, Miss Mary Henley, who is visiting them; Baroness von Below and Mrs. William T. Mann were others at this pleasant party.

2 Entertain Before Session

Several dinners preceded the Friday Supper Club meeting last night at the Sulgrave Club. Among the hostesses were the Misses Diana Rowland and Doris Becker, both of whom entertained at the 1925 F street club.

Miss Rowland's guests were the Misses Elsie Ekengren, Florence Harris, Kitty DuBois, Betty Beale, Bambie McKenna, Ruth Sowers, Stellita Stapleton and Mrs. William T. Mann. The men present were Arthur Vandenberg, jr., James Parks, George Renchard, Mannix Walker, Donald Downs, Victor Sutro, Chester Hammond and Lawrence Salisbury.

Miss Becker entertained in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Adams, the latter being the former Caroline Cecil. The guests were the Misses Angelica Lloyd, Austine McDonnell, Alice Tuckerman, Mary Kennedy, Houston Niller, Elise Hill, Peggy Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knowlton, Robert Woods, Rufus Johnston, Robert Wallach, Louis Wods, William Buckland, Igor Cassini, John Merriam, Fred Mechlin and Lelli di Feio, the latter a cousin of Mr. Cassini's.

Sir Adrian Bailey Widely Feted on Capital Visit

Mrs. C. Mathews Dick entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Sir Adrian Bailey, formerly attached to the British embassy here. He has been in Hollywood and is spending the week-end with William Taylor, who will give a small dinner for him tonight at his Georgetown residence.

Sir Adrian yesterday was guest of honor at a cocktail party given by the attache of the British embassy and Mrs. Harold Sims in their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Sims wore a trailing blue crepe hostess gown with gold trimming at the neckline, and the drawing room was decorated with spring flowers. There were about 30 guests.

Rumanian Attache Feted at Luncheon

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, gave a small, informal luncheon yesterday in honor of Bictor Babes, Counselor of the Rumanian Legation, who has been ordered back to the Foreign Office.

Count Potocki will be joined next month by two Polish friends, Count and Countess Tyszkiewica. It is not definite as to whether his mother, Countess Betka Potocki, now in Paris, will join him here, as originally scheduled.

The Counselor of the Embassy, Witold Wankowica, is now recuperating from a serious operation, performed last week in Krakow. He will postpone his return here until May or June.

Caswells Fete Brazilian Envoy

The Brazilian Ambassador and Senora de Martins were guests of honor at a dinner given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell.

Others present were Commander and Mrs. Hamilton V. Bryan, William McAvoy, Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Griffith Warfield and George Duca.

To Give Dinner

The Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom will entertain at dinner on Thursday and again on Saturday of next week. There will be 24 guests.

Celebrate Wedding

The Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan entertained at a small tea yesterday afternoon at the legation in celebration of the marriage of Princess Fawzia, sister of King Farouk of Egypt, and Crown Prince Shahpur Mohamed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, which took place Wednesday in Cairo.

Chinese Group To Give Play Here Tuesday

Cultural Performers Appearing Under Envoy's Auspices

Of all the interesting visitors who have come to Washington this year, no group is more unusual than the Chinese cultural performers who arrive here today and who will give a performance Tuesday evening at the Wardman Park Hotel under auspices of the Chinese envoy, Dr. Hu-Shih.

The actors and actresses, with their many unusual Chinese costumes, already have traveled 4,000 miles by bus throughout the United States to raise funds for war refugees. They are under the supervision of Mme. Tong, wife of the Counselor of the Kwang Tung provisional government of China, and herself a member of a distinguished family. She is a relative of Mme. Sze, whose husband, Alfred Sze, was first Chinese Ambassador here. The Szes now are in Shanghai.

A charming dancer of the cast is Virginia Chang, whose father is a former Chinese Minister to Chile. She recently was chosen by a newsreel company as the most representative of modern China, and has been asked to preside as queen at the San Francisco Exposition.

A singer in the group, Ethel Chun, is the granddaughter of Sir Houen Chowñ who was knighted by King George V for the charitable work he did in Hong Kong. Many other members of the cast are from prominent Chinese families, and their performance promises to be one of the most unique of the season.

Miss Whitford, Fiance Feted

The accent was on decorations at the supper Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes gave last evening for Miss Ordway Whitford and who will be married this afternoon at St. Alban's Church.

From her famous collection of dolls of all nations, Mrs. Keyes selected a number dressed as brides. On one large table in the dining room was a Dixie doll, with her little bridesmaids. On other tables were Danish, Syrian, Japanese and Breton dolls in bridal costumes of their countries, and a little table in the study was centered with a doll dressed as the Empress Josephine was at her wedding to Napoleon.

The flowers, calla lilies, Easter lilies, snapdragons, gladioli and roses, were further in keeping with the bridal motif, being all white. From the chandeliers were hung big white bells of tissue paper, tied with satin ribbon, and at each place were smaller replicas of the bells, with little candy favors attached.

The guests were Mrs. Whitford, Mrs. Wadsworth, mmebers of the bridal party, and out-of-town guests.

Mrs. Ralph Church Entertains at Luncheon

Mrs. Ralph Church, wife of Representative Church, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at her home on Thirty-second street. Mrs. Ralph William Close, wife of the South African Minister, was the ranking guest.

Secretary and Mrs. Woodring Entertain at Dinner Party

Capt. Barclay, Military Attache at Rio, and Wife Are Guests; Cocktail Party Honors Opera Patrons

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring entertained at dinner last evening for Capt. and Mrs. Hugh Barclay, who are in Washington for a few days at the Mayflower.

Capt. and Mrs. Barclay are well known and have many friends here but have made their home, since Capt. Barclay's retirement, at Douglaston Manor, their estate in Pulaski, N. Y. Capt. Barclay was military attache from the United States at Rio de Janerio for a number of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke Shoop will entertain for the Barclays this afternoon at a cocktail party at their apartment at 3001 Connecticut avenue.

Mrs. Woodring, who has been away from Washington since March 5, for a visit to New York and Connecticut, returned to Washington late Wednesday night.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Woodring came down by train from New York to Baltimore, where she was met by Secretary Woodring, the Attorney General, Frank Murphy, and Miss Anne Parker.

Late that afternoon the Woodrings entertained at a cocktail party at the Hotel Belvedere in honor of a number of the patrons of the opera, who are instrumental in bringing the Metropolitan Opera Company to Baltimore each season.

Following dinner that evening Secretary and Mrs. Woodring, accompanied by the Attorney General and Miss Parker, attended the opera "Thais;" then went on to Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Oliver's penthouse for a midnight supper, and, after the theater party, drove back to Washington late that night.

Miss Winship Becomes Bride

News has been received of the marriage Thursday afternoon in San Juan, Puerto Rico, of Miss Katherine Winship, daughter of the late Commander Emory Winship, U. S. N., and Mrs. Winship, to Lieut. Thomas Hogan Hayes, U. S. A. The bride is a niece of Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, Governor of Puerto Rico.

The ceremony took place at the Church of St. Augustine, the Rev. Mariano Vassallo, vicar general of Puerto Rico, officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, wore an old ivory brocade wedding gown which her grandmother had worn in the Eighteen Sixties. Her rose point veil had been worn by her mother at her wedding, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet.

Mrs. John Stanley was matron of honor and Miss Pauline Wright was maid of honor. The ushers were Lieuts. John B. Stanley, Emery A. Lewis, George Eatman, Harold Brookhart, William Hendrickson and Harry Roller. Col. E. S. Hayer, U. S. A., retired, was best man for his son.

After a honeymoon at the Governor's summer home, the couple will live in San Juan, where the bridegroom's regiment is stationed.

Miss Rebecca Dial Will Fete Class

Miss Rebecca Dial, daughter of former Senator and Mrs. Nathaniel B. Dial, will entertain Monday for her class in Creative Speech, at the Porter Bookshop Studio at 1648 Columbia road, where the classes are held.

Assisting Miss Dial will be Miss Sibilla Skidelsky, and Mrs. Ransom Miles. Ashort program will be given for the guests, including readings by Mrs. Nell Duree Norris, Miss Virginia Lang, Miss Cecile Willink and an original poem by Miss Dial. The program is a culmination ofthe first series of classes in the course of Creative Speech and Personality Development, authored by Miss Dial. The second series will begin the following Monday.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, who have been in Florida on a vacation for the past week, will return to their apartment at the Carlton Hotel about the middle of next week.

The Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins has been confined a severe cold and has made no social engagements for the near future.

Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith will entertain at dinner on March 27, in honor of Justice and Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone.

Point-Point Races Today At Warrenton

THE POINT TO POINT races to be held at Warrenton today, winding up fox-hunting for the season, will draw a large crowd of spectators.

Those taking part in the first race were Miss Lucie Duer, Mrs. Melville Church, 2d, Mrs. Robert Winmill, Mrs. George Cutting, Miss Mildred Gaines, Mrs. George A. Garrett, Mrs. Norman Toerge, Tom Mott, jr., Francis Green, Jerry Webb, Dick Kirkpatrick, Frederick H. Prince and Crompton Smith.

Those in the second race were Mrs. John A. Hinckley, Mrs. Amory Carhart, Miss Jane Baldwin, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Mrs. Frederick Prince, Miss Nancy Hanna, Mrs. George A. Garrett, Miss Nancy Redmond, Miss Natalie Hazzard, Charles Cushman, William Emory, Clark Baldwin, r., H. L. Welch and Dick Kirkpatrick.

Going over the Warrenton hunt country, the course will be announced at the start. This gives all those competing the same chance to win the race, and the short cuts can be planned, though of course those who know their hunting country best and have a good "bump of locality" will have a better chance of taking short cuts and coming in front.

THE WARRENTON HUNT, old-fashioned point-to-point races, which have been held annually for the past six years, are decidedly the most interesting and exciting of any point-to-point races. They have no flagged course, but start at a given point, cover their course, and back to the finish point the best and shortest way they can, picking up tokens at certain places, to show they have gone as instructed.

The riders are sometimes out of sight, but it is exciting to peer into the distance to see who can be recognized appearing over the horizon first. That is what will be done today. First race to be run is for individuals and covers about five miles over Warrenton Country.

ON THE committee are Amory C. Carhart, M. F. H.; Harry Pool, Richard Kirkpatrick and Frederick H. Prince, jr. Judges will be William Hulbert and John Butler.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pool will entertain the exhibitors, officials and a few friends at luncheon at North Wales Club tonight, beginning at 10:30 p. m.

Crowd Expected For Running of Virginia Event

MR. AND MRS. TAYLOR SCOTT HARDINN, landed in New York on Tuesday, March 14 on the American Farmer, from a trip of two months abroad. They arrived in Washington Thursday night and have been staying with his mother, Mrs. B. L. Hardin, sr., on Connecticut avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin will attend the Point to Point races at Warrenton today, and go from there to their home "Newstead" near Upperville.

Mr. Hardin's son, Mark Hardin, who is spending the winter in Washington with his grandmother, Mrs. Hardin, and attending school, will come to "Newstead" for his spring vacation next week.

Germany to Expand Northward, Club Told

Marquis Childs Describes Pressure on Sweden by Nazis in Address to Newcomb Club Of Bethesda; Denmark Also Held Menaced

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Countries of the north may replace those of Central Europe in the headlines next year unless there is a check on German aggression, Marquis Childs told members of the Newcomb Club of Bethesda yesterday. Mr. Childs, author of "This Is Democracy" and "Sweden, The Middle Way," devoted his talk on "Sweden" to a discussion of the pressure being felt by that country and its Scandinavian neighbors as a result of the Nazi conquests to the south. Mme. Folke Wennerberg, wife of the counsellor of the Swedish Legation was a guest at the luncheon which was held at the Kennesaw, on Sixteenth street.

Denmark is today in the greatest jeopard and the Nazi Government is bringing tremendous power to bear on it, Mr. Childs declared. He told of having been in the office of the Danish foreign minister when a group of correspondents called to protest against an order not to criticize the Nazi regime. The minister's explanation to them was that German firms had threatened to to cut off their trade with Denmark unless the press halted its attacks on Reichfuehrer Hitler.

Extend Policy of Economic Dictatorship

A letter from a friend in Stockholm just this week, Mr. Childs said, revealed that large German firms were attempting to dictate to Swedish firms to the effect that no social democrats or Jews should be employed in their factories, or trade relations would be severed.

The same is true of Holland, Switzerland and the other small nations of Europe. With Great Britain's abdication in world affairs, and the League of Nations a vanished hope, there is no background of collective security for the smaller countries which prize their statehood and prize their nationality," said Mr. Childs.

The fate of Czecho-Slovakia is profoundly disturbing to them, he declared, and referred to Hitler's seizure of the $18,000,000 in gold as the most extraordinary banditry in history.

The Scandinavian countries have put their own house in order in a remarkable way, Mr. Childs asserted. There has been no war in Sweden for 125 years. There is no debt for past wars or possible future ones, such as burdens other countries in Europe and the United States. They use the percentage of their budget which would otherwise go to war-debt payments for social benefits and standardization of housing.

Sweden Outstanding In Social Progress

"Sweden is outstanding social security, housing and collective bargaining," he said. "Despite their reserve and dignity, the Swedes have succeeded in carrying out co-operation through all their national life. Consumers produce, sell and distribute their own goods on the basis of use. It has served to check and break up monopolies without the use of legislation to curb them."

The trade union movement is the most completely organized in the world, said Mr. Childs, with both employers and employes organized and prepared for collective bargaining over the conference table.

"It has not prevented labor disputes but has kept them within bounds—within the structure of law," he said.

He declared there could be no political democracy without economic democracy and that Sweden had led progress in this direction.

Mr. Childs was introduced by Mrs. Gordon Kline, chairman of program. Mrs. William Morrell, president of the club presided.

Pen Women Plan Fellowship Tea

Mrs. Embert A. Le Lacheur, founder of the "Young Authors Club," of Prince George County, will be hostess for the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women, at the fellowship tea in the studio at the Grafton Hotel from 3 to 6 Wednesday.

Miss Marjorie Webster will be the guest of honor. Mrs. E. Richard Gasch, Mrs. William W. Badgley, Mrs. Paul C. Whitney and Mrs. Daniel G. Davis will assist the hostess.

The program will include original poems and dramatic readings by Rae Ryan, Barbara Elliot, Elinor Hastings and Betty Nugent, members by Mary Jane Owen and Elinor Johnson, from the Julia Cunningham School of Dance. Piano accordian selections will be played by John Allison and George Cornelius, pupils of H. Duvall, of the Arthur Jordon School of Music.

London Educator Finds U. S. Methods Are Similar to British

Miss Florence Wood, Guest of A. A. U. W., Says System Serves Child Rather Than Glorify the Subject; She Will Be Honored at Luncheon

In England, as in this country, education is made to serve the children than glorify the subject, according to Miss Florence M. Wood, president of Southlands College, in southwest London, who is a guest at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women for a few days. Miss Wood is a member of the international relations committee of the British Federation of University Women and also member of the committee for the exchange of teachers between England and America.

This exchange she considers of immeasurable value, both in promoting international friendship and understanding and in spurring progress in education. She already has found, during her two weeks in this country, that American and English educators are following the same lines in integrating the subjects to afford the child a well-rounded comprehension of various related interests. A study of transportation, for instance, leads to discussion of geography, history and the possible use of arithmetic, spelling and art instruction all in relation to the one subject.

"Refresher" Courses Are Offered

The college of which Miss Wood is head prepares students in a two-year course as elementary school teachers. It also offers "refresher" courses of 12 weeks for those who are engaged in teaching. A law passed in 1937 provides for leaves of absence for teachers desiring ing to take this course during the school year. Physical education, in which there is steadily increasing interest, is one of the subjects Southlands is stressing.

There are gymnasiums in some of the senior departments of the elementary schools which carry pupils through to what would be our senior high school course, says Miss Wood. Free education goes only to this point. Secondary schools are free-paying. There are also trade schools which are looked on with favor. Southland is a denominational school, supported by the Methodist church.

To Travel Through Middle West

Miss Wood, who will be a guest at the luncheon of the international relations committee of the A. A. U. W. today, at which Senator Guy M. Gillette will speak, will go from here to Richmond, on to Kentucky and then West as far as Colorado Springs. She will visit the World's Fair and will sail from Montreal for England at the end of 10 weeks in the United States. She says she finds Washington "a movingly beautiful city."

Women Give Costume Party

Mrs. Alice B. Chpaman was hostess to the Woman's Club of Kensington yesterday afternoon at a luncheon and costume party. It was not a St. Patrick's celebration despite the day, and the hostess, wearing the klits of a Hinglander, struck a Scotch rather than an Irish note for the affair.

Most ofthe guests' costumes were of the gay 90's era, including those of a Flora dora sextet, Mrs. George Ashworth, Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. Edmund Noyes, jr., Mrs. Wilson Townsend, Mrs. Felix Epurney, Mrs. Roy Graves and Mrs. Richard Wiede. There were others of the foreign countries, Mrs. William Ronsaville wearing a beautiful Normandy bridal gown brought from France by her daughter, Miss Virginia Ronsaville, and Mrs. Luman Cleveland, Mrs. William Lewis and Mrs. Edmund Noyes, sr., in Chinese robes. These were sent from China by Mrs. Cleveland's daughter, Miss Marion Cleveland, who is now a missionary there.

A toast to the women of bygone days was read by Mrs. George Landick, jr., and a short program was given by pupils of the Rhinehart School for the Deaf, under the direction of their principal Miss Anna Peck. They were in Mother Goose costumes and recited the rhymes they represented.

Psi Lambda Tau To Give Fashion Show and Dance

The Washington Centennial Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star last night celebrated the homecoming of the junior past grand patron, Harry J. Schmidt.

George Thompson, the artist, was in charge of the decorations, and the entertainment, in charge of Mrs. Ernest Lee, included Hawaiian music and dancing, with Mrs. Katherine Hertzberg as soloist.

The junior past grand matron, Mrs. Helen D. Robbins, was an honored guest and the grand matron, Mrs. Ruth Cromelin, and Grand Patron Richard Titlow, and other grand officers were present.

Voteless League Urges Alley Dwelling Loan

The District of Columbia Voteless League of Women Voters passed a resolution yesterday at its monthly board meeting in Brookings Institute, urging conferees ofthe Senate and House considering the Treausry-Post Office bill to retain the item appropriating $500,000 for a loan to the Alley Dwelling Authority.

The resolution, offered by Mrs. George B. Galloway, chairman of the sub-committee on housing, of the Department of Government and Economic Welfare, points out that the Alley Dwelling Authority, created by Congress in 1934, has made progress in slum clearance and should be allowed to continue what it has so well begun. Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, president of the legaue, presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Dick and Miss Jones, International Officers, to Attend Montgomery Quota Fete Today

MRS. BERTHA DICK, president of Quota International, and Miss Gwladys Jones, interntional secretary, will be guests of the Montgomery County Quotarians at a luncheon today, at 2 p. m., at Mrs. K's Tavern, Colesville pike, Silver Spring, Md.

MRS. GIDEON STIEFF, president of the Maryland Federation of Garden Clubs, who was here from Baltimore yesterday to attend the program given by Malvina Lindsay, women's page editor of The Post, at the Chevy Chase Women's Club, says members of her organization are watching the roadside control bill in the State Legislature. They are eagerly awaiting the decision of the judiciary committee of the Maryland Senate on the proposed measure, which was introduced by their organizations.

Mrs. Stieff is a former member of the board of the Maryland State Federation of Women's Clubs and a past president of the Roland Park Women's Club. She was accompanied from Baltimore by Mrs. Thomas J. Tingley, now president of the Roland Park Club, and recently nominated for president of the Baltimore District of the Maryland Federation.

MRS. GEOFFREY CREYKE, chairman of Americanism for the District D. A. R., yesterday spoke at a meeting of Commonwealth Chapter of Richmond, at which Mrs. James H. Price, wife of Gov. Price of Virginia, was hostess at the Governor's mansion.

TROOP 50 of District 3 of the Girl Scouts will give an Irish play tonight at Ben Much School, Thirty-sixth and Davenport streets. It is "The Twig of Thorne," a fairy tale, and is directed by Mrs. Robert Laughlin, captain. Principal roles are being taken by Patsy Bastain, Mary Whittlesey, Nancy Linkins, Nancy Reagain, Gene Ferris, Natalie Roberts and Marie Woodall.

Joan Garwood, in charge of properties, has made 75 programs and built the fireplace for the setting.

EPSILON CHAPTER of Kappa Beta Pi met last night at the home of Mrs. Burnit Shelton Matthews, with Mrs. Grace Brown Stiles, assistant U. S. District attorney, as speaker.

ALPHA CHAPTER of Phi Delta Gamma, national fraternity for graduate women, is having a travel dinner tonight. From "France,' 'the home of Miss Cathren Ludlum, 7 West Bradley lane, the guests will go to "America," the home of Mrs. F. W. Crocker, president for an old-fashioned turkey dinner; to "Italy," home of Miss Eleanor Gessford, for salad, and "Ireland," the home of Miss Grace Johnson, for dessert.

Men Resent the Bossy Women, Editor Warns Chevy Chase Club

The bossy woman is the most amusing and also the type most resented by men, Malvina Lindsay, woman's page editor of The Post and author of "The Gentler Sex" column, told members of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase yesterday. Speaking before the literature section, at its largest meeting of the year, with more than 300 members and guests attending, she discussed feminine foibles and gave some of the reasons why "Women Are Funny."

Mrs. Harry F. Lowe, a member of the club, presented two of "The Gentler Sex" columns as readings, "Peace" a soliloquy and "Good Causes," a monologue. The program given at the new clubhouse on Connecticut avenue, was in charge of Mrs. F. F. Espenchied, chairman of the section.

Men get a thrill out of seeing ridicule of the managerial, matriarchal type of woman—the one who manages the family dinner at Christmas time and all the people who attend it, who manages the office and everything else she can, said Miss Lindsay. Their enjoyment of ridicule of this type of woman is symbolic, she said of man's effort to escape her. "She has been after him since the stone age, trying to make him clean up and behave himself."

"The jazz age of the 20's was a revolt against the 'mother knows best' type of woman. She developed early in the 70's when women first came out of the home to work for suffrage, for reform and in clubs. Men resent her in public life as well as in the home and enjoy jokes at her expense.

"The dowager and the society snob—which is a variation of the dowager type—have long been the mainstay of the satirist and caricaturist, and people like to see them lambasted. Women in organization work are funny, too," said Miss Lindsay, "largely because they are so obsessed with detail. But clubwomen are good sports and are ready to laugh at themselves."

As a closing admonition Miss Lindsay advised the women not to retreat from their busniess, but to be more subtle about it.

To Sponsor Benefit

The ladies board of Georgetown University Hospital has announced April 28 as the date for its benefit card party and dance, which will be held at the Willard Hotel. Mrs. L. A. Martel, president of the board, is in charge of arrangements.

Group to Form Alumni Chapter

The alumni of the American Conservatory and School of Fine Arts in Fontainebleau, France, will have a reunion and business session this afternoon at the Washington College of Music, 1810 Connecticut avenue, at which a local alumni organization will be formed. The meeting, at 4 o'clock, will be followed by a lecture on Monteverdi by Nadia Baulanger. In the group of 60 alumni residing here, about 30 are musicians and the others, painters and architects.

Mrs. Walter Couper, who has called today's meeting, studied three years at Fontainebleu with Mme. Boulanger, and was former organizing secretary of the alumni association. She is now a member of its American committee.

Among the local musicians who are alumni are: Mrs. Marciel Bishop, Stewart Dickson, Mrs. Johann Martin Friedenhagen and Miss Margaret Tolson, pianists; Miss Charlotte Klein, organist at St. Margaret's Church and Miss Beatrice Pinckney Jones, formerly of the faculty of Foxcroft School.

Radcliffe Alumnae To Give Tea for Dorothy Sands

The Radcliffe Alumnae Club of Washington is planning a tea Tuesday at 4:30 at the Parrot Tea Room, 1701 Twentieth street, in honor of Dorothy Sands, an alumna of the class of 1915. Mrs. James S. Armstrong, president of thec lub, will receive with the guest of honor.

Miss Sands will be here with Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Candida," playing the role of Prossy. She was a member of the 47 Workshop founded by Prof. George Baker at Radcliffe and later played in New York, where she was best known for her impersonations in "The Grand Street Follies." After this, she toured in a one-woman program, "Styles in Acting," which had much success through the West, and made a second tour in a similar program, "Our Stage and Stars." Last spring she had the lead in a successful run of Alcestis" at the Sanders Theater.

IS BEER MADE IN THE U.S.A. AS GOOD AS EUROPEAN BREWS?

37 International experts couldn't believe it! But when they proved it to themselves, they agreed the best beers made in the U. S. A. are every bit as good as world-famous European brews

Pictures through courtesy of Otto Hesse, Photographer and International Barmen Association

Every American will get a real thrill out of the letter on the right! It's grand news! Read it ISN'T IT GREAT to know we can equal Europeans at their own game. At making beer! Sure Europe taught us how . . . they're the old masters at brewing! But today, thanks to the science and care of our best breweries, we can get beer as good as any ever made abroad . . . and all we have to pay is a dime! No heavy shipping charges! No import duty! No price for the name!

Experts Prove It

At a recent congress of international experts (all bar and wine stewards of different nationalities now serving or directing the finest bars in this country) an exhaustive comparison was made of the best European and Domestic beers.

Not a single man knew what beer he was comparing. They were labeled 1, 2, 3, 4, etc. All he knew was that some were imported, some domestic. He had to judge them on quality only! Their color. Their fine body. Their taste!

And when the 37 experts had made all their comparisons here was the result:

FIRST:

3 world famous imported beers had scored 48 points.

3 fine beers made in this country had scored 50 points.

Virtually no difference.

SECOND:

Each man had been asked to pick the beer he preferred to all the others.

Here a European beer won. But only by 1 single vote.

Gunther's, the beer so well known in Maryland and Washington, came next, and actually led the other 2 imported beers by a convincing margin!

Congratulations, Baltimore

Gunther's did a grand job for the U. S. Team of beers. Like one of its team-mates, an expensive beer made in the Middle West, Gunther's is a "Special Dry Lager" the kind most real beer-drinkers prefer. Gunther's has always claimed it was as dry and beer-y as an imported beer! Now the experts have proved it!

And you can prove it for yourself. Taste it. Compare it with any beer made regardless of price! Drink it for one week . . . and you'll never go back to the sweeter-type beers.

Remember Gunther's is the original and only "Special Dry Lager" made in this part of the country.

It ranks right up with the world's finest. AND HERE IT COSTS YOU NO MORE THAN ORDINARY BEERS!

HARRY BOGAARDS, President
FRANK A. LUDWIG, Manager

Gunther Brewing Company
Baltimore, Maryland

Gentlemen:-

On last Thursday evening, at a dinner of our members, held in the Empire Room of the Hotel Lexington, a very thorough and comprehensive test was made to determine the relative merits of famous imported and domestic beers.

It was gratifying to see how the standards of brewing in this country have produced beer so excellent in taste, body, and color; that three domestic beers were virtually comparable in every way with three world-famous imported beers.

Thirty-seven experts, all master bar-men and wine stewards engaged in this test, and none were permitted to know the names of the beers they tasted until the test was concluded.

You may also be gratified to learn that Gunthers was one of the highest ranking beers, receiving, as it did, the second highest number of votes for first choice. It was only exceeded by one world-famous imported beer in the opinion of these experts.

Yours very truly,

Sunday Rum Ban Is Killed In Md. House

Dynamite-Laden Bill Tabled Without Hope of Revival By Sudden Action

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., March 17.—Maryland's Legislature, torn with dissension over a dynamite-laden bill to ban Sunday liquor sales, took the bit in its teeth today and killed the controversial measure, rather than risk prolonged debate on the floor.

Admittedly one of the "hottest" pieces of legislation before the assembly, the measure would have prohibited sale of alcoholic beverages between midnight Saturday and 6 a. m. Monday.

Since its introduction six weeks ago, "Sunday prohibition" had become the center of a behind-the-scenes wet-dry fight of major proportions, filled with promise of political repercussions.

Sure-Death Move.

Today, using the super-special, sure-death "legislative clincher," which had not been called into action previously this session, the House of Delegates suddenly adopted an unexpected unfavorable report on the bill sent down by its judiciary committee, then, with a minimum of oratory, voted to lay the bill on the table in such a way that it cannot be revived this session.

In swift sequent events during the day shifted the main battleground on "Sunday prohibition" from the Senate, which was ready to vote on final passage of the bill, to the House, which, before this afternoon, had not even considered it.

Shortly before the two Houses convened at noon, word spread that lines were drawn in the lower branch to make a quick end of the liquor measure which Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor favored during his campaign and supported during its legislative life.

It was slated for debate as a special order of business in the Senate, but leaders there delayed it until they were notified the House had received the judiciary committee report. The Senate then promptly recessed to await results of maneuvers across the corridor.

Motion to Recommit Loses

A motion to recommit the bill opened the brief but tense floor struggle and lost by a narrow 58-53 margin, after several delegates switched votes at the last minute, and Delegate Walter Locke (Democrat), Fifth Baltimore, moved for immediate consideration of the unfavorable report.

Speaker Thomas Conlon prefaced his vote against acceptance of the report with an assertion he felt the Senate, which had held extended hearings on the bill through its committee on temperance, should carry the burden of final action on the measure.

Delegate Fred Houck (Democrat), Baltimore County, voting for the unfavorable report, retorted that "if the Senate hasn't the courage to face this controversial issue, I suggest we have the intestinal fortitude to go on record as men not afraid to vote what they think."

A vote of 62-50 upheld the judiciary committee action and by voice vote, the House sealed the doom of the liquor bill by applying a "clincher" which has the effect of tabling the bill and putting it beyond reconsideration at the current session.

Untaxed Land 'Discovered' In Frederick

City Backs Bill to Levy On Property Untaxed For 40 Years

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., March 17.—The "discovery" of a land-owners' group within Frederick's corporation limits which has escaped taxation for 40 years put city officials behind a move today to widen the town's tax to take in the non-levied residents.

Unimproved property, which is within the city limits but is used for agricultural purposes, is not on the tax lists at present, City Attorney Edward J. Smith informed the board of aldermen.

The report brought an immediate resolution directing Smith to prepare a bill for introduction in the General Assembly, providing that agricultural tracts within the city limits be taxable the same as other property.

The law exempts certain improvements, such as barns, but does not extend to houses or garages, Smith pointed out.

Aldermen said they felt the failure to include the untaxed property on the lists was unfair as it benefited persons financially able to purchase land within the city and use it for agricultural purposes while the regular home owner paid city taxes.

Woodside Church To Be Dedicated At Rites Tomorrow

Woodside—A program will mark the dedication of the $60,000 new church building of the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow. Formal dedication of the church will be held at 11 a. m., when Bishop Edwin H. Hughes will conduct the dedicatory ceremonies and preach the sermon. Special music will be given by the three-vested choirs of the church. Dr. Ralph D. Smith, pastor of the church, will assist.

At 9:45 a. m., the children of the church school will hold a service of dedication and at 4 p. m. a service will be held for the re-dedication of the memorial pipe organ and the dedication of the new memorial chimes. A pre-service organ recital will be given at 3:45 by Mrs. James Shera Montgomery. Dr. G. Ellis Williams, district superintendent of hte Washington District will preach and Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the United State House of Representatives will offer prayer.

On Tuesday night there will be a community night, when ministers and congregations of nearby churches will be guests of the church. A church school banquet will be held Friday at 6:15 p. m., when the Rev. John Millan, conference director of religious education, will speak.

Luray to Allow Tax Delinquents To Pay in Work

Luray, Va., March 17 (AP).—R. Leeth Renalds, town manager, has notified Luray residents who are delinquent in water service payments or municipal taxes that they will be given an opportunity to pay them in work.

He found many of the delinquents unemployed.

Gas Blast Kills Sea Master's Wife

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—Mrs. Effie M. Dix, 52, was killed today when a gas explosion rocked the home of her brother, Capt. Elmer T. Hedrick, United States shipping commissioner. Capt. Hedrick expressed belief gas in the kitchen exploded when Mrs. Dix attempted to light the stove this morning. She is the wife of Capt. James L. Dix, commander of the Merchants & Miners steamship Irwin, now en route to Savannah.

Magistrate Reform Bill Is Adopted

Committee's Report Voted in Md. House; Major Measure Nears Enactment

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., March 17.—Drastic reorganization of Maryland's magistrate system moved to within a step of final enactment in the House of Delegates today when the judiciary committee's favorable report was adopted by voice vote.

Accompanying the committee's report were 31 amendments which created 59 "trial magistrates" for Maryland's 23 counties instead of the 52 recommended in the original bill.

An identical bill introduced in the Senate is now in the judicial proceedings committee. It is expected to be reported out as soon as the House Committee amendments are incorporated.

The reorganization plan empowers the Governor to appoint a magistrate for each election district, as under the present system, but they would be only "committing" magistrates and would not try cases.

Will Abolish Fees

Elimination of the fee system of magistrate compensation is the cornerstone of the streamlining proposals. The fee system has been under attack for several years, with its opponents charging that the collection of fees sometimes enters into the outcome of a case.

An Administration-sponsored bill to set up a State College for colored students was introduced today in the Maryland Legislature.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor sent down the legislation with an announcement he would appoint a commission on a State college for colored, consisting of Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland; John E. Semmes, university regent; B. Howell Griswold, Baltimore banker; Thomas W. Pangborn, Hagerstown manufacturer, and Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, former president of St. John's College.

Semmes, the Governor said, would be chairman of the commission, which was empowered by the legislation to negotiate for the acquisition of Morgan College by the State. Morgan, a Baltimore colored institution, would become Morgan State College under the plan.

Meanwhile, with April 4 adjournment dangerously near, Chairman John E. White (Democrat), Prince Georges, of the House ways and means committee, announced a special committee meeting Monday afternoon to take final action on the $95,000,000 State budget.

White said the administration had sent in several budget amendments and that others had been made by committeemen. With these worked into the bill, it could be reported out Monday night, leaving the committee free to take up the $17,000,000 tax bill.

When the budget is passed by the House, the Senate finance committee will be able to take it up immediately since the Senate passed the revenue bill earlier this week.

1,000 Bills Remain

With more than 1,000 bills introduced since the start of the session, and less than 150 passed, the Legislature will be faced with the hardest work of the 90 days when it returns Monday. It will have about 12 days left in which to act on some 800 measures, including a number of important administration reorganization plans.

Routine proceedings of the legislature today follow:

Dr. Stokes, at 79, Tries to Keep Record Straight on Occultism

DR. HENRY NEWLIN STOKES

Many of His Neighbors Are Unaware of His Library on Q Street; Publishes Pamphlet On Theosophy 'to Expose Fakery and Fraud'

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross,

Washington has many libraries, but perhaps the most unusual is the one operated by Dr. Henry Newlin Stokes, 79, in his old-fashioned three-story house at 1207 Q street northwest. Although he has conducted it in the same location for more than a quarter century, its books are of such limited appeal and the librarian so unassuming that many of his neighbors are unaware of its existence.

Dr Stokes, father of one of America's leading syphilologists, Dr. John H. Stokes, of the University of Pennsylvania, might easily be misjudged as an eccentric if one went only by the appearance of his library-residence. To the contrary, he is a quite sociable individual, progressive and good humored, as even a short conversation will bring out.

Thousands of books and pamphlets on theosophy and occultism are scattered all over the house, from basement to attic. Stacks of them are everywhere, some piled on shelves that nearly reach the ceiling.

'You Can See What a Job It Would Be'

Before he founded the "O. E. Library League" nearly 30 years ago, Dr. Stokes had achieved an enviable reputation as a chemist. Born in Morrestown, N. J., on October 24, 1859, he received his college education at Haverford College and became one of the first successful candidates for the doctor of philosophy degree at Columbia University.

During the next five years, from 1884 to 1889, he studied chemistry in Germany and Switzerland. Returning to the United States, the elder Stokes served successively in the United States Geological Survey, on the faculty of the University of Chicago and at the Bureau of Standards. He retired from chemical work in 1909 to devote himself to his books and the editing of the "O. E. Library Critic," a pamphlet on mystical literature which comes out monthly.

As he says in the December, 1938, issue, which is the latest:

"The editor modestly calls attention to the fact that this issue begins the twenty-sixth volume of the Critic. In fact, that means rather more than 25 years of stormy existence, for, as may have been noted, while it aims to be published every month, it has often had to double up because funds were lacking to publish regularly."

'I Try to Keep Record Straight on Occultism'

The "O. E." in the pamphet's title does not stand for anything, he says.

Dr. Stokes sells books, lends books, exchanges books and keeps books. Many of his volumes are on subjects other than occultism. Inspection revealed titles on card tricks, keeping well, photography, prison service, psychology and economics.

He does most of his reading, writing and editing at night. Sometimes he doesn't get to bed until 4 in the morning. But he sleeps well into daylight hours. To keep in condition he takes long hikes every Sunday, usually with other members of his hiking club.

$2,157,000 Jefferson Shrine Bid

Philadelphia Firm's Figure May Be Low; 2 Weeks May Be Needed to Decide

John McShain, Inc., a Philadelphia construction company, which built the Internal Revenue Bureau annex and the foundation for the new Library of Congress annex, appeared yesterday to be low bidder on the Thomas Jefferson Memorial.

Five companies submitted estimates and McShain was low bidder in each of the four lump-sum brackets specified by the memorial commission. Its base bid, which provides for the entire work using Imperial Danby marble, was $2,157,000.

Other Estimates

The estimate submitted by the Goerge A. Fuller Co., of Washington, was $2,320,000; Consolidated Engineering Co., Baltimore, $2,309,000; Turner Construction Co., Philadelphia, $2,356,000, and P. J. Carlin Construction Co., New York City, $2,465,000.

Six lump-sum bids were invited but none of the contractors gave estimates on more than four.

Using Georgia light Cherokee marble, McShain offered to build the memorial for $2,132,000; sylga cream marble, $2,900,000, and using white rockwood limestone, $1,637,000.

The National Park Service, executive agent for the memorial commission, invited bids on a limestone superstructure only for purposes of price comparison with marble. It was long since decided that the memorial would be built of marble.

John L. Nagle, superintendent of memorials for the National Park Service, said the bids indicate that the monument to the third President can be erected within the $3,000,000 authorized by Congress.

Foundation Being Built

The foundation, now under construction and which is scheduled for completion in June, will cost $329,000.

Since there are more than two score alternate bids on various phases of the construction work to be studied, it may take ten days to two weeks to determine which of the five bidders made the lowest offer, officials pointed out.

The sealed bids were opened by Wilbur B. Montgomery, chief of the designs section of the Park Service, in the presence of contractors' representatives and Government officials.

The contractor receiving the award will have slightly less than two years in which to build the memorial.

Hagerstown Bill Would Open Polls Two Hours Later

Annapolis, March 17 (AP).—Sleepyheads in Hagerstown will get a break under terms of proposed election-law changes introduced in the House today.

Frederick E. Beachley (Democrat), Washington, proposed that election and registration days start at 8 a. m., instead of the present 6 a. m., and continue through 12 hours.

Another Beachley bill would require a direct primary for the nomination of the mayor and city council in Hagerstown. Elections would be held on the fourth Tuesday in January, 1941, and every four years thereafter.

Registration days for Hagerstown were fixed for the second Tuesday in June, 1941, and every four years thereafter, and also on the second Wednesday in March each four years, under terms of the third measure introduced by the delegate.

Frederick Hospital Joins Group Service

Frederick Md., March 17 (AP).—The Frederick City Hospital has joined the Associated Hospital Service, of Baltimore, and will receive patients insured by the service for hospitalization.

The hospital's affiliation with the service was announced when the board of managers held its annual meeting to elect officers for the coming year.

Mrs. C. E. Cline, sr., was re-elected president of the board of managers, and Miss M. Louise Jahnson was re-elected first vice president.

Banker Heads Academy Board

W. C. TURNER

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlotte Hall, Md., March 17.—William Carlyle Turner of Popes Creek, president of the Southern Maryland National Bank at La Plata, has been elected chairman of the board of trustees of Charlotte Hall Military Academy. Turner has been a member of the board for 17 years and is an alumnus of Charlotte Hall, Hotchkiss School and Yale University. As chairman of the board, he succeeds Truman H. Thomas, who resigned after serving for 52 years.

Other new members added to the board are Col. Howard C. Davidson, U. S. Air Corps, of Cremona, Md., and Maj. William H. Lloyd, U. S. Army Medical Corps, of Mount Victoria, Md.

Shenandoah Apple Trees Set Record

Lead State With Average Yield of 7.21 Bushels, Survey Discloses

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, March 17.—Shenandoah County apple trees showed the best production record in the State in 1937, with 7.21 bushels a tree, a survey conducted by the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service with WPA assistance showed today.

Shenandoah had only 168,900 trees of the 3,259,037 enumerated in Virginia, but its production per tree surpassed that of Frederick, which had 559,920 trees for the top county in the State in that respect, and other large apple-growing counties in the Shenandoah Valley.

The survey disclosed that last year new apple tree plantings were only 1 per cent of the total number of trees, a figure which it is estimated should not drop below 3 per cent if the number of bearing trees is to remain constant.

"Orchard plantings, however, are not uniform from year to year, and in the past have usually been heavy following a period of profitable prices," said Henry M. Taylor, director of the crop reporting service.

The survey showed that between 45 and 50 per cent of the apple production was packed, and between 16 and 20 per cent was sold to by-products plants. The statistics show 17.6 per cent sold in bulk to truckers, 5.7 per cent used on the farms or was "wasted" after harvest, and 6.1 per cent not harvested "because of the lack of a market.

A total of 3,308 orchards reported a production in 1937 of 13,941,544 bushels.

Apple Institute Opens Convention

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 17.—National Apple Institute opened its fifth annual convention here today, with more than 100 persons present, but without the presence of one of its scheduled chief speakers, Garrit Vander Hooning, president of the National Association of Retail Grocers, of Grand Rapids, Mich., unable to come because of pressure of other duties.

Conferences and informal addresses occupied the gathering today, topped with a banquet this evening.

The principal business session, with election of officers and designation of committees, will follow the luncheon tomorrow.

Griffenhagen Expert to Defend Plan

To Testify Monday; Donovan to Give Statistics Favoring D. C. Heads' Proposal

Claims that approximately $3,000,000 might be saved in District government costs under the proposed Griffenhagen reorganization plan will be defended Monday before the House subcommittee on District appropriations by Frank O. Everett, chief of the Griffenhagen staff.

Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and perhaps other officials will present statistics to show the reorganization plan proposed by the Commissioners in opposition to the Griffenhagen study is not only more efficient, but just as economical.

Hearings on the reorganization plan yesterday before the special reorganization subcommittee of the House District Committee brought out renewed opposition to abolishing the Board of Education. Appearing in behalf of the present school setup were: Mrs. Ernest Howard, for the District Federation of Women's Clubs; Sparrel A. Wood, Citizens' Forum of Columbia Heights, and Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, of the Forest Hill Citizens Association.

Wants Elective Board

L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said his organization favored an autonomous school board but wants it elected instead of appointed, as at present.

Support for the Griffenhagen proposal to make the School Board part of the District government, operating just like the Board of Welfare and other agencies, was given by Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association.

With exception of the plan to cut the District loose from the Federal Budget Bureau, Lusk said the executive committee of his organization was strongly in favor of the reorganization plan. The Budget Bureau he termed a real friend of the Washington taxpayers, declaring it saved money for them each year.

Praised Present Setup

W. H. Lowder, of the Trinidad Citizens Association, appeared at yesterday's hearings to praise the commission form of government and declare: "We don't want to vote. Just give the Commissioners more power. That is all we ask of you."

Any reorganization made in administration of Washington's slum-clearance program, Mrs. Helen Dewey Hoffman, executive secretary of the Washington Housing Association, urged should be assigned to a single agency like the Alley Dwelling Authority now in operation.

George E. Kneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club of Washington, appeared in opposition to the plan to split functions of the Department of Motor Vehicles and Traffic among three departments.

"We not only favor retention of the department in the present form," he said, "but an expansion of its responsibilities to include the registering of liens on motor vehicles."

Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, presiding in the absence of Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, adjourned the hearings until 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Maryland Revokes Road Foremen's Officer Badges

The Maryland State Roads Commission yesterday withdrew special officer badges from construction foremen following a priest's complaint he had been arrested illegally.

The Rev. Francis A. Stillar, of Thomas, W. Va., was arrested by Percy Wolfe, a foreman, on the Baltimore boulevard at College Park last week. Wolfe took him to the police station at Hyattsville and obtained a reckless driving warrant. Justice of the Peace John J. Fainter dismissed the case for lack of evidence.

Acting on the priest's complaint, the roads commission told Wolfe that his badge did not carry police powers, and ordered him to turn it in.

Screen Comedy And Goodman Band at Earle

'Spring Madness' Is Cleverly Played; Jitterbugs Revel

"SPRING MADNESS." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of Philip Barry's play, "Spring Dance," adapted to the screen by Edward Chodorov, featuring Maureen O'Sullivan, Lew Ayres and Burgess Meredith, with Ruth Hussey, Ann Morriss, Joyce Compton, Jacqueline Wells, Frank Albertson, Truman Bradley, Marjorie Gateson, Renee Riano, Sterling Holloway and Dick Baldwin. Directed by S. Sylvan Simon. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

King Benny, in the flesh, and King (Burgess Meredith) Harry, in shadowy likeness, are the top cards in the Earle Theater's newly dealt deck. There is little doubt that the Jitterbugs hold trump suit, although Meredith is an ace up the sleeve of "Spring Madness," as a refreshing character in an innocuous college comedy that fits neatly into the youthful spirit of the game.

King Benny Goodman's flush hand is his orchestra of 13 and his radio-famed favorites, Martha Tilton, Ziggy Elman and Lionel Hampton. He leads his orchestra in nearly a 60-minute offering, contributing solos himself and introducing his entertainers. Martha Tilton sings, "In the Still of the Night," "I Can't Get Along Without You," "The Cuckoo in the Clock" and, if you are properly insistent, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." The first hot spot after the opening, "Hold Tight," is "One o'Clock Jump," and next, Ziggy Elman's trumpet solo. Jack Durant supplies Hollywood impersonations and finally Lionel Hampton does arrive to bang the "skins" and traps and really bring the mercury to the top of the tube. Eunice Healy, that excellent little tap-ballet dancer and former partner of Paul Haakon, also has a spot on the bill.

No Dancing In Aisles

At yesterday afternoon's early—and crowded—showings, Washington audiences showed themselves to be as staid as Englishmen with umbrellas, contrasted to those wild reports which have filtered in to our town from the outside world about jitterbugs who dance in the aisles and shriek "Hi-di-ho" as accompaniment to the savage Benny Goodman rhythms. While there were swaying heads, jiving necks and swinging tootsies, our wunderkinder, who lap up the Goodman strains, remained roped to their chairs.

Important to "Spring Madness" is "The Lippencott," neither a hotel nor a horse race, but a character played with novel spark by Burgess Mededith, star of this week's stage play at the National. "The Lippencott" is room-mate to hero Lew Ayres in our college charade, a lively fellow with a yen for travel and a candid camera. It is a part reminiscent of "Buzz," which he played in the stage production of "She Loves Me Not."

Philip Barry, most recently represented by "The Philadelphia Story," originally adapted "Spring Madness" as "Spring Dance," which is far more to the point of the tale, but which lacks the appeal inherent in the word "madness" and so important to film titles. As a vehicle for the then newcomer, Julie Haydon, it was short lived.

Tells Simple Story

It still tells the simple story of the college lass whose boy friend, after Harvard graduation, plans to go to Russia for two years. He and his roommate plan to live life before they settle down into a rut. With the connivance of her classmates and a gallant young professor, she gets a place on "The Team," by which the gals mean she's got a man. Sam has taken her to the spring dance, an act tantamount to marriage in that pristine school.

Maureen O'Sullivan is the sweet young thing and very sweet she is, too. Lew Ayres is the Harvard star-gazer, whose plans are thwarted by feline action. That invaluable comic, Sterling Holloway, dreams his customary fashion through the piece and Frank Albertson is also on hand. Ruth Hussey, Ann Morriss, Joyce Compton and Jacqueline Wells are the other charmers of the alluring quintet. Renee Riano contributes her familiar wall-flower damsel.

But it is Meredith as "The Lippencott" who rescues "Spring Madness" from the run-of-the-mill college yarn. RICHARD L. COE.

'House of Fear' To Be Filmed

Peter Milne, the scenarist, has been engaged to adapt "The House of Fear," a popular novel by Wadsworth Camp, which is set for filming in the near future.

A mystery melodrama, it will be made under the supervision of Edmund Grainger, associate producer.

Cast and director will be announced soon.

The Ritz Brothers Have Fun As 'The Three Musketeers'

Don Ameche Costars In Capitol Film; McCarthy and Parker Head Stage Show

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a musical version of the Dumas story, adapted to the screen by M. M. Musselman, William A. Drake and Sam Hellman, with added material by Sid Kuller and Ray Golden, starring the Ritz Brothers and Don Ameche, with Binnie Barnes, Lionel Atwill, Gloria Stuart, Paulina Moore, Joseph Schildkraut, Johns Carradine, Miles Mander, Douglas Dumbrille, John King, Russell Hicks, Gregory Gaye, Lester Matthews, Egon Brecher, Moroni Olsen, Georges Renavent and Montague Shaw. Music and lyrics by Samuel Pokrass and Walter Bullock. Directed by Allan Dwan. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

There is more of "The Three Mukesteers" in "The Three Musketeers" than might be suspected from the fact that the Ritz Brothers are its stars.

BELL

As has been true in most of the stage and screen version of Alexandre Dumas' swashbuckling romance, whether musicalized or not, there is a sound foundation of basic narrative in the new Twentieth Century-Fox production, now being shown on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. The present story is based, of course, on the long-standing feud between Cardinal Richelieu's Guards and the King's Musketeers and, as was the case in the late Florenz Ziegfeld's operetta, deals principally with the recovery of the Queen's emerald brooch by D'Artagnan during his frenzied pursuit of Milady De Winter to Calais and back.

Is Largely Authentic

A great deal of the action is authentic Dumas. A vast amount of the comedy is anachronistic, but not so much so as might be expected from the lunatic Ritzes. They enter the picture as three chefs in a wayside tavern, visited by Athos, Aramis and Porthos, where these lusty swordsmen prankishly plot to drink them under the table. The three musketeers are the ones who finish the evening on the floor and the simple kitchenmen merely steal their uniforms and plumed hats to do a little innocent masquerading. They do not discover until later that they have committed an offense for which the penalty is death. It is here that a typical sample of their comedy bobs up. Jimmy remarks in sheer terror that he already can feel the noose around his neck. "Never mind," says Harry, "it isn't there and no noose is good noose!" And that's the way it goes.

Many of the characterizations, however, are reasonably legitimate. Don Ameche, costarred with the comics, for example, does an honest, ebullient and vocally proficient bit of work as D'Artagnan; so do Douglas Dumbrille, John King and Russell Hicks, as the real musketeers; Joseph Schildkraut, as the King; Gloria Stuart, as his queen, and Binnie Barnes, in the character of the beautiful and conniving Lady De Winter. The best performance in the cast—the nature of the treatment of the classic story being what it is—is contributed by Miles Mander, as Cardinal Richelieu. Lionel Atwill, John Carradine, Moroni Olsen—who was a musketeer himself once in an earlier production—Lester Matthews and George Renavent are others who lend something of authenticity to a work that has not been too much desecrated.

"The Three Musketeers," in its present manifestation, gives the Ritz Brothers the most legitimate vehicle for their fun they ever have had and they do much better with it than you might think. The best of the songs with which the picture has been embellished are "Song of the Musketeers," "My Lady" and "Voila," the last two sung by Don Ameche and variously reprised.

Stage Bill Is Speedy

The stage bill at the Capitol this week is presided over by that nimble comic, Lew Parker, and stars Clem McCarthy, noted sports announcer and commentator. Mr. McCarthy is introduced by a composite of newsreel shots, then announces a burlesque prize fight and closes with a series of microphoned anecdotes. He was a huge hit yesterday afternoon.

So was Lew Parker, assisted by Marcella Clair and Artie Conway, on the stage, and Paul Murdock and Sid Gold, two stooges, in the stage boxes. In addition, he introduces the Five Jansleys, upside-down acrobats and gymnasts; The Midshipmen, an excellent double male quartet, and the 16 Rythm Rockets in numerous routines.

Phil Lampkin's St. Patrick's Day overture—a rousing symposium of Irish tunes—a Terrytoon cartoon comedy and the Fox Movietone News complete a bill that leans strongly to the comedy side.

Actor Fooled by Phoney Phone Call

When Charlie Foy was summoned at 8 p. m. for the role of Jinx Donovan in "Sweepstakes Winner," he was instructed to learn the dialogue from pages 27 to 47.

Then a mysterious phone message reached him at 12:30 a. m. and the voice said there had been a mistake. Charlie was to learn dialogue from pages 100 to 118. Unable to obtain confirmation of the message, Foy stayed up all night learning both chunks of dialogue.

"I didn't get to bed until 5," says Foy bitterly. "When I got to the studio at 7 I discovered the second message was a phoney. I suddenly remembered there had been a sound of night club music when that fake instruction came over the phone, and then Maxie Rosenbloom innocently wandered over onto our set. So I put two and two together, and now wait until you see what I do to Rosenbloom."

The Queen Who Loses the Brooch

GLORIA STUART,

who appears in the role of the hapless queen who escapes from Richelieu's trap by a hair's breadth, in the new musicalized version of Dumas' "The Three Musketeers," now on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater, with the Ritz Brothers starred and Don Ameche in the role of D'Artagnan. The story is not so burlesqued as might be imagined

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, March 17.

DIXIE DAVIS: If instead of the suspended sentence which Dewey will recommend you'll be sentenced to the penitentiary, your wedding will have an ironic note . . . Because the man who usually officiates at the wedding ceremonies of prisoners headed for the penitentiary and who, therefore, will have to pronounce blessings upon you is Deputy Clerk Phil Hines—brother of Jimmy Hines.

ABC BOARD: The grand jury this week is voting upon indictments against five officials in connection with influence used in obtaining liquor licenses and regarding credit extension to liquor stores by the dealers . . . Congressional Library: Only 2,300 copies of President Roosevelt's book, "The Public Papers and Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt," have been sold to date. The publishers have 6,000 copies left, but refuse to sell the volumes at cut-rate . . . Gen. G. V. H. Moseley; Because the Communist Party in Massachusetts has asked that you be prosecuted for sedition because of your recent statements, the American Civil Liberties Union has written to the Secretary of War offering to defend your right of free speech.

NEW YORK TELEPHONE CO.: You probably have your own reasons for eliminating the "Vanderbilt" exchange from the New York telephone system . . . But one New York lady is very much distressed at your decision . . . While she doesn't live in the "Vanderbilt" exchange sector, she had a special trunk line and phone operators employed at a place within that sector, connecting with her residence outside the area—all because she wanted a telephone number with a "Vanderbilt" exchange . . . Her name is Mrs. Vanderbilt. THE Mrs. Vanderbilt.

DRAMATISTS' GUILD: The playwright group—Bob Sherwood, Elmer Rice, Sam Behrman, Sidney Howard and Maxwell Anderson—now are considering the production of a play written by an outsider. The author is Herb Rudley, who portrays Seth Gale in "Abe Lincoln." The cast of "Lincoln" has a studio group, and rehearsed this new play backstage . . . F. D. Roosevelt, jr.: Hilda Emery Davis, who wrote the love song which was played at your wedding, will go West next week to hear the San Francisco Symphony play her tone poem . . . Chamberlain: Gladys Henson, of "Set to Music," hopes there won't be another crisis. She told Bea Lillie of the last scare and of her gas-mask practice. "A gas mask," she lamented, "makes one feel so lonely."

GEORGE ABBOTT: Vaughn Glaser of your production, "What a Life," is leaving for Hollywood to appear in the movie version . . . As a going-away gift, the cast presented him with a traveling bag . . . When Glaser leaves, he'll discover that he contributed to that gift—because the cost was charged to the company's pay roll—and the company is on a co-operative basis . . . Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau: Now that you and Undersecretary Hanes have set up the trial balloons regarding taxation, the President will make his own announcement within a few days . . . Fredric March: RKO, which will co-produce the movie version of "The American Way," is anxious to produce it before next March, the contractual release date. Because of the new developments in Europe, they feel the sooner the picture is released, the better . . . Lou Gehrig: George Perry, the Yankee official who was neglected in Ruppert's will as compensation will have the Ruppert beer sales rights for the bright-lights district.

MAYOR FRANK HAGUE: When Sam Harris, Broadway's grandest figure, marries Kathleen Watson—which probably will occur today—they'll go to Jersey City for the ceremony . . . George Jessel had introduced them and urged them to wed . . . When Jessel returned from Florida last week, he told all their friends that they would marry . . . Harris phoned him and asked: "What's the idea of telling that to everybody?" . . . "Because I think it's a good idea and you'll both be happy," Jessel replied . . . "Say," Harris decided, "that IS a good idea" . . . And so Jessel will be best man.

DARYL ZANUCK: Your star, Don Ameche, together with Michael Bartlett, sing "O Sole Mio" for the Italian waiters in the Broadway night clubs after all the customers have gone . . . Sinclair Lewis: Arrangements now are being completed for authors to receive royalties from the rental of their books. The book-renting libraries pay no royalities. They'll be expected to pay one cent per rental . . . Billy Rose: Richard Smart, the millionaire singer at the Monte Carlo, can't accept your offer . . . Smart, whose family owns an island in Hawaii, got his job when he donned old tattered clothes and sang for Louis Shurr, the agent . . . When he was signed for the Monte Carlo, Proprietor Felix Ferry didn't know of his wealth. "I was so surprised when I found out," Ferry confesses, "I didn't even ask him to invest money."

Riches Fail To Halt Career

Efforts of James F. Mathews, erstwhile "boy wizard of Wall Street," to compel his daughter, Joyce, to forego her movie career appeared blocked when Paramount refused to sell him the starlet's contract.

For more than a year the millionaire has sought to persuade his beautiful blonde daughter to surrender her Hollywood aspirations.

Inducements held out to the young starlet included a tour of Europe, a yacht, a home in Connecticut, and an established place in the gay social whirl of Miami Beach, Fla., where the New York millionaire makes his winter home on fashionable Star Island.

When all of these tempting offers were rejected, the father sought to purchase the starlet's contract at a price which studio officials said was "substantial."

The offer was refused because Miss Mathews would rather earn an honest living than be a "pampered darling." Joyce has just been assigned to the romantic lead in "Boy Trouble," the new Charles Ruggles-Mary Boland picture, as a result of her performance in "Artists and Models Abroad," her first major part.

Joyce Mathews came to Hollywood more than two years ago. Determined to succeed entirely on her own, the girl made no reference to her social position in New York. That she is the heiress to a fortune of more than $3,000,000 was not disclosed until she encountered a studio employe who knew her father.

Secrecy Shrouds Nazi Spy Actress

Considerable mystery surrounded the identity of an elderly character actress who joined the cast of "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" to portray the role of Paul Lukas' wife.

According to grapevine rumors emanating from the tightly closed set, she was addressed by everyone, cast and crew, as "Mrs. Kassel," her character name in the picture.

The studio casting office declined to divulge her identity. She was listed on the call sheet only as "Mrs. Kassell."

It was rumored, however, that the middle-aged woman is a celebrated German character actress who smuggled herself out of Germany in fear of Nazi retaliation for remarks made against the Nazi regime.

Mickey Rooney Returns as 'Huck Finn'

Mark Twain Story Of American Boyhood At Columbia Theater

How about drifting down the Mississip' with Huckleberry Finn-Mickey Rooney? This adventurous cruise with Mark Twain's beloved demi-hero is being elected by large audiences at the Columbia. And may we venture to predict that Huckleberry's "pleasure cruise" will be a sell-out at neighborhood theaters.

In tackling the role of Huckleberry Finn our young friend, Mickey Rooney, has gone head-on into the toughest role of his career. Heretofore, Mickey has shone largely in the role of a high school jitterbug which, our psychologic instinct tells us, has come rather naturally to him. But in playing Huck he had to tackle a different problem. He had to absorb the feeling of another and already remote day, the characterization of a great writer (a writer who is tragic under the comedy). Altogether, Mickey has done pretty well. If he had done better, he would have been the juvenile wonder of the age.

No Love Interest

It may be a warning. Or is it a lure? To us it was a happy surprise. But the "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" has no love interest. It's just Huck and the Big River, with Jim, the runaway slave, and a couple of low-down gambling crooks who are fished aboard by accident and mess up the works with their putrid schemes. Mark Twain's story and thought are followed in only elliptical fashion. It even seemed to us that we detected absolutely modern phrases in the supposed idiom of the period. This, with Mark Twain's wealth of phrase to glean from, as well as the voluminous lighter literature of the period.

But laying aside remembrances of Mark Twain's story, this saga of Huck Finn is fast-paced and entertaining. Every kid and every grown-up, too, will enjoy Huck, the problem underprivileged child (in 1939 jargon) of his age and his goshawful troubles and adventures. Never miss seeing the current "Huckleberry." It belongs in your mental movie gallery.

Supporting Cast Scores

Walter Connolly and William Frawley go period in this one, cope valiantly with their roles. Elisabeth Risdon is endearing as the Widow Douglas, who tries to reclaim the difficult Huck. Minor Watson (former National stock) plays Capt. Brandee handsomely. Rex Ingram, an essentially excellent colored actor, must have responded well to direction, but the more modern members of his own race are certainly going to call him "Uncle Tom" in their lighter moments.

Best sequence in "Huck": When he pulls out on the river by himself, a boy on his own and happy about it.

Plenty of good shorts at the Columbia, too, including a "We Kids" called "Alfalfa's Aunt;" a scientific flash showing sheep pastures on the Western top o' the world, meaning the Continental Divide. The newsreel contributes perhaps unintentional comedy with England's Queen Elizabeth seriously inspecting airplane motors. Where's Chamberlain?

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., March 17.—Tom Douglas and Rex Evans, former actors, have been decorating like mad—it's Clark Gable's new house and it will be finished March 17. While the wires are being burned up to find out Clark's wedding date, when Clark gets a couple of hours off he doesn't bother about anything but tilling his soil. No king and queen stuff for Clark and Carole, they'll break the news to all the papers at the same time.

HEDDA HOPPER

A former glamour girl promised an exclusive story to a pal who had helped her and how, but didn't keep her word and has found out she wasn't so smart, after all.

Gustav Machaty, who gave us Ecstasy, has been biting his fingernails for two years at Metro, when they finally give him "Within the Law" to do, which he finished in 18 days. And gave Metro a new Ruth Hussey who is swell.

Roy del Ruth, who will direct "The Star Maker," is going frantic from mothers with young geniuses. He did a nip-up the other day when a youngster, who must have been at least five, said, "You look like a real guy. How about a few verses from Frankie and Johnnie?"

The real father of Ginger Rogers' 6-month-old baby in "Little Mother," is a "grease monkey" at the Douglas Aircraft Co. The baby has a wonderful smile which seems to be saying, "You can't get away with this." He can't work over two hours a day, so has two doubles and a stand-in. The doubles were the runners-up for the real one.

The mother of one is Patsy Perrin, who plays a coed in "Sorority House." Even our babies start their publicity practically at birth.

Johnny Weismueller and 5-year-old John Sheffield are taking shots of "Tarzan in Exile" in Silverspin, Fla., where it's rained five days straight. The title is no joke. Only little Johnny's youth saved him when he insisted on California orange juice. No, he didn't get it!

Barbara O'Neil's Scottie, Snooker, has the only canine charge account in Hollywood. When Barbara's working, an attendant at her apartment house takes Snooker over to a market where he's allowed to sniff at different kinds of meat and chooses what he wants. He turns up his nose at liver and fish.

A colored extra, called Snowflake, has written a grand musical comedy called, "Dark Side of Hollywood." He says if he has to hold it long, the title might have to be changed to "The Dark Side of Life."

Jeanette MacDonald took three pairs of long woolies with her on her tour. Mercy, where's that girl going?

For those who have tried to follow Jimmy Roosevelt's car without success; it has a Minneapolis license. He'll be in the reception committee welcoming Eduard Benes, former President of Czecho-Slavakia, when he arrives her March 17.

Hear that "Wuthering Heights" is one of the best things Sam Goldwyn has ever turned out. But how about the great success of Walter Wanger's "Stagecoach" without benefit of stars? That's got the whole town thinking and talking.

Fibber McGee, who's had a run-around from every real estater here, says they can all relax. He wouldn't dream of buying anything until Mollie puts her okay on it, and she's still ill in Chicago.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 17 (I.N.S.).—Jean Arthur, whose troubles with Columbia have broken out in a rash every little while in the past, will be head woman in Wesley Ruggles' "Arizona." Apparently she is too happy, now that the dove of peace has settled to take advantage of her contract, which permits her to go to other studios for outside pictures.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Four big ones in a row for Columbia's ex-problem child are keeping Jean smiling. First, there was "You Can't Take It With You," Then "Plane No. 4," and today Harry Cohn told us that Jean would be the top femme in both Frank Capra's "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and "Arizona." The Capra pictures comes first and "Arizona" later, which will keep her busy most of the year. Edward Arnold also gets another Capra break. He did his best work with Jean in "You Can't Take It With You," and now you'll see him in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Here's news. Joan Crawford is sailing for Brazil March 26. Amusing that La Crawford, who hasn't been out of the country since she went to Europe as Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, jr., had to call her former spouse and ask him if he had her passport. Joan hasn't had a vacation for a long time and she wants a change of scenery before going to work again. She's really serious about wanting to play the vamp in "The Women," and along with Hedy LaMarr, made a test for the role this past week. I doubt very much if the M.-G.-M. biggies would consent to her playing the "other woman" in the Shearer picture.

Very interesting is the casting Arthur Hornblow did over the long distance telephone from Phoenix, Ariz., today. He is there with Myrna Loy, his bride, who is recuperating from a streptococcus throat and while he is in the desert he is getting "The Cat and the Canary" cast ready. John Beal, whom we haven't seen for a long time; Douglass Montgomery, also absent for many months, and Nydia Westman, former stage actress, all check in at Paramount in support of Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard. Certainly a change from the faces we see every day, and interesting that these three, John, Douglass and Nydia, are to once more have a chance before the camera.

Seventeen-year-old Nan Grey, who plays one of Deanna Durbin's sisters in the charming Universal movie, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," has been put into "Ex-Champ," a prize-fight yarn starring Vic McLaglen. Nan was so filled with admiration for the wedding gown she wore in the Durbin picture that producer Joe Pasternak bought it and presented it to her as a wedding gift for her coming marriage. Yes, Nan is going to marry Jockey Westrope, the boy who brought home so many winners at Santa Anita. Although it was rumored they were already wed, this has been denied by Universal. Tom Brown and Constance Worth are other members of the cast of "Ex-Champ."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Kay Linaker and Eddie Burnside confiding news of their Yuma elopement to friends at a night spot; Mickey Rooney spending his allowance this week on Mary Beth Hughes, M-G-M stock actress; Joan Crawford and Charlie Martin acting as if they don't care who knows they're in love, at the Deanna Durbin preview. Marlene Dietrich with Tyrone Power and Annabella. How long it seems since we published the first story of their South American rendezvous and love affair. It took five policemen to get Deanna out of the Pantages Theater to her car. Ann Sothern wearing a new baby bob, becoming, too. Perc Westmore, who gave it to her, will introduce his new hair do and all his make-up specialties to the "Dodge City" gals when he goes East for the preview.

European war scares sending Mrs. Natalie Kalmus home. She arrives in two weeks; Hoot Gibson and Myra Fontaine, Chicago night club entertainers, a night spot twosome; a gala night at a prominent cafe following the Durbin preview, with Reggie Gardiner leading the orchestra in his famous "Broadway Melody" routine. He was with Edith Gwynne; Noel Coward, back among us, the guest of Cary Grant and Phyllis Brooks; Leslie Howard a dinner twosome with his attractive secretary, Violet Connington; Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger and Barbara Brewster with Rudy Vallee, who dropped into a night spot after the preview; Lee Bowman goes into the hospital Monday to get rid of troublesome tonsils; Louis B. Mayer, who has been very sick with a streptococcus throat, is reported better; Charlie Feldman, in the hospital with the same ailment, is also improving.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

JOHN HENRY LEWIS' CAREER NEAR END

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

Orlado, Fla., March 17.

The Nats drew Steve Basil as their American League umpire for the exhibition game tour . . . he is the first cousin of Petey Sarron, the Alabama Syrian who briefly inhabited the world's featherweight championship until he encountered Henry Armstrong . . . Basil has never seen Sarron fight, incidentally. The American League not only pays the expenses of its umpires in spring training but gives them a $400 honorarium . . . The league demands that rookie umpires work the exhibition games, but veterans like Bill McGowan, Emmett Ormsby and George Moriarty are excused from early training. Clark Griffith favors spring training for all umpires and inquires how a fellow wha hasn't seen a baseball for six months can accurately call balls and strikes on opening day.

POVICH

Charley Keller, the Maryland boy who is supposed to be the Yankees' regular leftfielder this season, has made only one hit in four exhibition games thus far and that was an infield affair . . . Lefty Gomez reports that Keller, apparently a great natural hitter, is pressing in an attempt to impress the Yankee bosses, and consequently is not meeting the ball squarely . . . Keller's rival for the Yankee outfield berth is Joe Gallagher, who used to run wild for Manhattan College on the gridiron against Georgetown . . . Gallagher batted .346 for the Yankees' Kansas City farm last season and there are folks in the Yank camp who insist he is a better prospect than Keller . . . if he stays with the Yankees, Gallagher will be the biggest outfielder in baseball . . . he is the largest gent to perform in a big league outfield since Smead Jolly discovered he was no outfielder . . . but Gallagher is a shapely gent with his 225 pounds well distributed.

The Secret of the Bees

The Cleveland club balked for a time the deal that finally saw Bill Weber traded to the Cincinnati Reds . . . the Indians were attempting to swing a deal for Werber that would involve Earl Averill, but Connie Mack was uninterested in the 38-year-old Averill . . . The Detroit Tigers put in a bid for Averill, but the Indians refused to trade him to Detroit on the theory that they might be helping one of the clubs that had a chance to beat them out in the pennant race . . . one reason for the fact that the hitless Boston Bees always come up with a swell pitching staff is that the wind is always blowing in the batter's face at the spacious Bees' park . . . and fly balls that would hit the fences in other stadiums are caught.

Postmaster General Jim Farley is now drawing undeserved censure for refusing to permit Gene Tuney to fight Jack Dempsey for the title in 1926 . . . Farley, then a member of the New York Boxing Commission is blamed for running the title bout out of New York and into Philadelphia . . . but he was helpless in the matter . . . at the time, Al Smith was a rising candidate for the Presidency and in an effort to swing the vote of New York Negroes into the Democratic column, his State athletic commission was insisting that Dempsey give the title shot to Harry Wills . . . they refused to consider Tunney as a challenger . . . Despite evidence to the contrary, Dempsey never drew the color line . . . At one time he signed to fight Wills for Promoter Bob Fitzsimmons at Battle Creek, Mich., but Tex Rickard stepped in and halted the bout with an injunction . . . it was the late Mr. Rickard who refused to give Wills a shot at Dempsey's title.

The Cuban Situation

Bucky Harris, who has been presented with a simplified course in Spanish by a Washington fan who has heard tell of the Spanish-speaking rookies on the Washington squad, balked today . . . "Darned if I'm gonna learn Spanish," said Harris, "let those punks learn English." . . . Roberto Ortiz, the big Cuban pitcher, demonstrated today that he was not exactly a cluck . . . introduced to Umpire Steve Basil, he greeted Basil with the Spanish equivalent of "How do you do, my friend." . . . If there is any resentment toward the Cubans on the Washington squad it is directed chiefly at Outfielder Bobby Estalella, whose crime is that he resents the resentment . . . A veteran pitcher today declared that he tried to be friendly to Estalella, but that Bobby was a "big head." . . . which is not the truth inasmuch as Estalella is merely fun-loving and is certain to be a favorite with Washington fans . . . At Charlotte last year, deep in Dixie, the fans applauded Estalella from the start of the season. At Sarasota, where the Red Sox train, Outfielder Ted Williams is acclaimed as a better outfielder than the Yankees' Charley Keller . . . his 46 home runs in the American Association last season recommend him . . . A few hours before Wes Ferrell held the Reds hitless in an exhibition game and won his own game with a home run, Lefty Gomez declared: "Ferrell is pitching better than I have ever seen him. His operation has done wonders. He doesn't push the ball any more but snaps it. He's got the best control of any pitcher I ever saw." . . . Perhaps Clark Griffith traded him a year to soon . . . the real reason Griffith traded Ferrell was because the pitcher, forced to pay his own taxi fare to the Nats hotel, audily declared that "Washington is a cheap outfit."

On the Line — With Considine

New York, March 17.—Strictly poisonal:

Steve Hannagan, who is publicizing the baseball centennial at Cooperstown, will reply to Non-Believer Frank Menke by exhuming the testimony given by a Denver mining engineer named Abner Graves . . . Menke doubts that Cooperstown is the cradle of baseball and that Doubleday ever played . . . Graves, who went to school with Doubleday, told the Mills Commission in 1907 that Doubleday actually did invent the game, went to every corner of the village, teaching boys to play it, and that he was the catcher on the first team.

CONSIDINE

Christy Mathewson gained 35% of all votes in a recent poll to decide whose picture should be placed on the new baseball stamps, to be issued to palpitating philatelists in April . . . Doubleday took second place, with 26%, followed by John McGraw, with 15%.

Sutherland at Home in Pro League

Jack Harris, who is operating the Budge-Perry tour, would like us to elaborate on our recent item that Perry and Vines put up most of the dough to make Budge turn pro . . . Harris accepted $10,000 from each of Budge's opponents-to-be, he advises, but found out later that he didn't need the 20 G's, and promptly returned the checks . . . Jock Sutherland could do a lot worse than accept that job offered him by Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Club of the National Professional Football League . . . It would put him in a much higher ethical plane of football, than the one to which he has been accustomed . . . He'd feel at home in the Pro League, too, after so long at Pitt.

The fabuous Panama Al Brown, who left America nearly a decade ago, because he had run out of competition in the bantamweight class, returned the otehr day from that dear Paree and will apply soon for a license to box here . . . the spindly Negro, who is almost as tall as a heavyweight, and still only weighs 124 pounds, celebrated his return by ordering several shades of silk trunks from Benny Everlast . . . Brown has blown 15,000,000 francs in his happy-go-lucky day, fought on every continent in the world and boxed for Edward, the Prince of Wales, before 65,000 . . . He has turned them away in Copenhagen, Melbourne and little North African towns where men never before fought in a ring . . . His last job was leading a Montmarte orchestra, and tap dancing in his Eton suit . . . He looks 20, admits to 30, is about 40 and still can movearound wellenoughtowin a few hundred more scraps.

U. S. G. A. Discourages Attendance

The U. S. Golf Association is happy to report that none of its top tournaments will be held near the New York's World's Fair this year . . . The U. S. G. A. would like to discourage attendance at the tournaments as much a spossible, to keep the fairways clear, and it is hoped that all good golf fans, who have paid to be shoved around for years, will have the graciousness to cooperate and stay away . . . The pros, on the other hand, would like to stage the P. G. A. in Groven Whalen's office, with winter rules in effect if the ball lands in the great man's mustache . . . The 1939 P. G. A. will be put on at Pomonok, within brassie distance of the Trylon and Perisphere, and as usual the P. G. A. will be silly enough to pay the travelling expenses of all competitors—thus cutting down the purse from something like $15,000 to $1,000. This is a rule put into effect years ago by the canny Scots who were its charter members.

Lou Stillman, the gymnasium keeper, is threatened with a $100,000 suit aimed by a so-so fighter who was knocked cold when a heavy bag, which the fighter was slugging, came loose from its roots in the ceiling . . . Clem McCarthy opened a vaudeville tour yesterday in Washington, broadcasting an imaginary fight . . . The reason the Yanks won't fade this year is that rookies like Keller, Gallagher and Rosar—fighting madly to get into the line-up—will make the veterans hustle like mad to keep ahead of them . . . Would anybody in the audience like to bet that Lou Gehrig doesn't play every game this year? . . . What, no takers?

Dapper Dans Swamp York Quintet, 64-19

Ollie Tipton Paces Mates To Victory

Lead by 32-9 Score At Half; Now Look to Game With Aggies Bunker Hill Is Star

The United Typewriter-Dapper Dans, favorites to win the men's unlimited division of The Post-A. A. U. basketball tournament, advanced to the third round last night and at the same time indicated they're ready for next week's game with the New Mexico Aggies by running roughshod over York Haberdashery, 64-19, at Eastern gym.

Displanying a well-rounded attack the Dapper Dans never were pressed in trouncing the clothesmen, having a 32-9 lead at intermission.

Ollie Tipton, former Central and Wilson Teachers College ace with the thinning blond hair, paced the winners with 9 field goals and a pair of fouls, boosting his tournament total to 37 for two games. Other leaders of the Dapper Dans offense were Lenny Stanton, one-time Western All-High center, who made six baskets; Ifskin, with 9 points, and Hop Lomax, also a former Western All-High, who weighed in with the same number.

York's outstanding player and high scorer was Bunker Hill, well-known local softball pitcher, who hit the basket for 8 points. Rodono and Beck tallied 5, and 4 points, respectively, for the hopelessly outclassed losers.

The Dapper Dans now are confidently looking forward to a specially carded game with the New Mexico Aggies, one of six great college teams invited to the annual Metropolitan New York Sports Writers Association championship tournament. The Aggies, who were eliminated by Long Island's unbeaten and apparently invincible Blackbirds in the first round after tying the score fifteen times, were to have met the Dapper DDans last night, but were held over in Gotham for a consolation game. They are definitely to appear here next week.

Northeast Boys Trim Southeast Five, 23-18

Taking command of the game immediately after the initial tap-off, and leading by a small but sufficient margin thereafter, Northeast Boys Club defeated the rival Southeast Boys Club quintet in another 135-pound engagement, winning by a 23-18 score.

"Skinny" Essex, Northeast center, was the keyman in his team's flor game, and proved an able general, while Craig, who took individual scoring honors wtih three field goals and a brace of fouls, was outstanding for the losers.

Merrick 135-Pounders Top Alexandria, 27-18

Forging ahead in the last five minutes of play, Merrick Boys Club, 135-pounders, eliminated the Alexandria Boys Club in a well-played game. The teams left the floor at intermission with the score tied at 10-all, and were never separated by more than three or four points throughout the final half, until the eventual winners staged their game-clinching spurt.

Ray Holland's accurate scoring eye, and Buddy Yocum's ability to recover errant shots off the backboard figured prominently in the victory.

Helen Dettweiler Finishes Fourth In Aiken Tourney

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Aiken, S. C., March 17.—Washington's three emissaries of the links world, Helen Dettweiler, Mrs. Betty P. Meckley and Mrs. Myron Davey, finished fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively, today in the finals of the 54-hole Aiken golf tournament.

The Capitol City girls thus retained the positions they held at the end of the 36-hole route yesterday. But for her poor showing in the second round, when she soared to a 15 over par 85, Miss Detweiler might have collected the silver they turned over to Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., the winner with a 219 total. Miss Dettweiler's closing 74 was chalked up with her previous rounds of 71, 85—230.

Mrs. Meckley finished with a 77, her best showing of the tournament, and a total of 235. She opened with a 79 and duplicated the card Thursday.

Mrs. Davey, the third member of the Washington troupe, finished with an 80 to go along with her 78, 82 of Wednesday and Thursday. She trailed Mrs. Meckley by five shots, finishing with 240.

Cards Defeat Red Sox, 5-4, In 12 Innings

Mize's Home Run and Single Aid; Rookie Triples to Win Game

By the Associated Press.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 17.—The St. Louis Cardinals caught up with the Boston Red Sox three times today and then battled them through 12 innings to gain a 5-to-4 zvictory in one of the longest games of the spring exhibition season.

After matchin a Red Sox run in the third inning, the Cards dropped behind, but Johnny Mize smashed a home run with a man on in the eighth to tie the score. Boston went ahead again in the ninth, only to have the Cards draw up on three straight singles.

Rookie Joe Orengo, a shortstop coming up from Sacramento with a slim .277 batting average drove in the winning run in the 12th with a triple, after Mize had led off with a single.

Reds Beat Tigers In 11 Innings, 5-4

Tampa, Fla., March 17.—Four Red hurlers, three of them rookies, held the Detroit Tigers to six hits today but it required 11 innings for Cincinnati to win, 5 to 4. Bastien, Cook and Livengood were effective but the veteran Jim Weaver walked two in the sixth, helping a four-run Tiger splurge in which an error by Frey also figured. Five singles and a Tiger error enabled the Reds to tie the score in the seventh.

Phillies Rookie Shines in Defeat

New Braunfels, Tex., March 17 (AP).—held to four scattered hits, the Phillies fell before the St. Louis Browns, 3-0, today in an exhibition game at the National League club's training camp.

The losers took encouragement, however, from the performance of a rookie picher named Elmer Burkhart. A farm hand last year with the Montgomery (Ala.) club, the recruit twirled with a veteran's finesse to hold the Browns hitless during his five innings on the mound.

Errors Galore as Bees Trim Yankees, 9-6

Bradenton, Fla., March 17 (AP).—Ten errors—five by each team—turned a pretty good ball game into a farce today as the Boston Bees trimmed the New YoYrk Yankees, 9 to 6. The Yanks led 1-0 for five innings but blew up in the sixth and seventh, allowing four runs in each. Errors by Gordon and Dahlgren and a ball which took a bad hop past Dimaggio, giving Jim Outlaw a triple, figured in the first outburst. Two infield hits and two errors by Lou Gehrig and one by Dahlgren accounted for most of the seventh-inning scoring. Two Boston misplays let the YaYnks score five times in the ninth.

Ortiz Makes Pitching Debut Today for Nats

Cuban Hurler Will Start in First Exhibition Against Tigers; Griff and Harris Anxiously Awaiting Outcome of 'Noble Experiment'

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 17.—Bucky Harris' noble experiment—the attempt to transform a Cuban canefield worker into a big league pitcher—will have its first trial tomorrow and Orlando is properly excited.

For tomorrow, 6-foot 3-inch Roberto Ortiz, who has never pitched a ball game in his life, will go on the mound for a three-inning turn of duty against no less than the Detroit Tigers.

The largest crowd ever to see a spring exhibition game in Orlando is expected to overflow Tinker Field because of the fact that Ortiz will pitch, if only for three innings. The big Cuban kid who has been the most publicized rookie in the Nats' camp will be bearing down on a big league hitter for the first time in his 21 years.

"Roberto Feel Gude"

If he is shuddering at the thought, there was no inkling of it tonight. "Roberto feel gude," he was saying. "Roberto strong. Tomorrow I peetch hard. Maybe I strike out Hank Greenberg."

Meanwhile Manager Harris and Clark Griffith are on the anxious seat. They are consumed with curiosity and impatience in the case of Ortiz, who has been showing them a fast ball that has led inspired baseball writers to mention him in the same breath with Walter Johnson and Bob Feller.

"I'm not worried about his speed," said Harris today. "What I'm wondering is, can he get it over the plate? Somehow, I'd be forced to say he isn't natively wild. I will be able to tell a lot more about him after tomorrow."

Faces Sluggers

No soft spot has been picked for Ortiz in his unveiling as a big league pitching prospect. Against the Tigers he will be facing such certified sluggers as Hank Greenberg, Charley Gehringer, Rudy York and Pete Fox, to mention a few.

Almost rivaling the appearance of Ortiz in point of fan-interest, is the scheduled appearance on the

Buck Newsom Signs Browns' Contract

Former Nat Pitcher Reported to Have Received $14,000

Outshone as he was in habiliment, it was likely Newsom also was outshone in the final conference and gave ground from his demand for $20,000. The Browns were reported to have offered him $14,000.

Newsom, who won 20 games with the seventh-place American Leaguers last season, will work out for the first time tomorrow.

National Press Club to Stage Outing May 13

Annual Frolic Set For Charles Town; Roosevelt Invited

Charles Town, W. Va., March 17.—The National Press Club of Washington, D. C., will hold its annual outing and fun frolic at the Charles Town Jockey Club here on Saturday, May 13, just two days before the opening of the regular spring meet of the Jockey Club. President Franklin D. Roosevelt has been invited to be the guest of the club.

The outing of the National Press Club is one of the outstanding events of the year for official, semi-official and journalistic Washington. An annual feature of the event is a baseball game between a team representing the United States Senate and one representing the United States House of Representatives. A diamond will be laid off in the infield of the Jockey Club for this event.

This will be the first time that the National Press Club has journeyed to West Virginia for the outing.

President Roosevelt was invited recently to be the special guest of the National Press Club and the Charles Town Jockey Club at the outing and he is reported as endeavoring to arrange his duties in order that he may be here. In past years, the Chief Executive has frequently been the guest of the club at its outing.

The outing will be open to attendance by invitation only.

Boyle said that with the approval of the West Virginia Racing Commission, the Charles Town Jockey Club planned to put on a three-card race meet for the afternoon for the entertainment of the newspapermen and their guests. The card will border on the ridiculous rather than the sublime and will be constituted as follows:

1. A "mock Kentucky derby," with the horses probably being engineered by none other than those famous "Kentucky Colonels."
2. A mule race.
3. The National Press Handicap, with the jockeys consisting of fair ladies chosen from among the wives of Washington newspapermen and nearby society and hunting folk.

Doctors Find Champ's Eye Defective

'Unable to Read Headlines in Paper,' Specialists Insist

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, March 17.—John J. Hettche, chairman of the Michigan board of athletic control, announced tonight that the fight between John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, and Dave Clark, of Detroit, has been called off because of an injury to Lewis' left eye. Lewis was to have defended his title against the Detroit Negro here March 31.

Hettche said an examination of Lewis by two physicians had revealed the champion was "in good condition except for his left eye."

Dr. Daniel R. Donovan, who examined Lewis, reported that "sight of Lewis' left eye is almost nil. He was unable to read even headline print of a newspaper and apparently could distinguish only light from dark."

"Examination of Lewis' left eye," reported Dr. C. L. Tomsu, revealed that he could not detect the number of fingers held 18 inches from the eye." He diagnosed the ailment as "probable traumatic cataract."

Lewis failed to appear today for an additional examination ordered by Hettche after the two physicians made their report. He was to leave tonight for his home in Pittsburgh, apparently resentful of official demands for the recheck of his condition.

Hettchie explained that he ordered Lewis to appear before Mr. J. Milton Robb, eye specialist, "to find if the eye condition was an old ailment."

"When he failed to show up I decided he could not defend his title in Detroit," Hettchie said.

Ralph Guldahl, Bright Advance To Semifinals

By the Associated Press.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 17. Ralph Guldahl, the National Open champion who has blossomed out lately as a crack match play golfer, piloted his team today into the semi-finals of the amateur-professional best ball tournament.

He and Morton Bright, Daytona Beach amateur, won on the 21st hole over Harry Cooper of Chicopee, Mass., and William Holt of Syracuse, N. Y., when Guldahl poked his second shot dead to the pin for a birdie three.

Their opponents tomorrow will be the surprising All-Michigan combination of pro Marvin Stahl, Lansing, and Amateur Chick Harbert, battle Creek.

Still going strong after winning the medal and dumping two former winners, Stahl and Harbert defeated Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., and John Livingston of St. Augustine this afternoon 2 and 1.

The other 36-hole match tomorrow will pit Denny Shute of West Newton, Mass., and Bill Stark of Jacksonville gainst Jack Grout of Hershey, Pa., and Maynard Ramsey of Tampa.

Ramsey duplicated Guldahl's feat on the third extra hole to give his team victory over Mike Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., and Horace Williams, of St. Petersburg.

A comfortable 4-and-3 decision over Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., and Wilfred Wehrle, of Racine, Wis., moved Shute and Stark through the quarter-finals.

Teamed with Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Guldahl started his recent impressning the international four-ball sive match play showing by winmatches at Coral Gables last week.

Snead lasted until this morning when he and Al Dollins, of Covington, Va., were ousted by Grout and Ramsey, 2 and 1.

The afternoon Stahl-Harbert triumph was an anticlimax to their morning 4-and-3 victory over the combine of Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., and Frank Ford, of Charleston, S. C., which yesterday scored a best ball 61 for an unofficial course record.

Bridge Expert P. Hal Sims and Craig Wood, both of Deal, N. J., bowed out in the second round, one down, to Turnesa and Williams.

Redskin Ticket eadline Tonight

With an unprecedented demand for season tickets received, General Manager Jack Espey, of the Washington Redskins, last night announced that all reservations must be called for before 6 o'clock this evening or be placed on sale to the general public Monday morning.

Seats held last year for the season have been retained for the same parties, but failure to pick them up before the deadline today will be interpreted as meaning they are not desired for next season. A brisk demand for tickets has kept the Redskin office staff busy, and all indications point to a record turnout for the '39 campaign.

Our Ketcham Takes Tropical Park Purse in Record Time

Races Home In 1:42 Time To Pay $17.40

Warlaine Falters After Setting a Blistering Pace; Neighbor Is Third

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., March 17.—J. B. Partridge's Our Ketcham, a colt that had failed to make much of a showing this winter in sprints, today ran like a champion in winning the St. Patrick's Day purse of a mile and 70 yards, in which possible candidates for the $10,000 Tropical Handicap were on display. The bay son of Spanish Play ran the distance in 1:42 flat to smash the track record, held by Co-sport and Teddy weed, to Smithereens. The latter pair held the recently established mark of 1:43 4-5.

"Chuck" Charlton guided our Ketcham past the fire a length and a half in front of W. W. Adams' Warlaine. Jesse Spencer's Neighbor lost the place by a length. Our Ketcham paid $17.40.

Long Shots literally drove the favorite players out of the park, just as St. Patrick, Patron Saint of Ireland, drove the snakes out of the Emerald Isle. Co-sport was the fifth straight public choice to finish out of the money. Outsiders were stepping down in front as if inspired.

Apprentice Charlton's victory on Our Ketcham moved him into a tie with Jimmy Ashcroft for the riding leadership at the meeting. These lads had 13 triumphs apiece after this event.

Warlaine set a blistering pace. He led the remarkable Our Ketcham by almost two lengths until they turned into the short stretch. Then Warlaine got Leg Weary and Our Ketcham, under 106 pounds, breezed to the front. Neighbor, nicely placed behind the leaders, closed gamely and was wearing Warlaine down in the final strides. Co-sport sampled the early pace in third position, but soon gave up the chase and wound up fifth in the field of six.

The day of upsets wound up with an easy length and a half victory for Myron, the longest shot of the afternoon at $81.70 for two. Actdine was second and chancing, the favorite, third.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAMBREEZE, $43.00, $19.60, $10.60; TOWN LEAGUE, $69.40, $24.90; SAXONBY, $3.80.

CAMBREEZE, moving into contention rapidly on the outside in the run down the backstretch, saved ground in the final quarter mile and, closing gamely to punishment, outgamed TOWN LEAGUE in the final drive. TOWN LEAGUE, quickest to begin, showed the most speed, but faltered when challenged. SAXONBY, prominent all the way, moved up menacingly on the outside on the stretch turn, but hung in the last furlong. BERT W. closed a big gap from a slow beginning. AMERICUP was hit at the start and knocked off her stride. She was never a serious contender thereafter.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:31. Off 2:33. Winner, Mrs. R. H. Lloyd's b. f. (3), by Golden Guinea—Doric. Trained by A. P. Lloyd. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY WO, $38.50, $12.80, $7.20; NANAHCUB, $6.20, $3.50; HENRYEL'S PICK, $3.70.

LADY WO took command at once and was rated along with company until well around the turn, drew out into a good lead, but was kept under brisk pressure to the end. NANAHCUB gradually bettered her position on the outside and wore HENRYEL'S PICK down in the last strides. HENRYEL'S PICK, prominent contender all the way, faltered slightly in the stretch run. CREAM CHEESE gained some ground in the final quarter mile.

Daily Double, Cambreeze and Lady Wo, Paid $622.80.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:01. Off 3:06½. Winner, Mrs. C. P. Lindner's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPITTENIMAGE, $24.90, $11.10, $7.30; SWEEPING FLAME, $10.40, $7.40; HARPEN BELLE, $12.20.

SPITTENIMAGE, away forwardly and prominent throughout, assumed command entering the stretch and continued determinedly when the final test came to outlast SWEEPING FLAME. The latter, strongly urged, gradually improved his position while saving ground, but could not overtake the winner. HARPEN BELLE, on the inside for the entire trip, finished gamely under punishment. LADY SARA, in tight quarters rounding the turn, was taken to the outside entering the stretch and finished stoutly. MILK was outrun all the way.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:33. Off 3:34½. Winner, A. G. Tarn's ch. h. (6), by Diavolo—Rothermel. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 1-5, 1:12 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAUST, $30.50, $15.10, $12.00; MARFEU, $11.20, $9.40; MINTSON, $6.30.

FAUST, going in much improved form, moved up with determination on the inside in the last quarter mile and shook off the leaders when straightened into the stretch to win under mild pressure. MARFEU, a forward contender throughout, lost much ground on the stretch turn and closed gamely, but could not get up. MINTSON, on the inside early, moved up stoutly between the leaders on the stretch turn, but was caught in tiring quarters, yet continued gamely and held the others safe. STRUT, in the thick of contention all the way, faltered in the final drive. BRAIN TRUST, used up racing GHOST TRAIN into defeat, weakened in the final drive.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:01. Off 4:04½. Winner, J. B. Partridge's b. c. (4), by Spanish Play—Bunt. Trained by J. B. Kirby. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:12 2-5, 1:38 3-5, 1:42.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUR KETCHAM, $17.40, $7.90, $5.10; WARLAINE, $6.30, $5.50; NEIGHBOR, $5.90.

OUR KETCHAM, going forwardly and forcing a rapid pace in the early running, wore WARLAINE down when straightened into the stretch to win going away. WARLAINE, quickened and displayed high speed while saving ground and made a game effort when challenged, but faltered when the final issue came. NEIGHBOR, well up the entire trip, closed gamely to punishment and was going strongest of all at the finish. NO SIR was taken in between horses the final half mile and was weakly ridden through the stretch. CO-SPORT, eased off the pace going to the first turn, flattened out when called upon.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:32. Off 4:34½. Winner, Mrs. R. H. New's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HELEN'S LAD, $27.90, $12.20, $7.90; BAKED BIBESCOT, $6.70, $6.60; AIR EDDY, $22.20.

HELEN'S LAD, saving ground rounding the first turn, moved into contention with a rush, shook off the leaders leaving the backstretch and held BAKED BIBESCOT safe in the final drive. BAKED BIBESCOT, taken to the outside after entering the backstretch, followed the leaders under light restraint until the stretch turn, and made a bold bid, but could not get up. AIR EDDY, slow to get going, gained steadily on the extreme outside after leaving the backstretch and shook off CHICHARRA in the stretch run. LADY HAV was pinched back in the run down the backstretch.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post 5:04. Off 5:04½. Winner, Mrs. M. N. Bond's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INACTIVE, $5.50, $4.10, $3.50; HI-TIDE, $4.60, $3.60; STALAGMITE, $4.30.

INACTIVE, under light restraint until well around the lower turn, took command with a rush and held sway to the end, winning mildly urged. HI-TIDE broke tardily, saved ground all the way and gained steadily until the stretch turn, where she suffered slight interference, but continued gamely in to the final drive. STALAGMITE, on the outside and under steadying restraint early, closed stoutly, but could not overhaul the leaders. WROUGHT IRON raced evenly all the way.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:34. Off 5:36. Winner, Oaktree Stable's ch. h. (5), by Bright Knight—Lady Myra. Trained by W. Hartman. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:14 1-5, 1:41, 1:54 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MYRON, $81.70, $21.30, $10.70; ACTDINE, $9.20, $7.20; CHANCING, $4.40.

MYRON worked his way forwardly on the inside, forced a steady pace rounding the lower turn and shook off ACTDINE through the stretch to win ridden out. ACTDINE, well up on the outside all the way, continued gamely when challenged, but was not equal to the winner. CHANCING broke alertly, showed good speed, but bore out rounding the lower turn, came to the inside entering the stretch and just lasted long enough to withstand MINE BOY'S bid. The latter closed a big gap in the last half mile.

Dear Al:

Well, I can't get in trouble if I use this space to answer questions. It keeps me out of mischief, makes for informative reading, soothes my worries about Clocker Mike and saves the trouble and expense of mailing replies. So here goes: J. V. X. (My Baltimore rooter)—The entries at all tracks in The Post are in post-position order. That number at the left which has confused you is for reference in getting results over the phone. K. I. R.—True Tune is still the property of John A. Manfuso. She will not race again. Her present home is in Kentucky where Aneroid is standing in stud. She will drop a foal shortly by Mowlee, after which she will be bred to Aneroid. Chuck E.—You're right. It was in 1927 that the Bowie track was resurfaced and the track records were broken in wholesale lots. Sandy, Fantastic, Centrifugal, Sortie, Hamadan and Clear Sky were horses which hung up new marks at the fall meeting. Oddly, with the exception of two marks, all Bowie track records were set during the month of November. The record for six furlongs is held by Greenock at 1:10 3-5, but the best time over the track last year was 1.12. I forget the name of the horse, M. Irish Buckle Favored in Warrenton Point-to-Point Race

Final Event Of Season At Waverley

Strong Field Will Compete in Two Events; Post Time Set at 11 A. M.

By the Associated Press.

Warrenton, Va., March 17.—Irish Buckle, one of three horses entered by Mrs. George W. Cutting, of Warrenton, was favored tonight to win the sixth annual point-to-point individual race of the Warrenton Hunt tomorrow.

The race committee announced tonight the course would be over Robert C. Winmill's Waverly farm on Spring road. Post time was set at 11 a. m.

Fifteen entries have been received for the first race and 20 for the second race.

The two races will be judged by Colonel Clarke Reynolds, of Warrenton, former head of the Remount Depot, Front Royal, and Lieut. Col. John C. Butler, of Rectortown. The point-to-point closes the hunting season for the Warrenton pack.

The first race will be about five miles over Warrenton country. Mrs. Cutting's Irish Buckle won the event last year6 in 15:18 3-5.

Gerald B. Webb, jr., of Middleburg, winner of the heavyweight event at Upperville, last Saturday, will start Easy Mark. Crompton Smith, Middleburg, rider of Sobersides, a winner at Rokeby last week, will ride Mrs. Smith's Mary Barry, a previous winner of point-to-point events.

Mrs. John O. Hinckley, of Orlean, and Miss Lucie Duer, of Warrenton, previous winners, are starting Shotover and Loops. Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, of Warrenton, who finished the Old Dominion Hunt point-to-point in a dead heat with Mrs. Hinckley, will ride her War Captive.

T. T. Mott, sr., of Bethesda, Md., has entered Brumanna and named T. T. Mott, jr., as rider. Mott, jr., won the Rerland Hunt event.

Miss Nancy Hanna, of Washington, has entered Gone Away, and H. L. Welch, Rockville, Md., will start Mack, owner riding. Mrs. Melville Church 2d, Rixewville, has entered Miss Gwen, with Melville Church 2d up.

Mrs. George Garrett, of Marshall, has entered Bonfire in the team event and Mrs. Norman Toerge, Middleburg, will ride Not So, with Miss Nancy Redmond astride Water Sprite. Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, wife of the M. F. H. of the Warrenton Hunt, will ride her Ballyhoo, and has named W. H. Emory, sr., to ride Dilate.

Entries are as follows: Individual: Goldbrook, owned and ridden by W. H. Emory, jr., Warrenton; Faint Glow, Francis T. Greene; Loops, Miss Lucie Duer; Easy Mark, Gerald B. Webb, jr., Middleburg; Miss Gwen, owned by Mrs. Melville Church 2d, Rixeville; ridden by Melville Church 2d; Nemo, owned and ridden by Richard J. Kirkpatrick; Mae West, Frederick H. Intramurals At G. W. Beat American, 5-0

Colonials Athletes Blank Eagles in Varied Sports Card

George Washington University's intramural teams scored their fourth straight triumph over a local college squad yesterday when they defeated American University, 5-0, in the G. W. gym.

The Colonials opened the varied program of events with a 38-28 victory in basketball in a hard-fought, close contest. Then they took two volleyball matches, 15-4 and 16-6

In table tennis, Davie Johnsen, crack local player, paced the George Washington players to victory in four matches, while the Eagles were unable to win any. The A. U. handball representative won the first game, 15-14, but G. W. took the last two games by a score of 15-12 in each.

The G. W. badminton team rounded out the afternoon's program by drubbing the Eagles, 15-4, 9-15, 15-6.

Minnesota Sextet Wins in Tourney

New Haven, Conn., March 17 (AP).—The University of Minnesota hockey team, masquerading under the nom de ice of "The Gophers," poened the National A. A. U. championship tournament by thrumping the arena A. C. of Philadelphia, 10 to 1, today.

The Gophers, co-favorites in the tourney with the St. Nicks sextet of New York City, lived up to their reputation. After tallying twice in the first period, they scored five times in the second session and three times in the third. By the time Philadelphia's furious but inept play had scored a goal in the final it didn't matter.

Virginia Field Trials Attracts 25 Entries

Richmond, Va., March 17 (AP).—Ernest C. Meade, president, said today approximately 25 entries were expected for the winners' all-age stake of the Virginia Amateur Field Trial Association's sixteenth annual spring trials at Camp Lee Monday and Tuesday.

Meade said officials expected 30 entries for the puppy stakes, opening event of the trials on Monday.

Baering Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

A fellow told us burying gold under Fort Knox was all right. So was the military funeral they gave silver at West Point.

But he said they should complete the job by planting all the paper money under Annapolis. That would take us back to the old Wampum days when a man could order a dozen oysters and pay for them with the shells.

He says money is just a medium of exchange. That's the trouble. Most folks like it medium.

J. C. C. and Y. M. C. A. "Reds" Clash Tonight in Tournament

Post-A. A. U. Game Termed "Natural;" United and Hyattsville Girls on Program

A natural, if there ever was one, is the clash of the Jewish Community Center and the Y. M. C. A. five tonight in the District A. A. U. championship basketball tournament at Eastern High School gymnasium. Meeting in the second round of the thrilling play for the Washington Post Trophy and the city honors, these clubs are expected to put up a sizzling battle. A week ago tonight, the J. C. C. tossers came through with a 45-32 victory over the Y. M. C. A. Blues, eliminating the latter club in the first round. At one stage the boys forgot about basketball and Referee Dave Keppel was forced to put three men out of the game.

The Y. M. C. A. team that faces the Sixteenth street club tonight is known as the "Reds" and is half of the original "Y" squad. The Reds, knowing they would meet J. C. C. in the second round if they won, played an inspired game to upset the Trans-Lux Hour Glass team, 27-26, in the first round. Tonight they hope to avenge the elimination of their friends, the "Blues."

As if this game wasn't enough to supply the wants of any thrill-seeking basketball fans, three other struggles are carded.

Girls' Teams Battle

The hectic battles for the girls championship will be resumed with a quarter-final contest that will bring the United Typewriter girls, runners-up in the Community Center League, against the Hyattsville lassies, who have been putting up a fine brand of basketball this season. The winner of this game goes into the semifinals against Rockville's famed sextet.

An old metropolitan area rivalry is involved in the two clashes that will begin the program. It will be Alexandria vs. Georgetown in both instances. At 7 p. m. the Alexandria Boys Club 120-pounders will take on the Georgetown Boys Club, while an hour later the 145-pounders of the same organizations will stage their elimination struggle.

The Y. M. C. A. five will have its hands full tonight with Sid Karp, former George Washington University freshman who proved a sensation in the first J. C. C. game. He scored 27 points on that occasion, coming within a point of tying the tournament record held by Everett Russell, who put in 28 one night years ago for the Capitol Awning Aces. Russell, oddly, is now the coach of J. C. C.

Karp is a pot-shot artist and may be guarded tonight by Skeeter Hahn, a half-pint guard, who proved mighty troublesome to Trans-Lux in the "Reds'" first appearance. But Karp will have plenty of help. Genderson, Feldman and Silverstein are smooth players with good scoring eyes.

Madden and Watkins are expected to bear the brunt of the "Y" attack. Madden sank the basket from side court that sent Trans-Lux down to defeat. Watkins is a hefty center who plays a hard game.

The afternoon will be given over to eight games, featuring a pair of 120-pound tussles. This part of the day's program can be witnessed for 10 cents. The usual 25-cent admission will prevail for the four night games.

Timberville Quintet Beats Warrenton, 32-26

New Market, Va., March 17.—The fast Timberville (Va.) basketball quintet defeated the Warrenton club here today, 32 to 26. The Blues were in the lead at the half with a count of 20 to 13. Minnick for the winners was high point man with 10 and L. Suddum led for the losers with 9 points.

Eastern High Wins Durham Opener, 43-25

D. C. Five Defeats Petersburg in First Round of Duke Play

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Durham, N. C., March 17.—Eastern High, champion of Washington D. C. schoolboy cage teams, proved that its No. 2 seeded berth in the first Duke-Durham Southern basketball tourney was well-placed today when it took a first quarter lead and bounced Petersburg (Va.) High, 43-25, in the first round.

The Petersburg five, sectional champion of Virginia high schools, was never a serious menace to the fast and furious team from Washington. Eastern was on the long end of a 14-7 count after the first period, dropped back to an 18-13 advnatage at the half, but as the game progressed fairly poured leather through the rim for the 18 point edge.

Custer Stars

It was the basket work of Bob Custer, a former star with Washington's Western High which eventually earned the top-heavy victory. Custer's 12 points, in addition to his better-than-average guarding, paced a team which seemed to show no effects of a long bus ride yesterday. The stringey center who transferred his cage talents from Tech High to Eastern, Lenny Mills, was second high in the point department with 10. Only one successful foul shot was registered by the winner, while Petersburg accounted for five.

By the triumph, Eastern advanced to a semifinal clash with Lanier High, of Macon, Ga., the game being scheduled for the second half of a double-header later tonight. Lanier came through the opening round with a last-quarter rally that snowed Charlotte (N. C.) High under a 50-to-35 score.

Durham Scores

Durham High, the host team and prime favorite to annex the crown—it is undefeated in almost 50 games, holds the State title and has won the South Atlantic tourney two years in a row—survived the first round with a businesslike and thorough smashing of Charleston, S. C., High, 57 to 31. It was the widest margin rung up.

The narrowest victory of the daytime session was taken by Mossville High, Mississippi State champion and seeded No. 3, when it clipped Parker High, of Greenville, N. C., 40 to 37, after two overtime periods. The score was deadlocked at 33-33 after regulation time, and 37-37 after the first period. The trick was turned with a foul and field goal midway of the second three-minute session. Mossville was faced with the threat of Durham in the night session by virtue of its victory.

Promoter Angling for Hockey Star

Riverside Hopeful Of Landing Calladine For 1st League Team

The possibility that Norman Calladine, crack center of the Baltimore Orioles, might appear in Washington livery next season when the Capital City makes its debut in the Eastern League was hinted at last night by Ray Alvis, promoter of the rink game at Riverside Stadium.

Calladine, who will appear with the Birdmen against the Atlantic City Seagulls in the season's final exhibition match Tuesday night at the stdium, is being sought as the nucleus of the city's first organized hockey team, and Alvis thinks he has a good chance of landing him.

Calladine, 23-year-old native of Petersborough, Canada, and the league's leading scorer, already is headed for a major league berth, but Alvis confidently believes he can delay his promotion one year in order to help the Washington team off to a flying start. Alvis said he made the Baltimore club a flattering offer for its star, and expects a definite answer within the next 10 days.

Alvis also has contacted other clubs throughout the league in an effort to get a team able to hold its own with the best. He will visit Canada personally this summer on a one-man scouting expedition and promises to bring back the signed contracts of enough capable players to man two clubs. Eastern League hockey, as you may gather from all this, is assured for Washington next season.

Three Mat Teams Tie in Prelims

Lancaster, Pa., March 17 (AP).—Oklahoma's Aggies, Franklin and Marshall and Lehigh University finished the preliminary round of the twelfth annual N. C. A. A. wrestling tournament today in a tie for first place with 3 points each—1 ponit for each fall.

Minnesota, Indiana, Illinois State Teachers, City College of New York, Cornell College of Iowa, Colorado Aggies and Nevy were tied with 1 point each.

Capt. Stanley Hensen of the Oklahoma Aggies, defending team champions, scored the quickest fall of the 03 preliminary bouts, pinning Hammer, of West Virginia, in 1:22. George Raab., Franklin and Marshall 165-pounder, threw Morgan, of Michigan, in the longest bout, that went two extra periods.

Al Bergner, of Navy, threw Haddock, of Mass. Tech, with a half nelson and crotch hold in 2:05.

Down In Front

With Richards Vidmer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 17.—Everybody seems to be picking the Cincinnati Reds to win the National League pennant this year, which may seem a little absurd on the surface in view of the fact that they haven't won a pennant in exactly 20 seasons. For ten campaigns they couldn't even get into the first division and when they finally did accomplish that dizzy height last year they finished only fourth.

VIDMER

But the Reds have something that it takes; they have more good pitching than any club in either league, and it almost seems as though every time they send another hurler to the box he immediately takes on the glitter of the staff.

Last Sunday the Reds spread the word around that Johnny Vander Meer and Paul Derringer would face the Brooklyn Dodgers in the Tampa baseball park. This news was circulated in order to attract a crowd for the occasion. Naturally everyone wanted to see Vander Meer, who pitched two successive no-hit shutouts last season, and Derringer, who was one of the two men winning over 20 games.

But when the crowd assembled, the Reds' management found themselves in a most embarrassing predicament. Both Vander Meer and Derringer had developed slight cases of flu and were unable to perform. Apologies and explanations were made over the loud speaker and the management even offered to refund the money to anyone who felt that they had been lured into the park under false pretenses. Two men asked for their money back. Everyone else remained resignedly. And the Reds sent Whitey Moore, who won only six games last season, and ene Thompson, a 22-year-old rookie from the Sally League, to the box in place of the advertised headliners.

And all these two could do was turn in a no-hit game against the Dodgers.

Plenty of Pitchers

The Reds have Vander Meer, Derringer, Lee Grissom, Bucky Walters and a reserve stafff of Reaches Davis, Gene Schott and Big Jim Weaver, but they also have Whitey Moore and Red Barret, who led the International League last year with an earned run average of .234.

With all this pitching talent, it would seem that the Reds would need very little else. But they

Pirates Need More Pitchers; Staff Is Weak

Tobin and Bauers Are Only Two Reliables On Bucs' Roster

By the Associated Press.

San Diego, Calif., March 17.—Pittsburgh's Pirates opened their spring exhibition tour here today and echoing high above the chant of the grand-standers was the prayer of Manager Harold J. (Pie) Traynor for immediately delivery of at least two pitchers to bolster an admittedly weak hurling staff.

The soft-spoken Pie makes few bones about the situation of his club, which finished second to Chicago in the National League race last year—beaten out by a Cub rush which clicked when the Pirates folded in the stretch.

"I need pitchers. Two pitchers, anyhow," declared Traynor. "I've got two good ones. That's about al. Confidentially, I wouldn't want to say what you could do with the rest of my hurlers, but if I could get just two good reliable guys that could throw that ball——"

Traynor's voice trailed off in the roar from the crowd. It didn't matter. Most everyone, including Pittsburgh's faithful fan following, should know the Pirate predicament. The only two slabmen of known worth are Jim Tobin, who woh 14 and lost 12 games last year, and Russ Bauers, whose season of 13 won and 14 lost mustn't be held against him. Traynor knows he's got the stuff.

Pirates Beaten By San Diego, 4-1

San Diego, Calif., March 17 (I.N.S.).—Local boy made good today when San Diego, of the Pacific Coast League, defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 1, in an exhibition game.

A homer by Dallesando with two on base in the first frame turned the trick for the Californians.

March Cotton Nose-Dives $2.85 a Bale

'Temporary Absence' of Spot Trader Caused Drop, Exchange Says

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 17.—The cotton market was the center of some unscheduled excitement today as the March contract crashed down 57 points just before trading in it ceased at noon. Other positions held their blaance in the face of the brief turmoil and at the close the list was unchanged to 4 points up.

After a hurried investigation of the March collapse the cotton exchange reported that it was occasioned by the temporary absence from the floor of a partner in the "leading spot firm." The market, it seems, got out of hand from scattered offerings for which there were no bids near the earlier price.

Traders estimated the open interest in March for liquidation on the final day involved less than 1,500 bales. Ring gossip was that some professional operators bought yesterday on the possibility the end might witness a squeeze.

With the rest of the market behaving in a routine manner observers noted trade support in nearby positions with later months lagging as a result of Liverpool and commission house selling.

Credit Men to Study Problems of Taxation

New York, March 17.—Problems of taxation, both national and State, affecting the commercial credit conditions of the country, will be made the subject of a special tax study by a committee whose appointment has just been announced by D. I. Bosschart, of San Francisco, president of the National Association of Credit Men.

"The creation of the association's special taxation committee is in recognition of the growing importance of tax problems and the effect of some of those problems upon the flow of credit which is essential to the Nation's business life," Mr. Bosschart stated.

Argentina Bonds Are Oversubscribed

Buenos Aires, March 17.—Argentina's recent internal bond issues were heavily oversubscribed and allocations from many country districts being four times as much as the quotas allotted them. The issues consisted of 100,000,000 pesos of 25-year bonds at 4½ per cent, offered at 92.80 and 50,000,000 pesos of 10-year bonds at 4 per cent, offered at 90.30.

Both of these issues are now quoted at a premium on the stock exchange. The reception accorded the loan issues in the agricultural districts is interpreted as an evidence of confidence in the government's minimum price scheme.

Government Probes Break in Cotton

By the Associated Press.

Following a sharp decline in March cotton future contracts, the Commodity Exchange Administration last night called upon all clearing house members of the New York Cotton Exchange to report: 1. Name and address of the person or firm for whom each such trade was made. 2. Amount of purchases and sales, respectively, by futures and the price at which such a transaction was executed. 3. Kind of trade, whether speculative, hedging, straddle or commission house. 4. Statement of the exact time, if known, of each trade in all futures between 11:55 a. m. and 12 o'clock noon. The bulk of the decline occurred during this five-minute period. 5. A statement of all March contracts closed out today showing originating date and price.

Railroad Revenue In February 10% Above Year Ago

Preliminary reports from 93 Class I railroads, representing 82.3 per cent of total operating revenues, made public yesterday by the Association of American Railroads, show that those railroads in February had estimated operating revenues amounting to $227,976,660 compared with $206,576,440 in the same month of 1938 and $$349,798,677 in the same month of 1930. Operating revenues of those roads in February, 1939, were 10.4 per cent above those for February, 1938, but 34.8 per cent below February, 1930.

Freight revenues of the 93 Class I railroads in February, 1939, amounted to $184,751,011 compared with $163,137,211 in February, 1938, and $270,311,687 in February, 1930. Freight revenues in February, 1939, were 13.2 per cent above the same month of 1938, but 31.7 per cent below the same month in 1930.

Passenger revenues in February, 1939, according to these preliminary reports from 93 Class I railroads, totaled $24,778,126 compared with $25,490,885 in February, 1938, and $50,109,432 in February, 1930. For the month of February, 1939, they were 2.8 per cent below the same month in 1938, and 50.6 per cent below the same month in 1930.

Grains Rise With Fear of Nazi Aims

Wheat Climbs a Cent Trading Is Heavier Corn Prices Higher

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 17.—Grain prices, led by wheat and corn, staged a sharp rally of about a cent from the season's lows today as the market exhibited renewed nervousness over European politics.

Belated world-wide repercussions following the latest German coup caused enough excitement to bring new buying into the market. Trading again was on a greatly increased scale, compared with recent extreme dullness.

Character of developments abroad resulted in price nervousness, however, reflecting caution among all dealers. Most of the buying, which came in comparatively small lots, was credited to previous short sellers, who were covering on fear that the European situation might become more serious.

Illustrative of the information which traders were called upon to judge was gossip that a leading food manufacturer had received foreign advice to buy wheat. There were other more or less sensational rumors of political developments in Europe none of which could be confirmed.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1 cent higher than yesterday, May and July at 67⅞ @ 68. Weakness of securities and a sharp advance of 1¾ to 2 cents at Winnipeg helped to focus attention on the European situation. Liverpool rallied to colse ¼ to ⅜ higher after declining early in the session. Corn closed at or near the day's high's ⅜ to ⅞ up; May, 47¾@47⅞; July 49¼. Oats, ⅛ to ¾ higher. Rye, 1 to 1¼ up. Lard, 2 to 3 cents lower.

Stocks Tumble With Threats to Peace Sharp Drop Is the Second of the Week Foreign Dollar Issues Lead Bond Decline

New York, March 17.—The new and serious threats to world peace centering on Germany's new conquest and emphasized in gravity by the recall of the British Ambassador to Berlin and request by the French premier of emergency powers precipitated a flood of selling in both domestic and foreign securities. Prices of bonds, as well as shares, suffered their second serious break of the week and the most severe since January 26 with volume at the highest level since that date. Stabilization funds, active in foreign exchange dealings, were able to hold sagging foreign currency rates to moderate declines.

Given more encouraging domestic prospects, particularly from the political arena, security markets should have been able to absorb foreign offerings to a larger extent over the SEC rebuff to trading rules revision pleas and continued perplexity over the so-called business "appeasement program," however, contributed to a thoroughly spineless market. Domestic liquidation succeeded selling from abroad and included nondescript as well as pivotals. Losses over the big board list ranged from 1 to 5 points, 100 representative issues showing an average loss of 1.37 points on turnover of 1,470,190 shares.

Tape Falls Behind

Selling was concentrated largely in the first and fourth hours when volume was 500,000 and 390,000 shares respectively. For the second hour sales dropped to 230,000 shares and the third hour total was 150,000. Between 2 and 3 o'clock prices were inclined to steady, with transactions amounting to about 200,000 shares. It was one of the broadest sessions of the year, 869 of the some 1,250 listed stocks making their appearance on the tape which dropped behind floor dealings briefly during the most active periods.

General Motors, the most active stock, closed 2⅛ points down on 47,000 shares and Steel Common lost 3 on sales of 35,000 shares. Chrysler, United States Rubber, Commonwealth & Southern preferred and Westinghouse lost 3 or more each and International Harvester sank 4½. In the bond section all of the foreign issues were depressed including Czechs, which now have lost about 50 per cent of market value as before the German annexation. Domestic rails were particularly soft.

Foreign Dollar Bonds Weak

Foreign dollar securities led a St. Patrick's Day parade of listed bonds to lower levels, with all groups affected sharply. The drop in Czech issues continued as that country was swallowed completely by its neighbors. All other foreigns fell drastically on the wave of apprehension regarding war developments that set the markets shivering. United States Treasury obligations were practically lower, and speculative domestic bonds tumbled under the same general influence. Turnover was $7,500,000.

The two Czech government issues finally evened up on small trades at a closing figure of 31, which represented a drop of 4¼ points in the issue and 1 point in the other. German obligations were soft, while Hungarian, Serbian, Italian, Estonian and similar securities fell 1 to 4 points. The fear that Japan might start war whoops in the Far East sent issues of that country lower, and Australians were heavy for the same reason. Scandinavian bonds dropped with the rest, while Canadians were fractionally lower. The Latin-American default group suffered from general liquidation.

Treasuries Lower

United States Treasury bonds were down 1-32 to 9-32 point in the formal trading, while late counter dealings saw another ⅛ point clipped off the more indicative issues. Guaranteed bonds of the farm and home corporations slipped lower, as well. Telephone bonds were firm, but power and light, railroad and industrial bonds reflected the general uneasiness by small fractional declines.

Secondary railroad liens were marked lower by fractions to 3 points in a general wave of selling that exempted hardly a bond. Borderline and default rails were soft, and Alleghany Corp. bonds dropped with the rest of the carrier group. Utility holding company bonds were relatively stable. The local traction group joined in the shake-out, as did communications, amusement and other special groups.

United Air Asks Revised Basis Of Mail Rates

Receives Only Half of Average Pound-Mile Pay, Report Says

Chicago, March 17.—United Air Lines Transport Corporation in its annual report made public today by its president, W. A. Patterson, urges the establishment of a pound-mile rate of payment for the company to provide compensation in proportion to the volume of air mail flown by United. It pointed out that such an equitable basis of mail pay is necessary to provide adequate revenues.

The report shows United's operations loss in 1938 was $997,221 after depreciation of $1,256,024, despite increased revenues from passengers and cargo. The operations loss was equivalent to 66½ cent per share. Operating loss in 1937 was $754,486. As compared with 1937, passenger revenue increased 6.03 per cent, mail revenue increased 7.17 per cent, and express revenue decreased 7.36 per cent. However, during the year, total operating expenses and taxes increased $673,515, an increase of 6.54 per cent over 1937.

The report says that the company will shortly have a hearing before the Civil Aeronautics Authority which is instructed, under the new aviation act, to adequately compensate airlines for transportation of air mail. The report portrays the wide discrepancy between volume of mail transported by United and payment received by it during the last five years compared with volume and compensation of competing transcontinental airlines. During 1938 United received only five-eighths as much per pound-mile for transporting mail transcontinentally as did a competing carrier, and only half as much as the average pound-mile paid on the remainder of the Nation's air mail system.

Brunswick-Balke

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., today reported 1938 consolidated net profit of $1,003,710, compared with $786,376 in 1937. The 1938 profit was equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.90 a share on the common stock and compared with $1.41 in 1937. Net sales last year totaled $10,707,278, compared with 1937 sales of $11,417,617. The company makes billiard tables and equipment and bowling alleys.

Southern Pacific

New York, March 17 (AP).—Southern Pacific Co., among the first of major railroads to report for February, today placed net operating income at $260,891, compared with a net deficit of $769,554 in February last year. Gross income in February of $14,197,744 was $388,538 above a year ago.

Colts Fire Arms

Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Co., today reported net profit for 1938 of $1,143,620, or $5.72 a share, compared with $1,161,946, or $5.81 a share, in 1937.

Transamerica Corp.

Trans-America Corporation today reported a consolidated net profit for 1938 of $7,039,681 equal to 65 cents a share of capital stock. This excluded $1,658,456, equal to 15 cents a share, credit to paid-in surplus account. In 1937 the bank holding company had a consolidated net profit of $12,798,324, or $1.14 a share.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, March 17 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Most wool buyers in the Boston market were showing a waiting attitude today. Some buyers were willing to look at wools offered for sale, but very few were taking any wool except small quantities to piece out supplies. Small sales reported included good French combing length fine territory wool in original bags at 65 to 68 cents, scoured basis, and some graded combings bright quarter-blood fleece wools at 29 to 31 cents in the grease for average shrinking wools.

New Financing

New York, March 17 (AP).—This week's financing, totaling $15,585,200, was 65 per cent new money, Poor's Publishing Co., reported today.

Curtiss-Wright Earns Its First Common Profit

New York, March 17 (AP).— Curtiss-Wright Corporation, aeronautical manufacturers, reported today that its net profits last year nearly doubled those of 1937 resulting in the first earnings on the common stock in its 10-year history.

The consolidated net profit was $3,598,739, equal to 17 cents a common share, compared with $1,983,609, or $1.71 a share of class A stock, in 1937. This year's earnings were computed after deduction of class A stock's $2 a share preference in earnings.

Guy W. Vaughan, president, reported unfilled orders on March 3 totaled $31,546,521, compared with $29,455,345 on March 4, 1938.

Vaughan said he expected flight tests shortly for the 30-place twin-engined substratosphere plane now under construction at Robertson, Mo.

Central Businessmen Hold Holiday Dinner

The Central Business Association, in connection with its membership drive, held a St. Patrick's Day dinner last night at the Furhman Studio in the Fairfax Hotel. William Milland, president, was the toastmaster and Miss Nancy Miller was the hostess for the occasion.

The Security Club of the American Security and Trust Company held its Saint Patrick's Day party last night at the Chevy Chase Women's Club.

Studebaker Ranks 10th in Auto Industry

Chicago, March 17 (AP).—The Studebaker Corporation of South Bend, Ind., today reported consolidated net loss for 1938 of $1,762,465, compared with net income of $811,874, or 37 cents a share of common stock, in 1937.

Paul G. Hoffman, president, in his letter to stockholders, said increased sales after new models were introduced in September, 1938, enabled the corporation to end the year in tenth position in the industry. It was in thirteenth position for 1937, he said.

Carpenter Leads Pin Tourney

R. I. Bowler Sets Pace in All-Events

Rhode Island Reds Advance to Top Ranking; Others Idle

Tony Carpenter, speedball artist of the Rhode Island Reds, went into the all-events lead in the National Duckpin Bowling Congress yesterday at Lucky Strike alleys, registering sets of 357 in singles, 343 in doubles and 393 in team.

The raven-locked Apponaug, R. I., toppler spilled a grand total of 1,093, while his teammate, Nick Paye, accounted for a total of 1,076 for second place.

Top Ranking

The Reds advanced to top ranking due to the fact that no other team was active during the day. Thursday night, at the start of pinsmashing that will mark the twelfth annual congress, the Rhode Island delegation was forced to take a second seat to the host team, Lucky Strike. The latter rolled an aggregate of 1,776, 55 pins better than the 1,721 of the Reds.

Individual leadership in the various events was distributed among Carpenter's Rhode Island rolling partners. Carpenter and Paye were out in front in the doubles division, while Everett Gardner, with games of 139, 130 and 124 for a total of 393, was high in singles.

New Threat

A new threat to the Reds' lead will appear today at Lucky Strike, when Pilot Mills, of Valdese, N. C., begins activity as the second week of the tournament rolls around. The team boasts two rollers who have twice captured the North Carolina doubles championship, D. Powell and D. Erwood.

Also listed for alleys today are the Bismarck Beer team, of Baltimore; Washington Beef and Provision; Lorraine-Boush, of Norfolk; Dupont, of Richmond; Agriculture Inter-Bureau; Princess Anne, of Norfolk, and the Red Circle Food Shop. A team of Charlotte, N. C., girls will engage the Recreation girls of Portsmouth, Va.

have quite a little else, including Botcho Lombardi, who led the league in hitting last season; Frank McCormick, the first baseman who made more hits than anyone else in the circuit, and Ival Goodman, who hammered out 30 home runs.

Of course, they had most of these assets last year and finished only fourth, but they needed only to win six more games to finish first, and the main blame for the Reds' failure to win those desired half dozen is laid on Grissom, who needlessly tried to steal second and broke his ankle. He won only two games all year.

No More Second Guesses

McKechnie was asked about the rest of his team, especially the infield where the only uncertainties seem to exist.

"They say McCormick won't have another year like he did last, when he made over 200 hits," McKechnie said. "Well, personally I don't think he will. I think he had a great season, but he doesn't have to do that well to satisfy me. Second and third seemed to be my real weaknesses. I planned on shifting Junior Frey to third and using young Eddie Joost at second, although he isn't quite ready for a regular job. But now that I've got Bill Werber from the Athletics I can put Frey back at second and my infield is set.

"What I have this year that I didn't have last is reserve strength. Richardson is part of it. Berger, Craft and Goodman in the outfield will be backed up by Bordagaray and Gamble or Bongy. Riggs and Scarsella along with Richardson are capable infield reserves. Lombardi doesn't need much help back of the bat. He's big enough to take care of most of the work, but I have Hershberger and young Dick West from Chattanooga in case of emergency."

Favored Teams Gain Finals at Bermuda Net

Hamilton, Bermuda, March 17 (AP).—Two of the favored teams filled in the finals bracket today in the Bermuda tennis championships before rain stopped play for the day.

Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, and Elwood Cooke, of Portland, finalists in the singles, whipped the Frank Guernsey-J. Gilbert Hall combination, 6—3, 6—4. Wayne Sabin, beaten by Cooke in the singles yesterday, and John Shostrom, of Chicago, turned back Cliff Sutter and Dr. Eugene McCauliff, 6—1, 6—2.

In the second round of the women's doubles Katherine Winthrop and Mrs. Virginia Rice Johnson, both of Boston, beat Miss Arguimbeau and Miss West, 6—2, 6—4.

Chuck Fenske Bids For New Mile Mark

Chicago, March 17 (AP).—Chuck Fenske's bid for a new indoor mile record will highlight the 11th annual Armour Tech Relays tomorrow at the University of Chicago Field House.

Fenske's best time for the distance —4:05.9—was made in last year's Tech relays. Last week, however, he defeated Glenn Cunningham, holder of the indoor record, and tomorrow he will be after the record itself—4:04.4.

7 D. C. Boys Awarded Letter At Fishburne

Basketball, Swimming And Special Medals Presented Athletes

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Va., March 17.—At a special meeting of the Fishburne Military Academy cadets today in theauditorium, Col. Morgan H. Hudgins, principal, awarded varsity letters in basketball and swimming and also presented the medals which seven members of the swimming team won in the State interscholastic meet at V. P. I. last Saturday. Seven Washington athletes were honored.

The following cadets were awarded their varsity letters in basketball.

Harold C. Patterson, jr., Arlington, Va.; Jay D. Cook, jr., Moorestown, N. J.; Roderick P. MacKinnon, Delmar, N. Y.; Edward Menges, Freeport, Pa.; William J. Barbour, jr., Waynesboro, Va.; Worden E. Winne, jr., Freeport, N. Y., and Paul R. Skillman, Newark, Del.

Cadets who were awarded varsity letters in swimming were:

Elliott Tracey, Washington, D. C.; Harold T. Bent, jr., Newport News, Va.; Robert P. Atkinson, Fort Monroe, Va.; Quentin Gregory, Halifax, N. C.; Herbert J. Jacobi, jr., Washington, D. C.; Francis S. Dieuaide, Washington, D. C.; Kenneth T. Blood, jr., Washington, D. C.; Howard D. McCauley, Washington, D. C.; Norfleet M. Gibbs, jr., New Bern, N. C.; William J. Lambert, jr., Birmingham, Mich.; Warner Mallison, Nashville, Tenn.; Madison Fontaine, Roanoke, Va.; David Tracy, Washington, D. C.; Walter Carter, Queens Village, N. Y., and Julian Colquitt, Washington, D. C.

The seven cadets who won medals in the State interscholastic meet at V. P. I. were:

Madison Fontaine, Francis Dieuaide and Herbert Jacobi, in the 150-yard medlay relay, and William Lambert, David Tracy, Kenneth Blood and Warner Mallison, in the 220-yard free style relay. Cadet Mallison also won a medal in the 100-yard free style.

Elect Co-Captains At William and Mary

Williamsburg, Va., March 17 (AP).—Two senior gridmen, Lloyd Phillips, of Lynchburg, and John Dillard, of Norfolk, will be co-captains of William and Mary's 1939 football team.

Phillips and Dillard are the first Virginians to lead a W. and M. football squad since 1935.

Crack Riflemen Are Invited To Meet Here

Georgetown Club Is Sponsoring Event On March 25

Invitations have been sent to teams representing 14 high and prep schools in the District and Maryland, Virginia and New York to participate in a meet on March 25, sponsored by the Georgetown University Rifle Club in conjunction with the Sesquicentennial celebration. The National Rifle Association, which will present medals to the winners, has granted the use of its range at 10 G street northeast.

Georgetown Prep, St. John's, McKinley Tech, Roosevelt, Wilson, Eastern and Central from this city; George Washington High, Alexandria; Xavier High, New York, and Fork Union, Staunton, Fishburne, Randolph-Macon and Augusta military academies, of Virginia, are the schools invited. Thomas Lewis executive officer of the GeGorgetown Rifle Club is in charge of arrangements.

The shoot will be staged under National Rifle Association rules, at a distance of 50 feet in prone, kneeling and standing positions. Course of fire will be ten record shots in each position. Maximum team time will be two hours and forty-five minutes. Any 22-calibre rifle is eligible for the meet. National Rifle Association judges will preside and old-style targets will be used.

Hankner New Coach At Greenville, N. C.

Eureka, Ill., March 17 (AP).—O. A. Hankner, resigned athletic director and head coach at Eureka College, will begin duties in a similar capacity at East Carolina Teachers College, Greenville, N. C., March 23.

Hankner announced his resignation at Eureka yesterday. He came here in 1937 after coaching two years at Lacrosse (Wis.) Teachers College.

Police Boys Clubs 4, 5 Open Skating Season

Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs No. 4 and 5 will officially open the roller skating season today with a series of races on E street southeast, between Fifth and Sixth, starting at 3 p. m.

New roller skates will be given as prizes to the winners in each age class, 7 to 9, 9 to 11, and 11 to 13 years of age.

Elect Snyder Presidents' Cage Pilot

New Captain One Of Five Lettermen Slated to Return

Alexandria, Va., March 17.—Ed Snyder, a veteran of the past two seasons, was elected captain of the George Washington High School basketball season for the 1939-40 season at a special meeting of members of the varsity squad today. He was chosen by a unanimous vote.

Snyder has been one of the first ten players on the squad for two years, although he has not been a consistent starter until the latter part of the season just passed. Handicapped by an ankle injury during the early part of the campaign, he did not hit his stride until mid-season, but in the past ten games was an outstanding member of the regular five.

The new captain is one of five lettermen slated to return for next year's team. Others include Jack Payne and Jimmy Taylor, forwards; Amos Clift, center, and Ed Williams, guard.

The varsity squad also elected Eddie Nowland as captain for the season just closed. He was appointed acting captain by Coach Albert Doran early in the season, but the appointment had never been confirmed by a squad vote.

A meeting of the senior basketball league banquet committee will be held Monday evening at the home of Frank Cockrell, 27 Spring street, at 8:30, at which time plans for the first annual banquet will be discussed. Jim Echols is chairman of the committee.

The fete will be featured by presentation of trophies to the winner and runner-up in the league's championship tournament, to be held next week at Armory Hall.

The St. Mary's Celtics, perennial semi-pro baseball representatives of the city, may be replaced by a new club this spring in the event the plans of Jimmy Lyles, proprietor of a local florist shop materialize. Lyles plans to sponsor a semi-pro club in the name of his store, and a number of players who have performed for the Celtics for several years have already indicated a willingness to sign.

In the event the change is made, Theodore Beach would continue as the manager of the team. He has handled all business details for the Celtics for the past nine years.

Julian Whitestone has been appointed chairman for the spring smoker of the Old Dominion Boat Club, tentatively set for early in April. A boxing program featuring Alexandria Boys Club mittmen will be the highlight of the show.

In the event the dates of the two events coincide, the finals of the Boys Clubs Interclub Tournament may be staged as features of the smoker. The tourney was originally scheduled for this week, but was postponed because of conflict with the A. A. U. Basketball Tournament.

mount for the Nats of Alex Alexandra, the vast Venezuelan who similarly will be making his debut against a big league club. Alexandra has been nominated to pitch the first three innings against Detroit, with Ortiz pitching the second three and Rookie Joe Haynes and his curve ball finishing up.

An advertised treat for the 1,000 fans also is the scheduled appearance of Fred Hutchison, highly publicized Tiger rookie from Seattle, for whom the Detroit club paid $50,000 in cash and four players during the winter.

Rowe to See Action

Hutchinson and Schoolboy Rowe have been named by Manager Del Baker as two of the three Detroit pitchers. Interest will attaen also to the appearance of Rowe, who is supposed to be making a comeback after being returned to the minors last year with a sore arm.

Aside from his rookie pitchers, Manager Bucky Harris will send a line-up of regulars into the game with Bobby Estalella hitting in the clean-up position. That role was originally assigned to Taft Wright but this morning Wright severely wrenched an ankle while running to first base and will be out of uniform for nearly a week. X-ray pictures disproved the Nats' fears that Wright may have broken his ankle.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, March 17.—Stock market prices broke sharply again today before a steadier undertone appeared in late dealings. The mark-down in quotations, however, was termed out of proportion to actual selling volume. Oils came back a little on Paris support and some gold shares rallied partially. European bonds shifted erratically with many prices nominal. British funds ended about 6/32 above worst levels and transatlantics leveled off a little above the bottom.

Paris—After pronounced weakness at the opening, some stocks came back a shade in the bourse today. Rentes dropped 40 to 100 centimes at the close while Bank of France ended unchanged. Suez Canal dipped 375 francs and Royal Dutch 48.

Liverpool—Liquidation by the trade and hedging depressed near deliveries in cotton today, leaving the close 3 points lower to 1 up. Buying of distants was said to be against sales in New York. A late covering movement in wheat futures placed final prices 1/4 to 3/8 penny ahead. Buying was attributed to rumors—later officially denied—the French government had placed an embargo on wheat exports.

IN MEMORIAM.

HOLBROOK, WILLIAM. In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away 3 years ago, April 30, 1936.

Gone is the face we loved so dear
Silent is the voice we loved to hear
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach
Sweet to remember our William dear
And, though absent is just as near
His loving wife,
MABEL.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia, holding a Probate Court. In re estate of Mary S. Vandegrift, deceased. Administration No. 53881. Order fixing new date of trial and providing for publication. Upon consideration of the motion filed herein by the caveators for a new date for the hearing on the issues heretofore framed and set for trial on the 15th day of February, 1939, and it appearing that the notification as to the trial of the issues in the case relating to the validity of the paper writing dated the 26th day of June, 1933, purporting to be the last will and testament of Mary S. Vandegrift, deceased, having been returned as to William W. Miller, infant, Daniel Miller, Kermit Miller, Ogden Miller, and Elizabeth MacBride, "not to be found," it is by the court this 6th day of March, 1939, ordered, that said issues be set down for trial on the 17th DAY OF APRIL, 1939, and that this order and the substance of said issues be published once a week for four successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and The Washington Post, the substance of said issues being as follows: 1. Was the paper writing filed in this court and bearing date the 26th day of June, 1933, the last will and testament of Mary S. Vandegrift, deceased? 2. Was the said Mary S. Vandegrift, deceased, at the time of making and subscribing or of the acknowledging of the said paper writing dated the 26th day of June, 1933, of sound and disposing mind and memory and capable of executing a valid deed or contract? 3. Was the said paper writing dated the 26th day of June, 1933, obtained by the execution thereof procured from the said Mary S. Vandegrift, deceased, by undue influence, duress and coercion, or, either of them, exercised by any person or persons? 4. Was the said paper writing dated the 26th day of June, 1933, obtained by the execution thereof or the subscription thereto procured from the said Mary S. Vandegrift, deceased, by coercion or duress practiced upon her by any person or persons? 5. Were the caveators, Stella Holler, Aline Gorman, and Wm. H. Van Nostrand, nieces and nephew respectively of the decedent, unintentionally omitted from the said alleged last will and testament of the decedent, dated the 26th day of June, 1933? Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Today's hand shows how an ungracious remark located important missing cards:

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

	♠ K 10 9 4 3 ♡ J 10 ◇ A 3 2 ♣ K 5 4
♠ A J 8 7 ♡ 7 5 3 ◇ K 9 ♣ J 10 8 6	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ Q 5 2 ♡ K Q 6 ◇ 8 5 ♣ 9 7 3
	♠ 6 ♡ A 9 8 ◇ Q J 10 7 6 4 ♣ A Q 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
6 ◇	Dbl	Pass	Pass
Pass

"West opened the club jack, which was won by South's queen. South now played the queen diamonds, and when West covered with the king heaved a sigh of relief—there could obviously be no serious penalty. A diamond lead back from dummy cleared the two remaining adverse trumps. The ace of spades was obviously placed with West, and South acocrdingly led his singleton of that suit, which West was forced to take with his ace. Now West was on the rack. A spade or a club return could have done no harm, but West chose the wrong lead of a small heart; the queen from East drew South's ace, to leave the holdings as follows:

	♠ K 10 9 4 ♡ J ◇ 2 ♣ K 5
♠ J 8 7 ♡ 5 3 ◇ None ♣ 10 8 6	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ Q 5 ♡ K 6 4 2 ◇ None ♣ 9 7
	♠ None ♡ 9 8 ◇ 10 7 6 4 ♣ A 2

"The situation appeared hopeless; 12 tricks seemed as uncertain as 11 were certain, but by drawing trumps South could at least cause East and West a little anxiety about discarding. Two diamonds were now played, and at this stage East said, "Give up, old scout; you've got no hope of squeezing me!" This remark splet the faintest of faint hopes to South. He cashed his last two diamonds to leave this situation:

	♠ K 10 ♡ None ◇ None ♣ K 5
♠ J 8 7 ♡ None ◇ None ♣ 10	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ Q 5 ♡ K 6 ◇ None ♣ None
	♠ None ♡ 9 8 ◇ None ♣ A 2

"The deuce of clubs was led to dummy's king and East discarded his six of hearts. South now decided to risk everything and refrained from making an obvious trick with the king of spades. This would have enabled him to discard one heart, but would have revealed the fact that he still held a remaining heart loser. Instead, he led dummy's last club to force East to discard from his three remaining cards, namely spades queen-five and heart king. Poor East was in a terrible quandary, but he remembered that South had not agreed to his suggestion that a squeeze was impossible. It seemed clear, therefore, that South held the jack of spades and that the only hope lay in discarding the king of hearts, which East accordingly did. South could not refrain from a whoop of joy as he laid down his last three cards, the ace of clubs and the nine, eight of hearts."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

The Week-end: Herbert Strople (GAO) has prevailed upon the New York World's Fair to set aside a day in honor of Federal employes . . . And, ironically, the crowded condition of New York hotels because of the fair compels the American Federation of Government Employes to transfer its 1939 convention (September) to Atlantic City.

Indignation came yesterday to Rural Electrification Administration personnel when they read in The Post that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will move, hat and cane, into an $8,000,000 building on the McLean site. Employes felt that if RFC has enough money to splurge a loan for erection of the building and then the face to move into it—then the REA might get some consideration by way of a building through another RFA loan. Personnel said they knew of companies that would be more than glad to erect such a building if the loan was available. The employes' plight: There are 600 of them in town and they are scattered in six buildings, 2000 Massachusetts avenue, the Investment Building, the Twenty-first street building, the building in the 1000 block Fifteenth street at 1730 L street and at 1518 K street. Their business is scattered and their connections bothered by distances. Operations under one roof would make things more efficient.

. . . . And on the subject of space and working conditions for employes, one stenographer writes this column that the arrangements of desks in some offices (especially her own) passeth human understanding. She is compelled to sit at a desk that's removed from the lighting fixtures but at the same time permits the light from a window to shine in her eyes and not on the paper in the typewriter. To a quiet complaint they answer that people should be glad to work any place. The truth is, she says, that a slight rearrangement would make for efficiency all around.

. . . . This column sees the hopes for a five-day week this year as practically doomed because of the economy drive in Congress. And this state of mind is imperiling the five-day week, which actually would cost little so far as the personnel in Washington is concerned. The cost would come in such Federal institutions as jails, penitentiaries and hospitals where seven-day schedules are imperative and a shift to the five-day week would entail additional hiring. Here it could be worked out administratively, for no one has ever contended that Federal employes perform much work on the Saturday mornings.

. . . . Congressmen are hearing squawks about the disposition and treatment of those commemorative coins for which America is famous. It's this way: a town or city wishes to have a coin minted in connection with some civic celebration or event. It sets up a commission which obtains Congressional authority for the minting and pays the Government for turning out the coin, usually through the Philadelphia Mint. Then the coins, in the prescribed and paid-for number, are delivered to the commission. Most often the coins are 50-cent pieces. In 90 out of a hundred instances, the value of the coin leaps upward. They become collectors' pieces. There is no rule that the commissions have to turn them loose on the market, and the scarcer they become, the higher the price soars. The Lynchburg, Va., coin, minted at 50 cents, is now selling at $7.50 (that was a recent quotation), and one bearing the face of Stephen Collins Foster is purchasable at $45.

. . . The definition of who constitutes a food handler in the veterans' facilities has become a disturbing element in the campaign to abolish compulsory (Q. S. and L.) at least for married employees. But, in the plans for Q. S. and L. relief, food handlers are left out. The American Federation of Government Employes has written Veterans Administrator Hines: "May (we) not urge you to narrow this definition so that the average attendant who does no food handling other than to carry a tray to a patient may be excluded from this definition? I know it is necessary to be both watchful and careful as to the handling of food . . . but it seems that we are going a little far afield to include all attendants under the title of food handlers" . . . James J. Holzer, an assistant gardener in Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry, has retired after 19 years' service.

Bob Burns Says—

Have you ever noticed, when anyone announces that they've found a lost pocketbook, how everybody jumps up an' claims it, before they've even checked up to see if theirs is gone? There was a city council meetin' in New York the other day an' one councilman was mobbed when he held up a wallet an' asked: "Whose is it?" Come to find out, the dern thing belonged to Mrs. Earle, the only woman member. An' she almost lost her life gettin' it back!

I lost a nickel through a grating once, when I was a kid, an' got me a long stick with a piece of gum on the end an' tried to pick it up. A crowd of grown-ups gathered around, givin' me suggestions an' takin' up lots more than a nickel's worth of their time, worryin' over me recoverin' my five-cent piece. Then some excitable old lady, comin' up the street, saw the crowd and smoke floatin' up from a peanut vender's stand, an' thought there was a fire an' turned in an alarm. The firemen, when they arrived, lifted up the grating an' let me down on one of their short ladders—an' I got my nickel back! Say, I ain't invested any money since that's drawed so much interest!

Bedtime Story

Danny's Last Chance

He'll find he's merely tempting fate
Who with a chance will hesitate.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny Meadow Mouse has been in ever so many tight places. By a tight place I mean a dangerous situation where one must do just the right thing in order to escape. If you or I had been in as many tight places as Danny Meadow Mouse we would be complete nervous wrecks.

Danny had been in a tight place when Reddy Fox had surprised him and he had happened to be close to a hole dug long ago by Johnny Chuck and no longer used. Into this he had dodged and for a few minutes had felt safe. Then Reddy had started to dig him out. Danny had gone down the long hall, come to a branch and taken this, not knowing where it would lead him. He found himself peering out of Johnny Chuck's back door too scared to stay and too scared to run. You see only a very little way off was the front door with Reddy Fox making the sand fly out as he dug.

Then more trouble appeared. You know they say that trouble brings trouble. Mrs. Reddy suddenly appeared. She had come to see what Reddy was doing. He backed out of the hole and the two stood looking down in. Then Reddy went in and began digging again. Mrs. Reddy began smelling around, poking her nose into the grass here and there. Gradually she was coming in Danny's direction. What to do? He didn't dare go back down in that hole, for then he would be trapped with Reddy inside and Mrs. Reddy outside. What to do?

Now, the rule of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest is that in time of danger if you can't hide run. In a panic Danny Meadow Mouse ran. It wasn't easy running for there was no little path here. His heart went pit-a-pat with fright. If only he had one of his own little paths to run in? Behind him he heard Mrs. Reddy sniff. She was sniffing at that back door he had just left. Of course she smelled him. Her nose woud tell her just which way he had gone. And his short lags were simply no match at all for her long ones. He had to find a place to hide successfully, or a place where he could not be reached. He just had to find one such place and do it almost instantly. He could waste no time looking.

So, as Danny ran, his bright little eyes were searching on all sides for a retreat of some kind, a place where he could hide and not be found, or a place where, if found, he could not be reached by those Foxes. But as his glance darted from side to side it did seem as if Danny was this time running his last race for life. You certainly would have thought so could you have been looking on. It didn't seem as if he had any chance at all, for already Mrs. Reddy's keen nose had discovered which way he had gone and she was after him.

And then he saw it. It was just at one side, a small dark opening, a hole just a little bigger than was necessary for him to slip into. It was too small for any one bigger than he to follow. He knew nothing about that hole. It might not go in more than a couple of inches, in which case he would be caught. It might go in deep. It might even connect with one of the underground tunnels of Miner the Mole. It was right at the edge of a tangle of grass and drift stuff that had been left there by high water in flood time.

Danny didn't hesitate one second. He darted into that dark little hole and not a second too soon. Would Mrs. Reddy find where he had gone? If she did would she try to dig him out? Danny was in despair. He was trapped sure enough this time. That hole didn't connect with one of Miner's tunnels. He had bumped his nose against something hard, something smooth. In vain he dug at it. His sharp little toenails made no impression on it, for it wasn't even earth.

Falls Church Scouts to Seek Building Fund

Will Conduct House-to-House Canvass, April 1-8

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

The Falls Church Scout Building Association, incorporated under the laws of Virginia, has received its charter and is planning a house-to-house canvass of Falls Church and outlying communities from April 1 through April 8 to raise $4,500 with which to complete payment for the 1.1 acre purchased last year and to erect and equip a log cabin.

Edward G. Fenwick has been chosen president of the association. Mrs. A. J. Knox, vice president; Maj. Morton Macartney, treasurer; Adelbert Webb, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Thomas Turner, secretary, and Mrs. L. D. Weld, assistant secretary.

It is proposed to erect a one-story log cabin, 28 by 48 feet, with a fireplace; probably a portable stage, lavatories and locker rooms for boys and girls, one smaller room for a library and one for committee meetings. Lean-to kitchen and storage rooms will be added later. Logs for the building have been donated by Thomas J. Turner. Under supervision of D. S. Sanger, these logs already have been stripped and squared and diped in creosote. The two big items of expense will be the actual labor of erection and the cost of the heating plant. Merchants and contractors have promised their donations of fixtures, plumbing, wiring, etc. Boy Scouts of the town are now making replicas of the proposed building.

While the building is to be primarily for the use of the Scouts, it will be available as a community center for other groups. It is to serve, in addition to the town of Falls Church, Franklin Park, up to Tysons Corners, on the Leesburg pike, down to Baileys Cross Roads in the opposite direction, up to Merrifield, on the Lee highway, and down to Lexington street, in Arlington County, taking in the Highland Park section, on the North Washington boulevard.

Plans for the drive were placed in the hands of a steering committee with Fenwick as chairman, assisted by Walter Grainger, D. Kemper Grille, Boynton Livingston, Charles Kellogg and Maj. Morton Macartney. A. J. Webb is chairman of the building committee; E. B. Wilcox, of the land committee; Mrs. Thomas J. Turner and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury, publicity.

P.-T. A. Nominators Named

Falls Church—Mrs. William C. Pryor, Mrs. Paul Ferris and Mrs. Marshall T. Boone were appointed a nominating committee for the Parent-Teacher Association at the meeting in Jefferson High School.

The association indorsed the county proposal to rent school books next year. Ten dollars was appropriated to assist the high school room mothers in giving a dinner to the boys' basket ball team which won the county championship. Miss Edwards spoke on the great need of gymnasium facilities. Welfare work was voted $27.45 for the month.

Burglars Blow Door Off Safe And Get Nothing

Burglars who broke into the office of the Maryland Personal Bankers, Inc., 7912 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, yesterday and blew the door off a safe, gained nothing for their pains except possibly damaged ear-drums, according to Montgomery County police.

Locke J. Gauthier, manager of the office, said the yeggmen apparently had been unable to get to any of the day's receipts locked in the safe. The explosion, which wrecked the office and broke windows in other nearby offices, so twisted the safe, he said, that it was impossible to gain access to the cash drawer.

Project Is Approved At Fredericksburg

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., March 17.—N. L. Webb, traveling engineer for the Atlanta office of the Public Works Administration, yesterday gave complete approval of the recently completed addition to the filtration plant here, which was partially financed through a grant of $50,850 to the city.

Cost of the entire work on the addition is to be $113,000. The city raised the amount above the PWA grant of 45 per cent of the total cost by means of a bond issue.

Election Dates Changed

Williamsport, Md., March 17.—Elections will be held every other year instead of annually here under a bill which the Legislature passed yesterday. Town officials requested the bill in order to reduce the costs.

Man Perishes In Blaze at Alexandria

Roomer Trapped When Flames Spread Rapidly

The Washington Post Bureau.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Temple 3767
Delivery Service, Phone Alex. 1490.

James Cargo, colored, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the frame house where he roomed at 721 North St. Asaph street last night. The house was occupied by Alexander Peterson and his wife, Annie Peterson.

The fire was believed to have been caused by the explosion of an oil stove, and the flames spread so rapidly Cargo was trapped near a front window of his second-floor room.

Peterson and his wife escaped, but the woman was taken to the Alexandria Hospital for treatment for a heart attack. The Petersons lost all their furniture and clothing.

St. Patrick's Day Marked

St. Patrick's Day was observed in Alexandria by the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Lyceum Hall, when an address on the patron saint of Ireland was made by Representative John D. Dingell, of Detroit, Mich. Short talks were made by the Very Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, pastor of the church, and the Rev. T. Franklin Wood, assistant pastor. Francis H. Fannon was master of ceremonies and Irish songs were featured.

The banking house of Burke & Herbert, southeast corner of King and Fairfax streets, unfurled the Irish flag yesterday, following a custom established by the founder of the bank, the late John W. Burke.

Sylvester A. Breen, veteran baseball fan of Alexandria, received a box of shamrocks from Ireland and yesterday distributed them to his friends, after a custom of long standing.

Alexandria Post, American Legion, celebrated the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the legion with a special program in Gadsby's Tavern—a St. Patrick's Day program preceding a dance.

Workers Assigned

Everett A. Hellmuth, general chairman for the Army Day dinner, April 6, of Alexandria Post, American Legion, has announced the selection of George F. Downham and Sidney Weil as co-chairman, and George H. Evans, Jones Cox and Harry N. Jones as a committee to obtain speakers. F. Clinton Knight is chairman of reservations, and W. Milton Glasgow, program.

The general committee on arrangements includes Hannon E. Norris, Richard M. Green, jr., O. Ashby Reardon, Charles W. King, John A. Nugent, John S. Arnold, G. Raymond King, Eugene Simpson, Richard R. Baker, John E. Minnigh, J. Herbert Taylor, Herbert A. Cady, H. G. McCartney, Turner Anderson, Elliott F. Hoffman, Wolcott E. Spofford, William J. Greenan, Albert A. May, Gilbert J. Cox and Herbert O. Blunt.

Mrs. Garner Dies

Mrs. Beulah Roberts Garner, widow of H. Noel Garner, died yesterday in a Washington hospital, where she had been a patient since March 7. Mrs. Garner was a trained nurse and was graduated from Alexandria Hospital in 1908. She was a native of Winchester.

Mrs. Garner is survived by four brothers and three sisters, all living in Winchester. They are Marshall, Clarence, G. M. and Kenney Roberts; Mrs. Sudie Anderson, Mrs. William Murphy and Mrs. Fred Chapman.

The funeral will be held at 11 a. m. Monday from the Wheatley funeral home. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery, Alexandria.

U. S. Allots Fertilizer In Prince William

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Manassas, Va., March 17.—Prince William County farmers participating in the 1939 agricultural conservation program have been allotted 55 tons of Government triple superphosphate, it was announced today. The fertilizer, made available by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, is for use on 1,000 acres of permanent pasture. In addition, 100 tons of commercial fertilizer have been used here this spring. The county agent's office at Manassas reports that requests for the pasture improvement material are being received daily.
